Egypt Offers Hope For Mideast Peace

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

Senior diplomats say Egypt has offered to take back a United Nations peacekeeping force on its soil as part of an Arab-Israeli settlement, but meanwhile a boost in Egyptian military spending was reported in Cairo.

Diplomats in London said the readiness of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser to restore a U.N. peace force under some guaranteed form of tenure has been conveyed to the mission of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring.

It was deemed a hopeful development because Nasser's expulsion of U.N. troops was a major factor in the train of events that led to the six-day Middle East war of June 1967.

Efforts Stymied

Efforts toward a settlement have been stymied by Israel's refusal to give back captured Arab lands without direct negotiations with the Arabs, and the Arabs' refusal to meet face-to-face with the Israelis. The United Nations has called for Israel to withdraw from captured territory and for the Arabs to end their belligerency toward Israel.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told newsmen Thursday prospects for progress in the Middle East seem better.

One encouraging development, he said, was a statement attributed to Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad that "we recognize realities and Israel is one of them. Now we want peace."

But the Egyptian government, in announcing a $4.6-billion budget Thursday, said it was geared mainly to "sacrifices to enhance military expenditure and to liberate Arab lands occupied by Israel."

No defense figures were disclosed, but semiofficial sources said this year's defense appropriation is the highest in Egyptian history.

Emergency Fund

A special $293.25-million emergency fund was created to consolidate the armed forces and popular resistance against the Israeli occupation of the Egyptian Sinai peninsula and the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The fund would be raised largely as contributions from Arab oil states, donations from private citizens and a civil defense tax.

Nasser conferred for the second day today with Soviet leaders in Moscow, and observers said that the visit could provide a chance for Egypt and its Soviet patron to weigh any new efforts to end the Middle East stalemate.

However, it was understood Nasser also would ask for more Russian arms and aid.

3 Area Road Deaths Mar Holiday Travel

By WALTER S. CLARK

While Ulster County passed the Fourth of July holiday without a single traffic fatality, Dutchess and Orange counties recorded highway deaths. The national toll of deaths in traffic mounted steadily today as millions of Americans returned to work after an Independence Day off and many others extended their holiday outings into the long weekend.

11 Dead in State

The total death toll reached 224 midday through the second day of the four-day holiday. A two-car collision in which four persons were killed pushed the traffic death toll to 11 in New York State. In addition, a young woman died of carbon monoxide poisoning in a car parked southwest of Olean.

Overnight temperatures dipped into the 40s in some parts of the state. Generally cool weather, partly cloudy skies and scattered showers were forecast through tonight.

The collision that took four lives occurred Thursday night near the entrance to the Kissing Bridge ski resort in Glenwood, about 20 miles southeast of Buffalo.

The National Safety Council has estimated that between 700 and 800 Americans may die in motor vehicle accidents in the weekend that began at 6 p. m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

A New York City couple died of injuries after their car left the Taconic Parkway one mile north of Route 44 in the Town of Pleasant Valley, Dutchess County, at 10:50 a. m. Thursday. Sheriff's sergeant Hugh Brennan identifed the dead as Leo Lilienfeld, 67, of 523 East 14th Street, and his wife, Sara M. Lilienfeld, 68.

The sheriff's office reported the car was driven at the time by Mrs. Lilienfeld when the vehicle left the highway and traveled about 100 feet before it crashed into a tree. Both occupants were pronounced dead at the scene by a passing physician.

Sgt. Brennan said it was not definitely determined whether Mrs. Lilienfeld suffered a heart attack before or after the car hit the tree. Her death was attributed to a heart seizure. Her husband died of a fractured skull and lacerations of the brain, according to a report of Chief Investigator Charles Borchers who investigated with deputy sheriffs.

Orange Fatality

Bruce Myslinski, 17, of Goshen, was injured fatally early today when his automobile overturned and struck a tree beside King's Highway in the Orange County community of Monroe. State Police said Myslinski died in St. Anthony's Hospital in nearby Warwick three hours after the accident.

Allen Dzierzek, 17, also of Goshen, a companion and a passenger in the vehicle, was injured. He was reported in good condition at the Warwick hospital.

State police reported that a 64-year-old Bronx man driving north on the State Thruway near Nyack early yesterday suddenly pulled his car to the side of the superhighway and died of an apparent heart attack. Authorities said the victim was Leonard W. Mason of 992 Boston Post Road in the Bronx.

The vehicle driven by Mason narrowly missed several passing cars on the Thruway, authorities reported. Passengers in the vehicle driven by the Bronx man were his wife, Anna, 61, and daughter, Mrs. Betty Jones of Long Island City. They told troopers the man complained of chest pains before he pulled off the pavement and stopped on the shoulder.

Dead at Scene

Mason was pronounced dead at the scene, which was near the Palisades Parkway entrance to the Thruway.

Two persons were injured at 11:30 p. m. Thursday when their car went out of control and slammed into a utility pole off South Gate Road in the Town of Lloyd. Trooper B. S. O'Connor reported that Anthony A. Puglio, 22, of Yorkshire Apartments, Poughkeepsie, was driving his car south and negotiating a left curve when the mishap occurred.

Puglio sustained lacerations and lost two teeth. His wife, Cynthia, 21, received lacerations of the lower lip. Both were

Red Missiles Fail to Stop B52s

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. B52s struck North Vietnam's Southern Panhandle for the fifth day in a row in one of the war's heaviest bombardments, military spokesmen said today. The Communists vainly tried to stop the Stratofortresses with missile fire.

The spokesmen said crewmen aboard the eight-engine Strategic Air Command bombers Thursday saw at least two surface to air missiles (SAMs) fired at them. Both missed.

It was the first time in two months the North Vietnamese had got a shot at the high-flying B52s. Five of the Stratoforts have crashed due to accidents in Vietnam but none has been lost in combat despite repeated Hanoi boasts.

Smaller U.S. jets flew 141 missions Thursday against North Vietnam southern panhandle supply lines, with no planes being lost. In South Vietnam Thursday, guerrilla ground fire shot down a U.S. Army helicopter, killing three Americans, and an Air Force jet whose two-man crew were rescued.

Because of the danger of missiles, the B52s have rarely—until this week—ventured into North Vietnam. But U.S. spokesmen revealed that since Sunday the huge bombers have pounded North Vietnamese territory 27 times—11 times inside the border of the Demilitarized Zone and 16 times above.

In four strikes Thursday, the B52s bombed artillery sites, weapons positions and suspected North Vietnamese army troop concentrations, spokesmen said.

American intelligence sources said that since U.S. bombing was limited to the panhandle April 1, the North Vietnamese have increased both the number of troops and gun batteries just above the DMZ.

About 100 North Vietnamese troops at dawn Thursday charged out of dense jungle and at U. S. Marines 12 miles below the DMZ and three miles southeast of Khe Sanh, the Leatherneck fort being abandoned.

The Marines, number about 200, drove the attackers back. They killed at least 17 North Vietnamese. Four Marines were killed and 13 wounded.

The battle lasted 40 minutes. It erupted where the Marines were guarding Highway 9, the only open road from allied coastal bastions to Khe Sanh.

Nearer Saigon, U.S. Army infantrymen still had no report on how many Communist soldiers died in an almost suicidal assault on a U.S. camp 40 miles northwest of the capital, where the Viet Cong are believed massing 2,000 to 4,000 troops for a push toward the city.

Three American soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in the 500-round mortar and rocket barrage preceding the attack and during the 2½-hour fight at Dau Tieng itself.

In other developments:

— President Nguyen Van Thieu gave his blessing to a new alliance of 28 Vietnamese political and civic organizations with all the earmarks of a pro-government political party.

—U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman completed his third day in Vietnam with another tour of agricultural projects. He is to leave for Manila Saturday.

Meanwhile, three members of the National Mobilization Committee travel to Hanoi this weekend to arrange for the release of three American pilots captured by the North Vietnamese.

Rennie Davis, Chicago coordinator of the NMC, said Thursday the pilots could be reunited with their families in the United States within two weeks.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast monitored in Tokyo Wednesday said North Vietnam would release three unidentified pilots. It did not say when.

Davis said he was contacted by Tom Hayden, head of the NMC who is now in Paris, to organize the trip. Davis identified those who will go to Hanoi as Stuart Meacham of Philadelphia, Vernon Grizzard of Boston and Ann Scheer of Berkeley, Calif.

Davis said the group needed $5,000 to pay expenses of the release. He said all other prisoners who had been released, either by North Vietnam or the National Liberation Front, "have been released to antiwar representatives."

TIME OUT FROM WAR—A U.S. 9th Inf. Div. officer, Lt. Richard Balmaceda of Los Angeles, Calif., kneels in prayer in front of a Statue of the Madonna in the area of Saigon near the Y Bridge where action of the May Viet Cong offensive was heavy. Savago Says 'No' On Independent Run

By LYNN MULVANEY

Despite persistent rumors to the contrary, Republican Peter J. Savago told The Freeman this morning that he is not going to run independenttly for the New York State Assembly in the November election.

When asked if he ever had or intended to do so, he replied, "No, I have no plans."

Almost simultaneously, a call for Republican party unity went out this morning in face of another possible threat to Republican H. Clark Bell's race for the seat. Bell defeated Savago in the June 18 primary.

The unity plea was made by one of Bell's campaign managers, Raymond Armater, who referred to a recent newspaper column which hinted at the organization of a committee of Republicans for the Democratic candidate, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman.

In a press release Armater said, "A determined majority of Republican party members elected H. Clark Bell as their candidate in the primary. It would indeed be unfortunate if the various GOP factions that failed to support Bell in the primary are so vindictive as not to support him now that he is the official choice of the Republican party.

Armater reminded the campaigners for Savago and other GOP factions that such splinter groups weaken the party internally if they fail to abide by the majority decisions of a primary contest.

GOP unity coupled with Bell's Conservative party backing and the huge support anticipated from independent backers will assure the assembly seat for the Republicans, Armater concluded.

Tokyo Jolted Anew

TOKYO (UPI)—The second earthquake in two days and the third this week jolted Tokyo Friday at 8:29 p. m. There were no immediate reports of damage or injury.

Weekend Summit Prelude

Johnson planned to leave early Saturday.

Authoritative sources said another trip to Latin America, possibly Colombia, was in the works for later this summer. Also rumored is a return journey to the Pacific for a meeting with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Another Hijack Try

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A prisoner aboard an airliner carrying 71 passengers slipped away from his guards long enough to try a daring plot to hijack the plane.

None of the other passengers aboard the Trans World Airlines plane knew of the threat made quietly by John Hamilton Morris to a stewardess:

"I've got dynamite in this bag. And my two buddies have guns. Turn this plane around and fly it to Hermosillo, Mexico."

The stewardess told the pilot. Capt. C. P. Barron changed course. For 20 minutes, while Morris sat between two deputy U.S. marshals, Barron slowly circled southern Nevada.

Then, as Barron sat the Boeing 727 down at McCarran Field, Morris bolted for a door. His guards grabbed and subdued him.

Gun Control Legislation: Some for, Others Opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress, trying to adjourn or at least recess within a month, found itself this holiday weekend in what military men call a meatgrinder. All because of guns.

From one side come vehement demands for more gun control legislation. From another come equally vodiferous demands to legislate against the criminal and leave guns alone.

The emotional issue, with extremists on both sides, has imposed a dilemma on many members of Congress.

Many once-adamant opponents of new gun controls have siwtched sides since the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Other lawmakers have labeled the subsequent public outcry against guns "mass hysteria." Still others have judged the reaction from all quarters extreme and called for cooler heads.

Chances appear slim for President Johnson's most stringent request, but reaonsably good for some kind of controls. Congress is in a mood to act, but the question is how far will it go?

The principal measures are these:

—Johnson's bill to prohibit all mail order sales of guns and ammunition.

—The President's bill to register all firearms and license all gun owners.

—A bill by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., to register all guns and license all gun owners, but give the states a chance to do it first.

Given the best chance of passage is the mail order ban, since it would supplement the mail order prohibition of pistols and revolvers already contained in the anticrime bill signed by the President last month.

Next most likely to pass is Tydings' bill, which could wind up as a companion measure to the extended mail order ban.

President's licensing and registration measure — reqiure all privately owned firearms be registered and all gun owners licensed. If a firearm owner could not meet licensing requirements, his guns would be purchased by the U.S. Treasury at a "reasonable" price. No ammunition could be purchased unless the buyer presented to the seller a registration certificate for the particular gun in which it would be used. If, within two years, a state imposes equally restrictive laws, federal regulations would expire. If not, the state would lose its share of federal wildlife conservation funds.

Tydings' Bill—Require federal registration of firearms in two years if a state has not adopted equally restrictive laws; require federal licensing to purchase guns or ammunition unless states approved equally effective laws. To qualify for a license, an applicant would have to be over 18, not under indictment, not convicted of a felony, nor committed for alcoholism, narcotics addiction or for being mentally incompetent.

The President's Mail Order Ban—Forbid mail order sale of firearms and interstate shipment of ammunition except between dealers or manufacturers; set 21 as as the minimum age for purchase of pistols and revolvers and 18 for the over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns. Limit store purchase to state residents and require dealers to keep strict records of guns and ammunition purchases.

Additionally, to be licensed under this last bill, an applicant for a gun license would have to be fingerprinted and photographed. He would be denied a license if he were too young, suffered from a mental ailment, alcoholism or narcotics addiction, was under criminal indictment, or had been convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, or who was a fugitive from justice.

These bills generally define guns as completed firearms or the "actions" alone, even though no barrel or stock was attached. A barrel by itself would not be classified as a firearm, nor would the stock.

As for ammunition, the bills specify that bullets, cartridge cases, primers and gunpowder would each come under the heading of "ammunition."

Cartridge reloading tools, such as presses and dies and other hand-loading equipment, would not be affected.

Cancer Awards

Legislators to Introduce Resolution

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Three county legislators representing the City of Kingston are pressing for enactment of a county sales tax this year and have indicated the immediate need by filing a resolution seeking adoption at the July 11 session of the County Legislature.

The measure calling for a 2 per cent county sales tax will be introduced by Legislators John Sangaline, Melvin Mones and Wendell Scherer.

This would be contrary to a progress report in April by the Tax Base Study Committee of the Legislature, headed by Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston.

In April the committee reported that studies conducted up to that time would indicate that the commitee will recommend adoption of a 2 per cent sales tax to become effective next year.

The majority report of the committee said the sales tax would mean revenues to the county of between $4 million and $4½ million per year and noted this is a substantial sum when compared with the 1968 general tax levy of $7,685,000, all charged against the real property in the county.

The report recommended that the Legislature go forward with plans to implement a county-wide sales and use tax after further study and evaluation.

The committee justified the need for a sales tax in a detailed analysis of the currrent budget as well as anticipated county expenditures in the 1969 and 1970 bpdgets because of mandated capital improvements. The study listed the need for a new county jail, a new county infirmary, growth and expansion of the Community College, a county airport, and other county needs. The report also noted that general operating costs of the county will continue to rise because of anticipated increases in salaries, social services, highway improvement and other essential services.

The Tax Base Study Committee in addition to Raichle includes Mones, Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner, Republicans, 11th District; Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston; C. Freeman Lasher, R-Saugerties, and Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District.

The resolution to be introduced July 11 notes that owners of real property are no longer able to bear the increased burden imposed by the annual raise in real property taxes.

At the December 14 meeting the resolution introduced by Sangaline was referred to committee by a vote of 28 to 3.

Kingston's 2 per cent sales tax levy went into effect March 1 placing the merchants and businessmen in the city at a disadvantage. Kingston this week received its first quarterly payment of $80,000 from the state.

News Comes Late

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet public learned an America jet airliner had been forced down by Soviet fighters in the Kurile Islands in a Tass news agency report distributed Thursday night which said the Soviets had filed an official protest because of a violation of Soviet air space.

Oneonta Boy, 16, Improves; Liver Transplant Operation

BOSTON (AP) — A 16-year-old boy from Oneonta, N.Y., who underwent a liver transplant operation shows "every evidence of recovery," says a member of the eight-man medical team that replaced the youth's liver with that of a 12-year-old boy killed in an accident.

What he had was not curable or receptive by normal surgical means," Dr. Allen Birtch told a reporter.

Gorence entered Peter Bent Brigham Hospital June 3 and underwent the transplantation June 17.

The donor was identified as a 12-year-old boy who had suffered fatal head injuries in an automobile accident.

"Convalescence is not a simple matter," Birtch said Thursday night. He added, however, that Gorence "has done well so far and shows every evidence of recovery."

Birtch said the eight-hour operation was accomplished through techniques developed in the last six to eight months.

Another liver-transplant operation was performed at Peter Bent Brigham in 1963, before the development of antilymphocyte serum, which was used to help suppress the rejection mechanism of Gorence's body.

The other patient died after 11 days, Birtch said.

Gorence is expected to remain hospitalized for at least two months.

The youth's father, John, a state trooper, died in 1966 of injuries suffered in a plane crash His mother, Mrs. John Knapp, has remarried.

The family said the youth was knocked unconscious while playing basketball for Manlius Military Academy, near Syracuse, last February. It was believed at first, the family said, that he had suffered a spleen injury. An operation revealed the cancer, however.

Birtch said he believes there have been about a dozen liver transplantations performed in this country.

Dinner on July 14th To Launch Dr. Gorman Bid

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman's campaign for election to the state assembly will be officially launched on Sunday, July 14, by a bi-partitsan area group which calls itself "Friends for the Election of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman to the New York State Assembly."

The Democratic candidate will be guest of honor at a buffet supper at 6 p. m. at the Walnut Grove on Field Court in Kingston. The committee emphasized that this will be an informal funds-raising affair with music and no speakers.

A spokesman for the newly-formed committee said the event will attract many of Dr. Gorman's friends and supporters from all walks of life and political affiliations.

"We have the outstanding candidate for the New York State Assembly in Dr. Gorman," a committee statement said. "Despite the exhaustive schedule imposed upon him as a successful surgeon, he still finds time to devote his energy to the political needs of Ulster County. He reserves bipartisan support and we are confident he will get it."

Deadline for reservations is July 10, but tickets may be purchased at the door. Heading the buffet committee are: Helen Fisher of Port Ewen; and Mary Fisher, Peggy Cline, Florence Crosby and Rose Hogan, all of Kingston.

Valley Crops Hurt by Rain

New Paltz Supervisor Anthony Moriello claimed that weather conditions have seriously hurt crops throughout the Hudson Valley region.

"The steady rains have really hurt the cherry crop," said the New Paltz Republican, adding that the rain that fell in June meant that it was too much for the cherries to absorb.

Moriello also claimed that "some corn was hurt," by certain low areas of fields being flooded.

"The corn on higher ground is still doing well however," he declared.

The supervisor and crop grower went on to say that there has been a "large apple drop since bloom time," and that when the bloom had reached its peak, overcast skies, cold and rainy weather conditions effected the pollination which caused many apples to drop from their limbs.

He also said that there will be a "fairly light crop of peaches this year."

Because of the adverse weather conditions, prices are expected to be up, predicted Moriello, adding that the generally bad weather reached throughout "the whole Hudson Valley region."

City Police Give Summonses

Kingston police were busy during the holiday issuing summonses to violators of the vehicle and traffic law and local ordinances relating to motor vehicle operation. Harold Decker, 22, of Route 209, Accord, was cited for passing a flashing red light, driving without a license and having a mutilated registration certificate. John F. Lalima, 20, of 72 Groff Street, was booked for passing a red light, speeding and having a defective muffler on his car. Dale Brown, 20, of 68 Emerick Street, was summoned for failure to produce his license or registration and having no rear brake light on his motorcycle, according to the police blotter.

Constructive Investment

The Rondout Neighborhood Center, Edward Brown director, has carried out a commendable project in placing young people in local industries this summer. We are happy to have this opportunity to express our profound appreciation to the director, the agency and the local business interests which cooperated in making the jobs available.

There are still approximately 20 more young people seeking employment for the summer months. Anyone desirous of participating in this worthwhile civic endeavor may contact the Neighborhood Center, 58 Broadway, phone 331-9464.

The program has not only proved beneficial to the young people but also to employers and the entire community. All told, it is a constructive investment.

Fortas for Chief Justice

President Johnson's nomination of Justice Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice of the United States is sure to create one of the greatest controversies in the history of the court.

The argument will be two-pronged. First, despite the fact that he has been on the high bench for nearly three years, Fortas still is regarded as the personal confident of the President. Also, his reputation in the law was made as a government counsel and, since entering private practice, as a counsel to those doing business with the government.

The discussion also will be political. Conservatives of both major parties objected as soon as Chief Justice Earl Warrens' resignation was announced and before his successor was made known. The objection was raised that Warren was bowing out at this time to prevent a successor, possibly Republican Richard M. Nixon, from appointing a new Chief Justice.

As Gov. Ronald Reagan of California put it, "Warren had no right to choose which President he thinks should dominate the Supreme Court for the next 20 years." He was referring to the report that Warren resigned at this particular time mainly so that Johnson could name his successor.

By naming Fortas, Johnson confirmed the worst fears of the conservatives, for Fortas preserves the liberal tinge of the high court as established under Warren.

Coming so late in the 90th Congress, and with the national political conventions weeks away, the Senate may find it inconvenient to move to confirm now. They may wait before taking such a serious step as to pass on the head of the judicial system.

Wholesome Meat Act

The wholesome meat act, passed last December by Congress, was designed to upgrade to Federal standards meat procesed for interstate distribution. These meats accounted for 15 per cent of all the meat slaughtered and 25 per cent of the processed meat in the country.

The first comprehensive report on the act of officials of the Department of Agriculture indicates that the law was very much needed

Forty to fifty plants throughout the country have closed. Four were closed under the emergency section permitting shutdowns if a plant was found to be endangering the public health. Two closed voluntarily after they were told to clean up or close down. They elected to close because they did not meet federal standards for cleanliness and the production of wholesome meat without large expenditures of money.

The law is designed to bring under Federal standards 15,000 plants that have been subject only to state and local laws. Matching federal grants are authorized to set up inspection systems for interstate plants equal to federal standards. No state has indicated it will accept federal regulation. Rather, the states are revising laws and regulations of their own as a means of gaining federal approval—and grants. If a state fails to act, the Federal Government will step in and impose federal inspection.

This is one of the more needed laws of recent years. Rep. Neal Smith, Iowa Democrat, said meat processors in some states had adulterated luncheon meats, hamburger and sausage with up to 35 per cent water, flour, chopped hides and inferior material, defrauding consumers of millions of dollars. Farmers lost markets for tons of meat.

As federal standards are introduced, these dangerous practices should cease and all meat sold consumers should meet the standards of cleanliness and wholesomeness.

The Poor People's Campaign had a permit to erect and live in Resurrection City in Washington that had an expiration date. When they paid no attention to the expiration, police sized the shantytown and evicted its tenants. It was a sad end for a campaign that really never got off the ground. The timing was wrong during war and economy.

"Lie Down, You're Supposed to Be Sick!"

David Lawrence Says

National Elections Not Decided by 'Regulars'

WASHINGTON — Perhaps the most significant fact which is reflected in virtually all the public - opinion polls that have been published recently is that there is no majority for either the Republican or the Democratic party as such. Wherever more than 51 per cent is attained by any presidential aspirant in a poll, it is usually with the aid of a huge segment of what now is being called the "independent" vote.

What this means, in effect, is that a large number of voters do not consider themselves regular members of any party, but indicate only their preferences for individual candidates or for groups who favor a specific position on a public question. The day of the party "regular" is passing.

The latest Gallup Poll, for instance, asks this question: "In politics, as of today, do you consider yourself a Republican, Democrat or Independent?" Twenty - seven per cent classed themselves as Independents.

Only once since 1940 has either party gotten more than 50 per cent in this poll. That was in 1964, when the Democrats were given 53 per cent. Again and again, a bloc of independent votes has been required for either party to get a majority.

These weaknesses in party strength as such are not explained by any of the polls. The voters today seem naturally inclined to pick a candidate, rather than a party, though there is in both the Democratic and Republican parties a substantial segment of what might be called "regulars." But it is apparent that national elections are not being decided or likely to be by those who have traditionally adhered to a particular ticket.

Perhaps the main reason for this lack of continuous allegiance is the vagueness as well as the fluctuations of party policies, whether on the federal, state or local level. It is much harder today to define a Republican for a Democrat than it was a few decades ago. Personalities and specific issue,, rather than parties, are likely to mobilize the voters so as to constitute a majority.

Take, for instance, the Vietnam war. Those who are opposed to it do not come from any one party. Yet, in many cases, the war is the dominating influence informing the decision as to how the ballots of the mother and father of boys of draft age will be cast. Likewise, the people who feel that governmental authorities have been weak - kneed or vacillating and have allowed crime to grow to unprecedented figures are likely to disregard the party label for which they have expressed a preference in past elections. The voters are going to express instead their resentment against officeholders who have failed to maintain order.

Unemployment — which, of course, often can influence elections — happens at the moment to be at a very low figure. In times of depression, the administration which unwillingly brings a downward trend in employment usually gets punished at the polls. There will, of course, be a resentment by housewives against the high cost of living. But emotional issues are sometimes even more questions. While building up a large vote, the latter can be secondary as compared with the Vietnam war or safety in the streets.

The latest Gallup Poll confirms a trend that has been growing for many years — namely, that neither the Republican party nor the Democratic party has defined its prospective programs or offered the voters a clear enough picture of the policies which are to be pursued in the event of victory at the polls.

The chances are that the "resentment" vote, which reflects a protest for many reasons against the party in office, is going to decide this year's election. Many of the voters will still insist that they are Republicans or Democrats, as the case may be, but that they are voting for or against the men who have been nominated for the presidency. The capability of the individual and the appeal of policies he unequivocally proposes to carry out will be the deciding factor, rather than whether he happens to be a Republican or a Democrat.

This is really a trend toward a "balance of power" by the independent voters of America who disregard party preferences of the past. They favor the nominee whose party not only has come out with a clear - cut platform but which has named a candidate whom the majority of voters in the country believe will be a courageous leader and will conscientiously endeavor to carry out the principles of that platform.

Contests for the Presidency

The 'Big Fix' Is a Political Myth

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Had Sen. Robert F. Kennedy lived to fight on in 1968, the chances are that the Democratic convention in Chicago this August would have given the nation its most memorable political confrontation since the Eisenhower - Taft struggle of 1952.

It is no fault of the democratic process that an assassin's bullet struck Kennedy from the battle scene and left the Democratic party with what today looks like a one-sided contest between Vice President Humphrey and Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota.

There is nothing wrong with the Democratic nomination struggle that could not have been altered by the continued presence of Kennedy in the race or by the greater viability of McCarthy as a rival.

The St. Louis Post Dispatch talks as if McCarthy were really the nation's Democratic choice today and only an assemblage of wicked machine plotters is keeping him from nomination.

But McCarthy tested himself against truly visible rivals in eight primaries this spring and lost six of the eight. His losing per centages ranged from 42 per cent down to 20. One of his losses was against a write - in showing by President Johnson in New Hampshire.

McCarthy did win two unopposed primaries in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, but there is no way of knowing how he would have done against competition.

Furthermore, he recently made significant delegate gains in New York's June 18 primary, but no preference contest was involved and it was also clear that he had benefitted — with almost no campaign effort — from the political vacuum created by the death of Robert Kennedy.

The fact that politicians across the country were nevertheless much impressed with McCarthy's New York showing is good evidence that he would be a far more serious rival to Humphrey today had he won instead of losing most of the primaries he entered. The Post Dispatch notwithstanding defeat is not customarily accepted in this country as stirring proof of popularity.

If it be argued that Humphrey has not even tested himself in the fires of the primaries, the obvious answer is that he is the natural and expected inheritor of basic loyalist sentiment which would have clung to the President had he made the race, that he is the gainer from long - proven party service, that he is the evident choice of southern loyalist Democrats without a single vote needed to show it.

All these things are facts of normal political life. Yet Humphrey could be upset by any political rival with support from enough interested Americans to prove the superior viability and popularity of another choice.

Kennedy is dead and cannot make the test. McCarthy, though badly wounded by defeat, still has the op- "big fix" theory, delegates are not immune to popular pressures (nor are their leaders), and in 1968 there are 1,100 more of them than there were just eight years ago when John Kennedy was nominated.

As for the Republicans, 1968 has many of the earmarks of 1964. Nixon and his able lieutenants have used the process as it was intended to be used. They have worked hard to get delegates in state conventions. Nixon has run up impressive votes in half a dozen primaries, and it is no fault of his that Michigan's Gov. George Romney faltered at the outset.

Much blame, some of it deserved, falls on New York s Governor Rockefeller for backing and filling and getting into the race too late, after the primaries.

But many, many of the GOP governors and other moderates who said they wanted Rockefeller have not swung to his support nor helped to build popular backing for him. Not having used the "system," they hardly dare complain that it is not working to give us the "most popular" GOP candidate.

Drew Pearson Says

House in Halfhearted Gesture At Tackling Tax Reforms

WASHINGTON — Now that Congress has increased taxes, House leaders have grudgingly agreed to take up the tax reforms which could have made a tax boost unnecessary.

Speaker John McCormack, D - Mass., has promised liberals that the House Ways and Means Committee, at long last, will start hearings. Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D - Ark., though generally opposed to closing the tax loopholes, has agreed not to oppose the hearings.

However, here is the unpublicized gimmick. After the tax reformers have presented their case, Congress will shut down without taking action. For Congressional leaders have no real intention of plugging the tax loopholes.

If they are ever plugged, income taxes could be slashed instead of raised.

Rep. James J. Howard, D-N. J., put it bluntly during the recent tax debate? "Middle class America has carried this nation on its back for far too long. This House today should be talking about, thinking about, and acting upon a bill for fair taxes, not just more taxes."

Last year, for example, 20 major oil companies rang up a net profit of almost $5 billion while they paid net taxes averaging less than 9 per cent. In past years, the average has been closer to 4 per cent.

The giant of the industry, Standard Oil of New Jersey, collected such fabulous profits in 1966 that it was able to show a net gain of over $1 billion. This is more revenue than most nations collect. Yet the company paid only a 7.3 per cent tax, a smaller percentage than the average scrub woman pays.

From 1962 to 1967, the Atlantic Oil Corporation cleared over $340 million in profits, yet paid no taxes at all. Even more astounding, the Marathon Oil Company, despite a net profit of over $37 million in 1962, not only fialed to pay any taxes that year but actually received a $2.2 million tax credit from the government.

Mafia Vs. Monopoly

Sometimes one hand of the Justice department doesn't let the other hand know what it's doing — at least in Las Vegas.

The Justice Department's Antitrust Division, after a long era of do - nothingism, has suddenly aroused from a comatose condition and slapped an antitrust warning on Howard Hughes against acquiring the Stardust hotel in Las Vegas.

Simultaneously, another branch of the Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has been applauding Howard Hughes fordriving the Mafia out of his hotels in Las Vegas.

The FBI has long pointed to Las Vegas as a serious hotbed for the gambling underworld. I even incurred an embarrassing lawsuit brought by Ed Levinson when the FBI was caught bugging his bedroom and other rooms in his Fremont hotel.

Meanwhile Hughes had given a big assist to the FBI's crime cleanup when he purchased the Sands and the Desert Inn. Immediately after buying them he chased the underworld out. Anyone can now patronize the Sands and the Desert Inn without fear of being duped by the Mafia.

Four months ago, Hughes also signed a preliminary agreement to take over the Stardust, biggest hotel in Las Vegas. There was a hearing by Nevada state officials, who okayed the deal; and Hughes was preparing to sign a contract on July 1 when the other hand of the Justice Department, the Antitrust Division, stepped in with a warning that it might file an antitrust suit. There are a hundred or so hotels in Las Vegas, of which Hughes owns only two. Yet the Justice Department considered acquiring the third to constitute a monopoly.

Note: The Antitrust Division has ignored the attempt by the biggest whiskey company in the world, Seagram, to dominate one of the largest motion picture companies in the world, Metro - Goldyn - Mayer.

Crime Doesn't Pay

Meanwhile Hughes is one broadcaster who has found that you don't have to use televised crime to make profits. After he acquired KLAS - TV in Las Vegas, Hughes began featuring public service and educational programs as against crime and violence.

KLAS is now featuring the CBS college education series, "Sunrise Semester." Hughes also hired Mrs. Fedora Bontempi as director of public affairs and started a daily televised "Our Town" series. It proved so popular that it now goes on both morning and evening.

KLAS also inaugurated "The Religious Dialogue," a recreation directory giving recreation facilities available in southern Nevada, and the "Council of Social Agencies" in which local citizens discuss such problems as juvenile delinquency and gun control. KLAS producers have been meeting with officials of Nevada Southern University and Clark Country schools in order to start an educational program in July.

Local response has been excellent. Viewers seem more interested in educational and community problems than televised crime.

San Francisco's La Guardia

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco is becoming the modern - day Fiorello La Guardia, the little Italian mayor who once ruled New York.

The other day, Alioto, a Catholic, was attending a banquet given by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in San Francisco.

"I've been raised in the shadow of the synagogue across the street from me, and my parish priest has been Rabbi Fine," he said. "Every week I light a candle in the synagogue, and Cyril Magnin lights a candle in my cathedral.

"I suspect that these two candles are the best lighted of any in the city."

7 Programs to Swing Tide Of Viet War in Our Favor

By RAY CROMLEY.
NEA Washington Correspondent

There are seven steps the United States and South Vietnamese governments could take now in South Vietnam that would turn the tide of the war heavily in our favor and spur Ho Chi Minh's negotiators to reach some agreement in Paris.

1 — Inaugurate locally elected school boards for each village in South Vietnam. These boards should have the same power over schools as in the United States.

This system would be somewhat overdecentralized for efficiency. The weakness would be offset by the people's pride in managing their own schools.

2 — Push ahead the timetable for the election of prefectural governors. This is provided for in the constitution but not this early. For psychological reasons this change from appointed to elected governors should take place now. In the several elections held in South Vietnam the people have shown they vote intelligently and responsibly.

3 — Provide for local draft boards, as in the United States.

Again, this would be designed to emphasize to the people that they have a hand in making the decisions which affect their communities.

4 — Turn over to the villages and districts a far heavier responsibility for the levying, collecting and spending of taxes. Arrange that most local tax money be spent locally and under local decision and management on schools, roads, bridges, dams, medical clinics, farm demonstration programs. This has a historical precedent. It fits Vietnamese psychology and early (pre-French traditions.

5 — Open officer schools wide to talented young men of all calsses, reducing educational prerequisites and substituting tough leadership, intelligence, character and aptitude requirements, the resulting breakdown of class rigidity would tear one major Communist selling points to bits. This breakdown in who can be an officer has been started recently on a some what limited scale. It should be expanded. Lack of schooling among potential leaders from the tenant - farmer class can be made up as the young officers move ahead in their careers.

6 — Complete the land reform program. Despite criticisms, successive South Vietnamese governments have taken more effective action than most countries. But to win the confidence of the people it is essential that the government as quickly as possible carry through talked - about plans for making it possible for all tenant farmers to buy the land they farm on credit terms they can afford. The land reform program carried out by General of the Army MacArthur in Japan proved to be a strong stabilizing democratic force.

Care must be taken that the small landowners from whom much of the land will be bought receive a fair price and are given a chance to invest their capital in new ventures, such as small and medium - sized industry.

It would be suicidal to destroy South Vietnam's small but effective middle class. By transferring their capital investment from land to industry, this middle class can stimulate the industry South Vietnam vitally needs for long-range stability.

7 — Step up efforts for training and reorganizing the South Vietnamese army, making it possible for that army to take over the great bulk of the fighting. When this is done, South Vietnamese morale will rise rapidly.

Each of these steps is designed to boost the pride of the South Vietnamese and to provide for grass-roots decision - making that give people the knowledge they are working and fighting for their own communities—not for some faroff bureaucracy. This local pride and local government was the basic strength of the American

By JERRY MCLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N.Y. AP — Peace and harmony just don't seem to suit the Democratic Party in New York State.

Another raucous chapter is unfolding in the continuing rock' - em - sock'em history of the state's Democrats. It involves the grizzled old pros of what Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy sees as the "old politics," plus the newer, young element that struck that mighty blow for the Minnesota senator two weeks ago.

As the McCarthy people see it, their man is entitled to a share of the 67 at - large delegate votes at the national convention somewhat in proportion to his surprising victory margin in the state primary election June 18.

The McCarthy crowd was shooting for something in the neighborhood of 30 votes — to go with the 61 he picked up in the primary when delegates were chosen from congressional districts. In the election, the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy received 29 delegates, Vice Presidnt Hubert H. Humphrey 14, and 19 others were uncommitted.

But when the time came last Friday for the Democratic State Committee's pragmatic members to parcel out the at - large votes, McCarthy wound up with only 15½ - less than one fourth the total available.

The McCarthy supporters bridled at the committee action. Led by Paul O'Dwyer, who shocked regular organization men by winning the U.S. Senate nomination, several hundred McCarthy backers stormed out of the meeting.

Now, in the aftermath of his death, the party appears to have fragmented into a loose collection of political baronies, headed by the big-county leaders of New York City. In the eyes of this crowd, McCarthy doesn't seem to carry much weight.

County leaders, such as Brooklyn's Stanley Steingut, aren't saying so publicly, but they were annoyed and alarmed by the success of the youthful McCarthy backers.

Yet, the organization profes sionals apparently do not think McCarthy's victory stands as anything more than a political oddity in a cataclysmic year.

Generally, they see Humphrey as the eventual winner and most of them want to be identified with a winner.

This attitude, and the concomitant denial to McCarthy of the 30 plus at - large votes he sought, have embittered the McCarthy people even further against the "old politics" of the regular organization.

THE LAST AMERICAN

by Don Oakley and John Lane

2 Out of Africa

Do not obtain your slaves from Britain, because they are so stupid and so utterly incapable of being taught.

—Cicero

American Negroes, with an awakened interest in their African heritage, are rediscovering cultures that history has ignored.

While nothing comparable to the great civilizations of ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, Greece or China ever emerged in Africa, not all of that continent languished in primitive savagery before the coming of the white man.

Medieval empires like Ghana, Mali and Songhay, with its famed city of Timbuctoo, exceeded those of contemporary Europe in size and rivaled them in administrative organization. European and African kings exchanged diplomatic courtesies. High artistic skills were practiced by the peoples of Benin and Ife.

From the beginning, slavery followed the contact of Africans with other peoples—and with each other. At a time when much of the population of the ancient world was slaves, color was no sign either of servility or superiority. The enslavement of whites along with blacks continued into the Christian Era.

The Moslems dominated the African trade in the Middle Ages, but in the 1400s, the Portuguese began transporting Negroes to the Iberian Peninsula. Descendants of these slaves accompanied the Spaniards to the New World.

Thirty of them stood with Balboa on the shores of the Pacific; 300 of them helped Cortez conquer Mexico. The first "white men" ever seen by many Indians were Negroes.

One of them, Estevanico, discovered Arizona and New Mexico in 1538. Three centuries later, the Negro-French explorer Jean Baptiste Pointe du Sable was to found Chicago.

It was the peculiar disposition of the Indians to die when enslaved that was responsible for the greatest migration of human beings in history.

In 1517, fearful that the Indians would soon be killed off, the missionary Bishop Bartholome de las Casas recommended that Negroes be imported from Africa, a solution whose evil he later realized.

So successful was the experiment—black men were found to make equally as good slaves as white men historically had—that the red man, no longer needed, was wiped out all the more quickly.

Majority Reject Notion U.S. Is 'Sick Society'

PRINCETON, N. J., July 2 —A majority of the American people reject the notion that the U.S. is a "sick society," but as many as one-third do hold such a view.

Strangely, the two groups in the U.S. most inclined to view the nation as a "sick society" are widely disparate ones—Negroes on the one hand, supporters of presidential candidate George Wallace on the other.

Negroes by the ratio of about 8-to-7 say this country is "sick," but white people by the ratio of more than 3-to-2 hold the opposite opinion.

Views as Related To Candidate Support

Backers of Vice President Hubert Humphrey are somewhat less inclined to view this country as "sick" than are Nixon supporters, and considerably less so than are Wallace backers.

'Can't Judge Nation By Actions of Individuals'

"You can't judge a nation by a few individuals who make headlines," said a 39-year-old California resident, echoing the sentiments of many others who feel ours is not a "sick" society.

Here is a summary of reasons given by the proportion (58 pct.) who hold the majority opinion: (1) only a small number are to blame; (2) too much publicity is given crime; (3) society today is no worse than in the earlier years; (4) the U.S. is no worse in this respect than other countries; (5) our society is not "sick," but confused.

'Too Many Brutal Things Happening'

Those who hold the minority point of view about society frequently comment along the lines of a young Cleveland housewife:

Those who think we are "sick" offer reasons of two types, causes and symptoms, here summarized: (1) the amount of rioting, killing, crime; (2) lack of sufficient law enforcement; (3) laxity of the courts; (4) people are too selfish; (5) not enough individual initiative; (6) poor upbringing; (7) a breakdown in morals; (8) a turning away from religion.

Education Is Big Factor in Responses

Little difference is found between the views of men and women, by age groups, or between churchgoers and non-churchgoers.

Marked differences, on the other hand, are found in terms of educational background and race.

The following question was asked of a total of 1,538 adults in the latest national survey conducted between June 15 and 18:

"Some people are calling this country a 'sick society.' Do you agree or disagree with them?"

Here are the national results and findings by key groups:

Public Has Long Favored Lowering Voting Age, Stricter Gun Laws

Two proposals very much in the headlines — lowering the voting age to 18 and stricter gun controls — have been backed by the public for many years.

Majority support for lowering the voting age to 18 has been recorded in regular surveys since 1953. The most recent report shows 2 out of 3 in favor of this proposal.

Majority backing for a law requiring a person to get a police permit before he or she could buy a gun has been recorded since 1959, when the question was first asked.

Governor's Support Weakening

Dick Builds on Rocky Ground

By BRUCE BIOSSAT.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — NEA's third nationwide Republican delegate count shows that front - running Richard M. Nixon is getting a strong new flow of votes toward him which, at this late stage of the race, presidential challenger Nelson Rockefeller will be hard pressed to reverse.

With just a month to go before the GOP national convention opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach, Nixon now has an indicated total of 753 votes — or 86 more than the 677 needed to make him his party's 1968 presidential nominee.

New York's Gov. Rockefeller, by contrast, is shown in NEA's newest survey, completed at the end of June, to have some 370 delegate votes — roughly 300 short of what he needs to win.

The significance of the new figures is that, first, they give Nixon important new momentum at the very moment Rockefeller is making a maximum effort with the delegates and with the public, both in person and through costly advertising programs, to cut into Nixon's long - indicated hunge lead.

Secondly, Nixon's gains of 44 delegates since the last poll, which showed him at 709, have come at the direct expense of Rockefeller, whose c n total in late May stood a a somewhat more heartening 414.

It is bad enough for a challenger to be standing still so close to decision time. To be losing ground is to court the flood tide and be finally engulfed.

At Turning Point

Rockefeller stands at the turning point. Unless he and his media advertising campaign catch on very quickly and this is reflected in stunning advances for him in the national public opinion polls, he will have little chance to reverse the headlong Nixon trend.

Nixon's May - June gains have come from varied sources. An extra 10 votes were squeezed from Mississippi when support for Gov. Ronald Reagan was virtually snuffed out. Maryland's Gov. Spiro Agnew, angered at Rocky for leaving him out on a limb in March, turned toward Nixon and todayy could deliver him 20 of 16 votes. In earlier days, 22 of those 26 were Rockefeller's.

A month ago, Nixon forces may have become concerned at evidences, such as NEA's second GOP delegate count, that the former vice president, with all his indicated immense lead, was showing almost no new forward speed.

Pressure has been applied at state conventions throughout recent weeks. In Colorado, Washington, Montana, New Mexico and other spots, maximum Nixon strength was extracted and Rocky was correspondingly sliced out of the action.

Nixon, in other words, has been getting even more delegates out of areas where he was already very strong.

Loses Earlier Gains.

Worse still from Rockefeller's viewpoint, he has not been able to get and hold all the strength previous counts suggested should be his. Having fallen back earlier in promising Minnesota, he now has lost mid-season gains in Iowa and Illinois.

When Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania declared for him at Tulsa in mid - June, it became plain that Rocky's one - time 59 - 9 edge in that 64 - member delegation had sagged to 50 - 14. He faded off a point or two in place after place even as he was campaigning his hardest and looking more delegates in the eye than he had ever done in his life.

This reporter's cross - country telephone survey of the 50 states disclosed often that where Rockefeller appeared he usually did well, made a good impression on delegates when closeted with them, but changed few votes his way.

Sometimes, persuasive private polls have been produced to indicate that Rockefeller would run much better than Nixon against the chief democratic prospects in particular states like Minnesota or Connecticut. But these seem to have had limited effect.

National Polls

The broader national polls show Rocky with slimmer advantage over Nixon when measured against the Democrats. When the margin of error and the undecided factor are thrown into the balance, puzzled politicians wonder how much real difference exists in the voting pull of the two contenders.

It is widely agreed among politicians and observers that only a very sharp national poll superiority for Rockefeller over Nixon in the remaining weeks before Miami Beach could seriously affect the developing sweep to Nixon.

Since Rocky's personal campaigning appears to have produced no such result, his managers now are banking either on a smashing impact from his advertising campaign or some unforeseen event (most hopefully a grave error of some sort by Nixon) to reverse the delegate currents and put Rockefeller s late - blooming effort on a high course to the 1968 nonination. But his chances are very, very dim.

Timely Quotes

The federal government should not become the employer of the last resort. It should, rather, act to generate the maximum number of jobs for the disadvantaged in both the public and private sectors.

Seeks New Cigaret Warning

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN...
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Wilbur Cohen, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, will ask Congress to strengthen the warning label on cigaret packages.

At present it reads: Caution —Cigaret Smoking May Be Hazardous To Your Health.

Cohen will propose this new working: Warning — cigaret smoking is hazardous to your health and may cause cancer and other diseases.

Cohen will also seek legislation requiring that the warning be carried in cigaret ads and on television commercials as well as on the cigaret packages.

The secretary feels that the strengthened warning is essential because the present modified wording has not properly alerted the public to the dangers of cigaret smoking.

In Cohen's view, the situation cannot be overstressed, considering a new report made public today on "The Health Consequences of Smoking."

This report, issued by Surgeon General William H. Stewart, is a supplement of his 1967 report on smoking and it provides fresh evidence on the link between smoking and death.

Here are some of its highlights:

— Life expectancy among young men is reduced by an average of four years in light smokers — those who smoke less than one - half pack per day.

— Cigaret smoking can contribute to the development of cardiovascular (heart) disease and particularly to death from coronary heart disease.

— Additional evidence substantiates the previous findings that cigaret smoking is the main cause of lung cancer in men.

— Cigaret smoking is causally related to lung cancer in women but accounts for a smaller proportion of cases than in men.

—Smoking is a significant factor in the causation of cancer of the larynx and in the development of cancer of the oral cavity.

Paltz Program Ending On Migrant Aides

A four-week workshop to train women as aides in classrooms and day care centers serving area migrant children will be concluded at the State University College in New Paltz today.

Some 17 certificates will be awarded to participants from southern Ulster County communities.

The training, the first of its kind in the area, was sponsored by the New York State Education Department, division of elementary education, at the suggestion of the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistant Committee, headed by Harley Taylor.

Of the 17 women, all of whom have come from migrant families, a number will immediately begin work in summer school classes and day care centers.

Two other pilot programs for training women as aides are being conducted in the state, but in those programs both teachers and aides are attending the classes.

The women were given instruction in child psychology, classroom procedures, and educational concepts. The New Paltz program also provided the women with an opportunity to observe classrooms in Highland, New Paltz and Newburgh.

The workshop also gave training in operating audio-visual equipment, such as projectors and tape recorders, and in using school machines such as mimeographs and ditto machines.

Other work centered around playground supervision, arts and crafts, record keeping, and parent-school relations.

Dr. Palmer, director of elementary education at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, said that the program was funded through the state and federal government.

Dr. Palmer declared that migrant children face special problems because of an absence of a "stable home life.'

The lack of such home life, according to the child specialist, creates "identity problems."

"The migrant child requires enough space because of the crampled quarters he has known throughout most of his life," the specialist said, adding that a good child care center has ample outdoor as well as indoor space.

In addition, they must have been residents of New York State when they entered active duty in the armed forces and are now, and continue to be, residents.

Veterans must have been discharged under honorable conditions and meet the New York State standards for blindness. The annuity is paid on a monthly basis.

Veterans of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the China Relief Expedition, World War I, World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam Conflict, are eligible to apply for the annuity. Blindness need not be service connected, according to Charles L. Culver, New York State Veteran Counselor, New York State Division of Veteran Affairs and John B. Tyler, director, Ulster County Veterans Service Agency.

The agency, which is located in the County Office Building, Kingston, is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. during July and August.

The agency answers questions such as:

A—If a service member dies on active duty his unremarried widow will be eligible for commissary and exchange privileges. The widow and her children will also be entitled to medicare where uniformed services medical facilities are available or in civilian hospitals.

Q—If I receive a one month early out to attend college, what portion of that month must I serve on active duty to receive VA educational benefits for that month? I am on a three-year enlistment and I plan to apply for a one month early out.

A—Any portion. This is how it works: GI Bill educational entitlement is computed on the basis of one month for each calendar year or fraction thereof.

Adie Louise West of 27 South Front Street, was accused of the fatal stabbing of Jeff E. Wilkerson of the same adress. She was arraigned Thursday night before City Judge Harold Lieberman. A report of Police Detective Sergeant Julius Brenner, who investigated with Patrolmen Larry Walker, Louis Conte and Joel Hollenbeck, the defendant and her fried had engaged in an argument yesterday afternon. She required treatment at the Columbia Memorial Hospital for facial cuts received during the quarrel.

Police said Wilkerson was sitting on the front porch of the house where the two resided, when the woman appeared with a carving knife and stabbed Wilkerson in the back of his neck. He died almost instantly.

Acording to authorities, several people were standing on the sidewalk near the stabbing scene at the time of the incident.

treated at Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Two youths were injured at 3:30 a. m. Thursday when the car in which they were riding went out of control and overturned off Route 9W about one mile north of Route 209 in the Town of Ulster. State Police Sergeant Donald Paulson said the vehicle was driven by Richard E. Davis Jr., 18, of 1018 Decker Street.

Davis was cited by Trooper R. O. Rieseberg for driving at a speed too fast for conditions, failure to keep to the right and operating a motor vehicle with unsafe tires. Davis sustained lacerations of the mouth, abrasions and injuries of the wrists. A passenger, Edward Bailey, 16, of 1061 Decker Street, received multiple contusions and abrasions. Both were treated at Kingston Hospital.

Trooper Rieseberg reported the car was traveling north when it went out of control, veered off the left side of the highway, slammed into a utility pole and guard rails, overturned and continued on after righting itself and then hit another pole and overturned on its side.

A two-car collision at Church Street and Fiero Road, Town of Saugerties, at 10:45 a. m. Thursday, injured two persons and resulted in a summons issued to one driver for driving while his license was revoked. Kingston State Police reported the charge was lodged by Trooper James Fitzgerald against Daniel E. Sinsapaugh, 47, of Malden.

The other vehicle was driven by Anthony J. Corrado, 18, of Cementon, who received injuries of the knees. Sandra Van Doierdan, 18, of Malden, a passenger in Sinsapaugh's car, sustained lacerations of the head and face. The injured were treated at Benedictine Hospital, according to Sergeant Paulson.

A car driven by Robert Balajka, 34, of New York City, went out of control on a left curve on Route 81 in the Town of Greenville at 2:45 a. m. yesterday and hit a barn and tree, according to Leeds State Police.

Balajka sustained lacerations of the head and possible rib fractures. A passenger, Paul Brogan, of Norton Hill received lacerations and abrasions. Both were treated at the Greene County Memorial Hospital, troopers said.

Mountain Hunt Results in Fractured Leg

While assisting in a search for a reported missing plane on Fur Mountain near Oliverea Thursday afternoon, Fire Chief Alfred Eigner Jr., of Big Indian Fire Department, fell and suffered a fracture of the right leg, accordiing to Deputy Sheriff Robert Grennie.

The deputy, who investigated a report that a fuselage of a plane had been spotted on the mountain with Undersheriff Jerry Schwartz, and volunteer firemen, said William Andrews notified the sheriff's office at 12:20 p. m. that he heard a report of a plane missing and later he saw what appeared to be the wreckage of an aircraft on Fur Mountain.

Schwartz and Grennie investigated and volunteer firemen from the Big Indian area went to the scene. They entered the wood to search. Grennie said that he used binoculars to view the area and he saw what appeared to be a yellow object on the mountain. Closer scrutiny of the object disclosed it probably for a fallen birch tree.

According to the deputy sheriff, Town Justice Edwin France got his private plane and flew over the mountain. He later reported that the object, which at first was believed to have been a plane fuselage, was a birch tree, the leaves of which had turned brown.

Edward Turk, using a walkie-talkie learned that Chief Eigner had been injured when he fell on the mountainside. Grennie said the injured volunteer firefighter, was assisted out of the woods and taken to the hospital in Margaretville, where he was treated for a broken leg and admitted for further treatment and observation. State Trooper Ivan Eigner of Margaretville, assisted in the investigation and search, with Charles Heddon and others, who helped the injured fireman from the wooded area.

Kiwanis Sale Closes July 11

The annual sale of dozens of red roses, conducted by the Kingston Kiwanis Club for the benefit of its Boys and Girls activities and the Scholarship Fund, will close on July 11.

This was announced today by Harry R. Hines, vice president of the Kiwanis club and chairman of the annual rose sale.

In past years the Kiwanis Club has realized approximately $1,400 from the sale of the red roses—the sale continuing for a month with the roses delivered in September.

Chairman Hines indicated that receipts to date are about half of the normal return, and he emphasized that the final report due on July 11 should "tell the story of whether the 1968 rose sale will surpass that of other years."

Antiwar Protests Overseas on the 4th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans celebrated their nation's 192nd birthday Thursday with parades and pageants, picnics and political oratory. Abroad the anniversary was marked by antiwar protests in Sweden and Australia.

Fourth of July festivities included quiet family gatherings, tradition-steeped parades, softball games on village greens and hundreds of fireworks displays.

For some there were thoughts of loved ones fighting half way around the world in a bitter and controversial war.

A small group of American military defectors from that conflict briefly interrupted a celebration on the grounds of the U.S. Embassy in Stockholm, shouting "American imperialism" and "America out of Vietnam."

In Melbourne, Australia, about 2,000 demonstrators protesting American involvement in Vietnam smashed every window in the front of the U.S. consulate, painted its steps red and battled for an hour with police.

Halt Prisoners In Escape Try From Cook Jail

CHICAGO (UPI)—Five prisoners overpowered two guards in a gun tower at the Cook County jail but were recaptured early today.

One of the prisoners was taken to county hospital for treatment of injuries, jail police said, and the other four were returned to their cells.

Jail police indicated the two guards were not injured.

Find Marijuana, Rockland Pair Is Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI) —A Haverstraw, N.Y., couple was arrested at Kennedy Airport early Thursday after they claimed two suitcases which police said contained more than 13 pounds of marijuana.

The couple, Richard Martinez 28, and his wife, Diana, 27, both of 94 Westside Ave., in the Rockland County community, were seized by narcotics detectives at 1 a.m. at the United Airlines cargo building.

A spokesman for the narcotics bureau said Mrs. Martinez identified herself to a clerk as the owner of the suitcases. Two detectives armed with a search warrant seized the pair as they entered their waiting car, the spokesman said.

Soviet-U.S. Cordiality Marks Independence Day

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — It could only have been Moscow, only on the fourth of July.

A Red army general with a medal spangled chest munched a hot dog and chatted with an American housewife. The mayor of Moscow stepped across the U.S. ambassador's lawn to a John Philip Sousa march.

American ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson had invited 1,200 persons to the traditional party Thursday. To the surprise of many, most showed up.

The Russians poured onto the lawn of Spasso House, the pre-Bolshevik revolution mansion that U.S. envoys call home in Moscow. Writer Vladimir Dudintsev stepped among the booths in red, white and blue bunting, swooped up a glass of champagne and happily accepted congratulations on a second edition of his novel "Not by Bread Alone," a startling attack on Stalin era bureacrats.

Composer Aram Khachaturin come and sampled the hot dogs and ice cream sticks Thompson had flown in from America. An observer remarked the "Nyet set" had come. Hardly.

It was the most impressive turnout of Russians to a U.S. affair in Moscow since the onset of the second cold war. It marked a new cordiality symbolized by Soviet-American cooperation on disarmament. But the Kremlin powers stayed away.

The first Deputy Foreign Minister Vasili Kuznetsov appeared. So did Mayor Vladimir Promyslov, plus three generals including Col. Gen. Ivan Koesnikov, Moscow's military commandant. They ate hot dogs and were very polite about the American staple.

In the midest of the party, 35-year-old poet Andrei Voznesesnky—a writer who once had a memorable verbal duel with Khrushchev the censor—skipped up to the ambassador's house and into the library.

He sat down and penned a poem about the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He asked Thompson to give it to the assassinated brothers' widows. Deeply touched, Thompson promised delivery.

Beyond the lawn however a more normal Moscow went about its tasks. The government newspaper Izvestia told readers to expect a new Communist offensive against Saigon "in a few days." Its Hanoi correspondent wrote, "for the American aggressor the rainy season looks like a nightmare."

STATE POLICE FROGMEN—Three members of Troop C are the newest New York State Police to qualify as frogmen at a school for novice scuba divers which had its final session for field training at Lake George recently. They are (l-r) Troopers Richard T. Bobnick, Joseph W. Mackey and Robert M. Malloy. Bobnic joined the state police in 1966. He lives at Richfield Springs with his wife and three children. Molloy, a trooper since 1964, lives in Palenville with his wife and their one child. Mackey, who entered the state police in 1963, is married and has two children. He lives at Port Jervis. The new divers now join previously qualified members of the Troop C diving team in underwater assignments for the recovery of criminal evidence and the victims of drowning accidents. During the final week at Lake George the troopers dove to a depth of 150 feet, trained under night conditions and participated in a "free ascent" from a depth of 80 feet without the use of air tanks.

Hanoi 'Anyone Except Devil'-- A Prospective List of Visitors

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)— When Hanoi's negotiators in Paris said they would meet with "anyone except the devil," they betrayed considerable ignorance of U.S. presidential candidates.

Either that or they were planning to give up having tea with Averell Harriman anyway. There couldn't be time hereafter for both. Today we consider some of the visits they might expect.

"How do you do, gentlemen," McCarthy nods. "I have journeyed these many miles to acquire your point of view on the differences which divide us and the dreams which unite us. Let me say I am pleased (faint smile here) that you did not invite the devil: He's far too busy signing bills in the White House.

"I share Pericles' visions of world brotherhood and political reform. I go further: I propose a world of scholars, governed by poets; our enmities forgotten in a new golden age of love and youth and beauty."

Negotiator Confused

One Hanoi negotiator asked the other: "Did we invite Pericles?"

Enter Nelson Rockefeller, with a phalanx of ad writers and television producers.

"Hi, fellows," Rockefeller says, and shakes hands all around. "You fellows know my views on the war because everyone knows my views on the war which is more than anyone can say for my opponent.

"I feel the South Vietnamese should be fighting you instead of our fighting you. You fellows know we can't just quit fighting. But I'm sure we can work something out."

Enter Hubert Humphrey, accompanied by Democratic party leaders, county chairmen and Lester Maddox.

"Hello, men," he beams. "First, let me say that as vice president I am a member of the team; as president I will be my own boss.

"Let me make clear that my country is not divided about this war—it is a united, joyous country which is willing to shoulder its responsibilities and knows there may be some bad moments along the way. But we love change and welcome change and desire change and I am the disciple of change.

One negotiator asks the other: "Is team the same as troika?"

Enter Richard Nixon, with makeup men, speech writers and staff psychologists.

"Negotiators, and my respected opponents," Nixon begins. "I think we should end the war and win the peace. You may interpret this any way you please, since I do not consider it seemly or appropriate for a candidate to discuss war policies while delicate negotiations are underway."

One negotiator turns to the other and shrugs.

Enter George Wallace, accompanied by 17 bodyguards, and a hillbilly band.

"Now you look here, boys," Wallace barks. "You all better straighten up or else when I'm president I am going to turn loose the full power of the mightiest military machine ever known to man on that backward little old country of yours."

Wallace leaves, and before Harold Stassen can even get there the Hanoi negotiators make an objection to the World Court.

Summer Workshop At RVCS

Two summer in-service programs, one a Science Workshop for teachers of Grades K through 3, and the other a Middle School Program Workshop, have been approved for the Rondout Valley Central School District by the New York State Education Department.

Both will be conducted from Aug. 19 to Aug. 30, with the Science program to be held at the high school, and the Middle School to be the location for its Staff Orientation workshop. There will be 10 sessions in each program and participating teachers will earn two in-service credits upon completion. Overall supervisor is Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert A. Robertaccio.

Coordinator of the Science Workshop will be Thomas Carroll, who is presently teaching biology at RV high school, and who has also had several years experience in teaching science at the elementary level. Consultant will be Leonard Gunsch, a former teacher who is now assistant superintendent of the Wallkill Central School District.

Participants in the Science Workshop will be Elizabeth Barnhart, Lucy Embree, Dorothy Kelder (Accord); Paula Bell, Concetta DeLeo, Phyllis Jackson, Lois Kortright, Hazel VanGasbeck, Joan Westover (Kerhonkson); Evelyn Civill, Rachel Clementz, Annamae Emmerling, Marion Hasbrouck, Anna McGrath, Marie Roosa, Elizabeth Royce (Marbletown); and Julia Nucci, Rosendale.

The tentative schedule for the Middle School Workshop, which will be under the leadership of Principal Philip J. Buonfiglio, assisted by Assistant Principal Peter Zegel, calls for a 3-part program daily. A general session, from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., will discuss major problems inherent in the philosophy and implementation of the Middle School program. Teams will hold planning sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and a question and answer period will follow from 12 to 12:30 p.m.

Focus of the Middle School Workshop will be on cooperative planning, large group and small group instruction, independent study projects, re-grouping and identification of student level of instruction. The following teachers are slated to take part: Kathryn Barteau, Norma Brodsky, Jessie Carr, Robert Carr, Norma Chase, Barbara Clarke, Bruce Clarke, Lois Curran, Charles Dennington, Eleanor DeWitt, Marie M. Diehl, Jeanne Frick, Bruce Golden, Walter Highland, Natalie Jensen, Alice Johnson, Arnold Jones Jr.

A Workshop in Tolerance--Fourth Cross-Country Tour

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Sixteen white teachers—11 of them nuns and two seminarians—sat in the cool white marble hall of Rosary College and learned a lesson of the streets.

Their teachers: three Negro men—a self-described former hustler and pimp, a member of a South Side Chicago street gang called the East Side Disciples and a civil rights leader who is a sociologist.

Part of the lesson went like this:

Harold, 22: "I grew up in the streets. Everything I know I learned on the street—hustling and pimping."

Nun: "What do you mean—hustling?"

Harold: "Well, like the handkerchief game. Say, a white man would come down to the street looking for something—"

Michael Lawson, a sociologist and civil rights leader involved in rehabilitation programs: "Looking for what, Harold?"

Harold: "Looking for black women. I'd tell him I could get some fine black women for both of us. I'd have two handkerchiefs, see, one filled with paper and the other with money. I'd tell the man to put his money in with mine and hold the handkerchief while I went for the women. All the time I'd be switching the handkerchiefs around. And I'd leave him holding the one filled with paper while I ran off with the one with the money."

The Negro men and white teachers were participants in a traveling workshop in human relations, run by five nuns, which is starting its fourth cross-country tour to combat what it calls white racism.

It's method: Conducting seminars to educate white teachers, civic leaders and clergy about Negroes, about racial prejudice and about themselves.

"I been in a gang since I was real young," he said. "That's the way it is if you live in my neighborhood. Like, a friend of mine's got a $10 bounty on his head. That means if some member of another gang kills him, he gets $10."

The traveling workshop is sponsored by the Chicago-based National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice. Participants last year included 3,200 lay teachers and public servants, 100 clergymen of all faiths, 9,540 nuns, 60 brothers and 1,100 minority group members.

Sister Mary Peter Traxler, director of the workshop and of educational services for the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, recounted some of its results.

—A realtor in Youngstown, Ohio, told the audience, "Never again will anyone in my presence call Negroes lazy. How can they have any hope at all if, as we've heard, a Negro college graduate can expect lifetime earnings equivalent to a white man who has only an eighth-grade education?"

—A deputy warden said, "I didn't really realize before that Negroes suffered, too."

Sister Mary Peter said the effect of the workshop on its participants has been measured.

"We went back to test," she said. "The only real measurement of attitudinal change is the extent to which actions change, so we drew up 21 possible actions that a person might have undertaken after participating."

The actions included such things as joining a human relations group or participating in a civil rights demonstration.

"We found that 93 per cent of the participants had undertaken at least two of these," said Sister Mary Peter. "This is clear-cut evidence of our effect."

Woodstock News

Reading of Moliere Play Tuesday Night

Moliere's "Tartuffe" will be read in English and discussed at the next meeting of PAW's Play Reading Group Tuesday, July 9, at 8:30 p.m. at the Little Theater (in the Guild Gallery).

This meeting, like all other meetings of the play reading group, is open to anyone interested. The group meets the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

"Tartuffe," the incarnation of the religious hypocrite, is both ridiculous and sinister. He meets his match in Orgon's young wife and their servant girl. Orgon may be a dupe, but the female members of his family can't be taken in. How they expose Tartuffe, how they lead him on to a declaration of love to Argon's wife while the husband is peeping, and how they strip him of his mask produces an amusing series of complications.

BIBLE SCHOOL

Daily vacation bible school for children of the church and community will be held at Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church for children from three years through junior high each weekday morning from 9:30 a.m. to noon (except Saturday) from Aug. 12 to 23.

It is advisable for children to be enrolled in advance so that the teachers now busily planning the program and activity may know for how many to prepare.

Annual Fair At Christ Lutheran

Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, 28 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, will hold an annual fair and cafeteria supper Thursday, Aug. 1, rain or shine.

Tables will include new fancy work made by members, plants and flowers, food and baked goods, a flea market (old furniture and frames) and a fish pond for children.

A hot dog and cold drink stand will operate from noon on and the cafeteria will be open at 5 p.m.

Meeting on Budget Petition

All interested taxpayers of the Onteora School District are invited to attend a special meeting to be held on Tuesday, July 9 at 8 p.m. at the Parish Hall of St. Francis de Sales Church of Phoenicia.

The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for submitting a petition to the school board, requesting another vote on the rejected budget.

For further information call Vivian Moscowitz, Alice Weider or Pauline Schlosser or any member of the Onteora Citizens' Committee.

Lake Hill Fire Company Fund Drive Starts

Frederick Keane of Mink Hollow was voted into active membership of Woodstock Fire Company 3 of Lake Hill at the regular monthly meeting which also featured plans for the annual fund drive and a report of the building committee.

The fund drive will cover the months of July and August, with a fireman visiting each house in the Willow-Lake Hill-Shady areas for donations to help operate the fire company and including funds for the new addition to the firehouse.

The building committee reported that the masonry work on the new addition was completed, that lines for heating and water supply had been installed, and that the carpentry work was scheduled to begin.

Fire Chief Duncan Wilson reported the fires of the month, revealed a four-company drill scheduled for July 23 at 6:45 p.m. in Woodstock village, spoke of the possibility of a fire code in the township, and announced a fire school scheduled on small company operation to begin in the fall of the year.

Captain H. Phillips Eighmey announced two fire drills for July, on Sunday, July 14 at 2 p.m. at the firehouse, and on July 23 in Woodstock.

Foam equipment for fighting gasoline fires has arrived and will soon be installed on the company's fire apparatus.

The 1968 food concession at the Rawhide Ranch rodeo in Mink Hollow will be headed by Alfred Ostrander, for the benefit of the company's building fund.

The quarterly four-company meeting was announced for Monday, July 29, at the firehouse in Zena.

County Tractor Damaged by Fire

The County Sheriff's Office is investigating a fire of undetermined origin which badly damaged a county tractor early today near the Thruway overpass at the LeFever Falls-Creek Locks road.

Deputy Bart Kniffen, who with Deputes Henry Newman and James Freese investigated, said apparently a motorist from the Thruway was attempting to siphon gas from the tractor gasoline tank and somehow a fire started. A siphon hose was still in the gas tank and a container was nearby.

Bloomington Fire Company responded. The front and rear tires of the tractor were destroyed. County Investigator Harold T. Bowers is continuing the investigation.

Rural Ulster County: Good Growing Country

By JIM ASHTON
Cooperative Extension Agent

Summer Mulches—A summer mulch will not only benefit your garden but will aid in weed control and water loss. Other benefits of mulches are prevention of soil erosion, reduction of soil temperatures and reduction in cultivation. Mulches are generally applied immediately after transplanting. The mulch to use depends on cost, availability and ease of application. Select a material that is not offensive and stays in place. Summer mulches include such materials as peat moss, shredded bark, sawdust, leaves and black plastic. Remember that these materials do not add nutrients to the soil; therefore, apply a complete fertilizer periodically as required.

Pruning Evergreens—Now is the time to prune back the new growth of needle evergreens to encourage dense growth. If the plants are growing rapidly, this pruning back can be repeated later on in the summer. Azaleas can be pruned now that they are finished flowering. Don't attempt to shape them formally. As rhododendrons finish blooming, carefully pinch off the dried flower parts. Extra long shoots of new growth can also be pinched back to make the plants more compact.

SWEET CORN—You can plant 2nd plantings of sweet corn any time between now and July 10th. That way you will have a supply of fresh corn into the fall. Before planting corn, lime the soil until the pH is between 6.0 and 6.8. This usually means spread 10 lbs. of lime to 100 sq. ft. Fertilize before seeding with 5 lbs. of 5-10-5 or 2½ pounds of 10-6-4 to 100 sq. ft. Then repeat the treatment when the plants are about 8 inches high. Some good corn varieties are: North Star, Morning Sun, Golden Beauty, Northern Belle, Carmelcross, Gold Cup, Iochief, Golden Dividend, Wampum 61, Surecrop, Seneca Shief, Early Fortune, Spring Gold, Seneca Explorer, Butter and Sugar, Honey and Cream

The Allure: Typical Cape Cod

By JACK McELENEY

The degree of popularity with which the Cape Cod stands is a monument to our thrifty forefathers and has been permanently fixed in the hearts of homeowners for a long time.

Today's feature, "The Allure," is a compact design that requires a minimum of ground space, but still contains the four good - size bedrooms required by most American families of present times. The first floor provides two of these rooms, and there are two additional rooms on the second floor.

The functional quality of this Colonial dwelling is the keynote of planning throuout. Modern design has had some influence such as the family type kitchen separated by a kitchen bar. The living room is traditionally cape with a modern type fireplace enhanced by a Colonial bow window. The exterior lines are emphasized by a drop roof over the front entry and bow window, while at the same time saving construction costs because of the extended overhang which forms the roof of the bow window. The two front gables will add much to enhance this already pretty house; however, they are optional.

A study of the floor plan shows a rather narrow breezeway. This could be enlarged to about 12' wide for use as an outdoor area, or be closed in for use as a family room. Altho the plan shows a one - car garage, this also could be extended to a double, or two - car garage by any competent builder. With the exception of the sliding glass door leading to the rear patio, the house is basic thruout with measurements of 26 ft. x 36 ft. Including the Breezeway and garage the overall measurements would come to 54'. The living area amounts to 936 square feet of space on the first floor, and the breezeway and garage will add another 356 square feet. The house with breezeway and garage would require a lot with a frontage of at least 70.

Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon, and they conform to the VA and FHA building requirements.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

STARTING OLIVES FROM SEED

The hallmark of a green thumber is to start olive plants from seeds. It's not easy, but it can be done. One reader writes: "Early in July 1967, I placed four mammouth ripe olive pits in a plant box. A couple months later I noted two strange little plants coming up. They were dug up carefully, and I found that the olive pits still had roots attached. These were planted in pots, using 1/3 each of sand, peat and loam, and now the plants are 8 inches tall, with several leaves growing nicely."

While you may never have enough olives to eat from the plant, you will have a good indoor foliage plant. Keep the leaves washed off from time to time.

AFRICAN VIOLETS

Growers all tell you that an east window is the best for African Violets. This may be true but violets will grow in practically every window in the house. An east window is better because it reaches the plants early in the day when their energies are low (after hours of darkness). The early morning sunshine probably acts as a booster to the plants and help them along. Too much light will cause the foliage to have a yellow, bleached look. When plants are growing lopsided, it means one side is getting more light than the other. Turn your plants regularly so that all parts will get same amount of light and you'll have a better shaped plant.

Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GROW AFRICAN VIOLETS. My guide is full of good tips on raising Americans No. 1 plant.

COCOA BEAN SHELLS

How effective are they as a mulch? We like their looks around shrubs and evergreens. They contain about 92 per cent organic matter, small amounts of nitrogen and potash. Some people use them on new lawns at the rate of 150 pounds per 1,000 square foot. But their main value is around trees, shrubs and in the flower border.

SHRUBS FOR WET SPOTS

If you have a few wet spots and want something that will grow there, try Sweet Shrub, Clump Birch, pink spirea, Highbush cranberry, Pepper bush, Pussy willow, silver maple, and weeping willow.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC

A reader writes: We bought some dates in the store and wonder if we can start new plants from the seed."

Answer: Takes a long time for the hard seed to germinate, but they will. File the coat lightly to hasten germination. The date is a palm of the desert regions, which means it likes a lot of heat. Yours won't bear in the home because you have to have a male and female tree. It's worth a try, however, and if you get seeds to grow you'll have an conversation piece.

When Building New Home Let Architect Supervise

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Summer is house-building time and many people are tempted to act as their own contractor.

If you want that dream house on a blueprint to come true, hire the architect to see it through from start to finish. Or hire a responsible builder.

It makes all the difference say people who have done both.

He will not only draw up the plans but he will specify the quality of materials ad supervise the job. That may be the most important part of the project.

Many people cut financial corners by getting an architect's plan and then supervising a project themselves. But they often rue that decision.

For example, would you know inferior lumber at a glance? Would you be able to park at your house site and follow tiny stages of the project and understand everything they are doing?

Some people can act as their own contractors. But these people usually have built enough houses (and have observed enough problems) to have profited by the experience.

Nephytes can't oversee facets of building that are unfamiliar to them, as many have found out to their horror, whereas an architect can visit a site from time to time to observe with a knowledgeable eye. He'll know when to visit to circumvent disaster as the house progresses. Even he may have to argue to get things done properly.

One electrician bid on a job from an architect's plan and the unsuspecting house builders, acting as their own contractors, assumed that everything would be great. The electrician dragged out the job for months while various aspects of the job were being held up because of his procrastination. At the finish line when paneling was on walls and floors had been laid, the owners found that vital outlets had been left out.

Should they rip up expensive quarter-sawn oak to get one outlet in the floor in front of fixed French doors? Should they tear out new plaster to get another outlet? Should they remove teak paneling to install six additional outlets?

After spending a small fortune on the house with imported marbles, woods, tiles, the family is stuck with extension cords in several rooms.

Another disaster occurred where a family submitted a plan to a builder and walked away.

The plan was drawn by an architect who was not paid to specify materials or to supervise. He was shocked when he visited the site at the sudden request of his clients who had become edgy about the appearance of the framing.

Lumber and so-called plywood were the lowest grade for a very expensive house. Wall studs didn't exactly meet cross beams and in some instances wood seemed to have shrunk so that nails provided slack in the gap.

The question is whether the builder is liable. The family signed an agreement to have a house built in a certain style for a certain sum. Nothing was said about lumber grades or other materials. They hired the builder because he was available and one the architect recommended was unavailable. The contract wasn't really violated.

Even when an architect's plan is complete with recommendations for lumber, windows, doors, hardware and other materials, there can be problems if he isn't asked to supervise the project.

In one instance, a builder paid no attention to window placement. The plan had been made so that furniture could be placed attractively and windows draped easily and esthetically. In the living room, windows were placed two feet closer than shown on the drawing. In the child's bedroom, they "made up" for that discrepancy by putting windows at the ends of the wall rather than as centered on the plan. The owner found it was impossible even to place a window shade properly, much less hang curtains and draperies.

By the time such deviations from the plan are noted by owners, the correction of mistakes is costly and time-consuming. It may even wind up with lawsuits and so on, but in the end it will be costly and time consuming.

It is wise to weigh your abilities at house supervision at the start and turn the entire task over to a responsible person if you consider yourself unqualified to do it.

A REDUCTION OF GLARE, brightness, and solar heat transmission were attained in this home by the use of a special grey-tinted glass known as Parallel-O-Grey. The large areas of glass make it possible to enjoy the beautiful outdoor surroundings and the grey tint allows the occupants to do this in greater comfort. It is also economical since it reduces the air-conditioning costs.

Tips on Faucets

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question: The faucet outside our house the one we attach our garden hose to has developed a drip. I have had some success replacing a washer in a faucet in our kitchen sink, but have never tackled an outside faucet. Is there anything I should know before I take it apart?

Answer: The repair procedure is the same for the outside and inside faucets. The first and most important step in each case is to turn off the water supply to that particular faucet. If there is no shut - off valve, turn off the main water supply to the house. Unscrew the cap nut below the handle, take out the stem and replace the washer at the end of it.

If this doesn't stop the drip then the faucet seat—the part inside the faucet after the stem is removed — must be smoothed. This can be done with a seat - dressing tool available at any hardware store. Remember that all of this is based on the assumption that the drip is coming from the mouth of the faucet and not from under the cap nut.

If the latter is the case, tightening the nut may be all that is necessary. If this doesn't help, unscrew the cap nut and replace the cordlike material or packing under it.

French Wasp May Save Dutch Elms from Death

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newfeatures

A tiny wasp that buzzes with a French accent is being used as a weapon to help combat the dread Dutch elm disease ravaging the beautiful shade tress.

The University of North Carolina reports that the wasp attacks and destroys the beetles that spread the fungus causing Dutch elm disease.

The beetles carry the spores of Dutch elm disease and infect the trees while feeding on twigs and small branchs. Chemicals help control the beetles but they do not reach all danger spots on the trees. But the female wasps thrust their egg - laying organs through the bark to deposit an egg beside the beetle larvae.

Thousands of tiny wasps have been imported from France by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is rearing them for release to states.

Specialist Fred Whitefield of the University of North Carolina says that while use of wasps is one way to chek the disease, "destroying breeding places is the fastest and cheapest" method of control.

Burn or bury dead or dying elm wood before beetles appear in the spring.

Applying dormant spray is another way to fight Dutch elm disease. DDT should be applied in the fall after the leaves drop. A windless day during a dry spell is good for spraying. Spring spraying should be done before buds open.

Dutch elm disease has spread as far west as Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas. One Illinois community, which suffered elm losses up to 28 per cent each year, developed a control program that reduced losses to 2 per cent.

A principal feature of community control programs is designation of an area for public and private use to dispose of wood infected by the beetles. Infested wood dumped in lots and elsewhere permits the insects to inoculate healthy trees the next year.

Tree owners should make an inspection tour in November. Dead leaves at the tips of branches and the shepherd's crook curvature of twigs are signs of Dutch elm disease.

Other signs of infestation are "shot" holes in the bark where adult beetles emerged last summer, and rust - color sawdust in the tree's crotches. Engraving - like galleries or tunnels inside the bark is another telltale indication of trouble.

Sanitation is considered the most effective means of control now. Tree experts recommend cutting down trees with 50 per cent or more deadwood and burning the bark.

FRANK F. MacMARTIN

JOHN W. COOPER

Upstater Principal of Woodstock School

He received his bachelor of science degree in elementary education from the State University College at Oneonta, where he also was awarded a master's degree in elementary education. He has attended reading workshops at Colgate and Temple Universities.

He has held many positions of responsibility in community work and in education. He served as an elementary teacher for four years in Cooperstown and then was elementary principal in Hamilton for four years. He has been an elementary principal in the Rush-Henrietta District for the past three years.

His wife, Lucy, is a certified elementary teacher with five years' experience. They have three children, Curtis, 8, Pamela, 4, and Suzanne, 1.

It was also announced by the Onteora Central Schools that Frank F. MacMartin, a social studies teacher in the district for the past four years, has been appointed an administrative interne at the Onteora Junior High School. MacMartin also has served for two years as director of student activities at the Onteora High School.

MacMartin holds a bac[illegible] of arts degree from the Utica College of Syracuse Univer[illegible]. He has taken graduate work in education at the State University of New York at New Paltz.

Dutchess Hope: Preserve Site

President Alan Simpson of Vassar College expressed the hope today that "Springside," Matthew Vassar's home in Poughkeepsie, would be preserved because of its significance for the history and culture of the Mid Hudson Valley. Vassar College itself, said Simpson, could not include the aquisition of Springside in its New Dimensions plans for expansion and innovation, but he and other individual members of the college community felt that such an important example of architecture and landscape design ought to be protected from any moves which might lead to its destruction.

Thomas McCormick, associate professor of art and director of the art gallery at Vassar, pointed out that Springside is the only surviving landscape garden which can be authenticated as having been designed by Andrew Jackson Downing, America's first great landscape designer. Downing's books on gardening and rural architecture changed the appearance of the American countryside in the middle of the Nineteenth Century. Inspired by the natural Hudson Valley landscape, Springside's layout is unique, said McCormick, in that it contains a miniature "Stonehenge" and other romantic appurtenances. Most important, he continued, it contains the only buildings actually designed by Downing, who usually relied on others for his architectural designs. Downing's drawings for these are in the Vassar College Library. They include the nearly complete set for Matthew Vasser's summer cottage, which has been called one of the finest romantic cottages in the country.

Red Cross Work: Familes Share

The programs of the American Red Cross give an opportunity to many members of the same family to share in giving community service to others. This is amply demonstrated by the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross where at least 18 family groups are currently engaged in Red Cross programs.

William Davis, Louis Smith and Robert Kurland, all of Kingston, as members of the Chapter Board of Directors share their interests in Red Cross with their wives, all of whom are Service to Military Families Volunteers. In addition, Kurland serves as a Red Cross first aid and water safety instructor and as a member of the disaster committee. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Smith, Port Ewen, serve as first aid instructor and Service to Military Families Volunteer, respectively.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill Archard, New Paltz; Jill Abramson, also of New Paltz, and her sister, Mrs. Kristine A. Leonard; Timothy Donoghue and his daughters, Suzan D. DiChiara and Penelope Donoghue, all of Camp Hi-Wing, Krumville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sagarese of Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Senzer and his brother, Jeffery, all of Tamarack Lodge, Greenfield Park; and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stockin, New Paltz, are concerned with the Red Cross water safety programs and are all authorized water safety instructors. Board member Vernon Murphy of Kingston, shares his Red Cross interests with his two daughters, Angela and Kathleen, both of whom are Water Safety Instructors.

Participating in the first aid program are authorized first aid instructors Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burkhouse, Napanoch; Philip Greer and his brother Hugh, both of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. George V. Kelley, Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. Philip McAliece, Ellenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morehouse, Woodstock. Morehouse also serves as first aid chairman and is a member of the Board of Directors.

DA to Give Internship For Law Students

An internship program for interested law students has been commissioned by District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca which started this week.

Under the program one or two law students will be assigned to the various phases of the criminal administration of justice. Generally the law students will be called upon to interview complainants, witnesses and police officers, to aid in the preparation of cases for trial, and to research questions of law.

In this way the critical problems of law enforcement will be observed at firsthand and the realization of the efforts and measures employed to solve them, the district attorney said.

It is hoped that the face to face confrontations with the victims of crime, defendants, prisoners, prosecutors, defense attorneys, probation officers and members of the judiciary will provide the student with a new insight and appreciation for the tremendous amount of work, the emotional conflicts and the practical difficulties associated with the tasks of the public prosecutor and of the defense counsel.

The first student to take advantage of the internship program is John J. Darwak, 117 Third Avenue, a student at Syracuse Law School. Darwak will work under Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher during July, and will be assigned to City Court. Darwak is a former special patrolman and was affiliated with Kingston Police Department in 1967 and 1968.

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1968

Early Hurley Opens Doors

Historic Hurley, observing its 307th year, will open wide the doors of 13 old stone houses July 13.

The annual stone house tours will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on that day, starting from the Hurley Reformed Church. There will be a country fair and cafeteria on the church grounds. Printed tour guides and shuttle buses will be provided.

Rich in history and legend, Hurley is notable for its large concentration of early stone houses which have been lived in continuously since the 17th century. Many of the houses are occupied today by descendents of the families who built them. Residents proudly point to the fact that Hurley is not a restoration but rather a unique living preservation. The village which once served as the state capital during the Revolution has been designated a National Historic Site by the United States Department of the Interior.

Settled in 1661 by 15 Dutch and Huguenot families, the first slab house village of Hurley was completely destroyed by the Indians in the second spring. Women and children were dragged off to captivity but were returned to their families in the fall of 1663.

Learning from the bitter experience, the early settlers rebuilt their village of native limestone which has endured through the ensuing years.

The modest one - room originals became the core of the larger stone dwellings expanded as the family grew and prospered in the lush valley.

The village first known as Nieuw Dorp was rechristened Hurley when the British took over the colony. The stubborn Dutch resisted the change, clinging to their native tongue and traditions well into the 19th century.

Revolution Action

The Revolutionary War afforded the village some of its brightest moments in history. Nearly every Hurley family had a man in the army during those days and a British spy was caught and hanged from an apple tree in the center of town. One of the houses to be open July 13 served as courtroom for his trial.

George Washington may not have slept in Hurley but it is duly recorded he was well received there in 1782.

When Kingston was burned by the British in October, 1777, Hurley served as a haven for the fleeing city folk who came with all the belongings they could salvage from the torch. The government too was forced to flee and Hurley's Senate House with its secret room will be one of the houses on the tour.

Sojourner's Birthplace

The home of Sojourner Truth, where she was born in slavery, is another highlight of the tour. The original grant for the land on which the house was built was conferred by King George II in 1750.

Superstitions common to other early colonial settlements were evidenced in Hurley too.

The Polly Crispell Cottage another of the homes on the tour, has a "witch trap" in the chimney. The "cottage" was once a blacksmith's shop and evidently the precaution was to save the smithy from supernatural harassment.

In more recent years Hurley attracted artist, Winslow Homer who spent the summer there in 1878. It is rumored he became fond of a young schoolmistress from the village during his stay. The following winter at the Paris Exposition, he exhibited the Country School, showing a one room school such as Hurley children attended up to the year 1936.

Royal Visitor

Princess Beatrix of the Netherland was a visitor to the village of Dutch origins in 1959. She was charmed by the beauty and simplicity of the old community.

Since the annual stone house tours were started 18 years ago, visitors from near and far have flocked to Old Hurley for a peek at history.

For a day of rural relation with an educational bonus try Hurley stone house tours July 13.

CP Building Rites on Sunday

Edward deGroff, president of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, announced that the public is invited to a groundbreaking ceremony for the new Cerebral Palsy building on Sunday, July 7, at 3 p.m.

The land upon which the building is to be constructed, located on Webster Street at the south corner of the Benedictine Hospital grounds, was a gift to CP from Benedictine Hospital.

Plans for the ceremony are under the chairmanship of Mrs. Martin Nilan, Port Ewen. Representatives from throughout Ulster and Greene Counties and Cerebral Palsy Board Members will take part in the one-half hour groundbreaking ceremonies. Refreshments will be served by members of the board of directors of the CP Center.

Harry Halverson Associates have designed the building to include rooms for nursery school, speech and hearing therapy, hearing testing, physical therapy, consultation, waiting room, and office space. The building will be one-story, with a complete basement occupying over 5,000 square feet.

The new facilities will adequately accommodate all of those children of Ulster and Greene Counties who have physical handicaps and need treatment. Over the 16 years that the local Center has been in operation the number of children treated has grown from 25 to the present fulltime summer capacity of 160, while still occupying the same space in the Ulster County Tumor Building.

deGroff said "United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County has been helped by so many groups, organizations, and individuals over the years that it would be impossible to personally invite each and every one. We are taking this means to extend invitations to all those interested in the Cerebral Palsy who wish to attend this event."

Hopp-Constant

Miss Frieda Hopp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hopp of 122 Hurley Avenue, this city, exchanged nuptial vows with Douglas Albert Constant, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Constant, 84 Main Street, Rosendale, on Sunday, June 23, at Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk linen gown with lace accents and a controlled skirt which featured a full chapel train. Her headpiece was a lace cap accented with pearls attached to a double veil. She carried a bridal cascade of white carnations and stephanotis, centered with two orchids and ivy.

Miss Gertrude Hopp of Kingston was maid of honor for her sister. Her petal blue satin sheer gown was floor length. A petal cap attached to a four tier matching bouffant veil served as her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white and blue carnations and daisies with long white streamers.

Attendants were Miss Patricia Fenton and Miss Elizabeth Emmick, both of Kingston. Their gowns and headpieces were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant and they carried nosegays of white daisies with long white streamers.

Eric Constant of North Augusta, S. C., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Carl Constant, Birmingham, Mich., brother of the bridegroom, and Edward Charles of Kingston.

Here is a mother who writes for all children the kind of stories she wished she could have found for her own. Jane Clement has provided tales that renew and refresh, that quietly remind us that love, purity and self-sacrifice are still precious. A whimsical fairy tale, a legend and a richly historical piece are among the forms used. Of a previously published Christmas story by Mrs. Clement entitled "The Three Gifts" which appeared in a new collection of Christmas stories, BEHOLD THAT STAR, Ruth Hill Viguers, then Editor of THE HORN BOOK wrote: "Among several stories of real distinction are . . . Tribute to Schimmerling Is Planned

The Continental Piano Quartet, under the direction of pianist Ilse Sass, will give a concert in Woodstock's Maverick Hall on Sunday, July 7 at 3 p.m. in memory of the well known composer and teacher Hanus Schimmerling.

Appearing with Miss Sass will be Ruth Conway, concert singer; Stanley Hoffman, American violinist and violist; Joseph Bernstein, violinist; Leo Rostal, cellist.

Hanus Schimmerling was a long-time resident of Woodstock. Besides composing and teaching, he was a prolific contributor of articles to American and European newspapers and became known on both sides of the Atlantic as a lecturer as well. His major field of interest was Slavonic folk music and he has countless compositions and textbooks published by such well known houses as Schirmers and Carl Fisher.

With soprano Ruth Conway as soloist, the Continental Quartet will perform, as a major work, Schimmerling's "Lyrica Illyrica Suite." It was premiered in 1964 at the Maverick in Woodstock with William Kroll and Cynthia Britt performing. It is based on Yugoslavian folk songs.

Miss Conway is the daughter of the late Dr. Hans Cohn. She made her debut in Ulm, Germany in 1961 and has performed in many recitals, chamber music concerts, with Collegiate Chorale, the Little Orchestra Society and the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Leonard Bernstein.

Mr. Hoffman, violist, is a graduate of Juilliard Music School. He made his debut in 1962 and his teacher was Misha Mishakoff.

Mr. Bernstein, violinist, is assistant concertmaster with the New York Philharmonic. A student of George Enesco in Europe, he joined the Palestine Philharmonic as first violinist and soloist, served on the faculty of the Berkshire Festival, and was founder of the Tel Aviv Quartet.

Cellist Rostel was solo player in the NBC Symphony under Toscanini and is remembered as member of the famous Lener Quartet.

Ilse Sass, pianist and teacher, is well known in this area. Born in Germany, she was graduated from Cologne Conservatory and, since coming to the United States, has performed in numerous chamber music recitals and solo concerts.

Other selections on the July 7 concert will include "Toccata and Chromatic Fugue for Piano," by Schimmerling; "Piano Quartet in E, Op. 47," Schumann; and "Sonata No. 5 in E minor for Cello and Piano," Vivaldi.

Doing the Right Thing

SMOKING RULES IMPOSED ONLY IN ONE'S OWN HOME

Dear Mrs. Post: Because of recent surgery, I have been advised to avoid cigarette smoke. Is there a graceful way to handle this situation as a hostess? As a potential guest, does one refuse invitations to affairs that include smokers, or does one permit the hostess, if she suggests it, to ask the smokers to refrain from smoking? Also, in public places where smoking is prohibited but the signs ignored, is it ever correct to ask the offender to please not smoke?—J. Silvers

Dear Mrs. Silvers: It is perfectly correct for a hostess to ask her guests to refrain from smoking when she has a valid reason such as yours. You cannot, however, expect another hostess' guests to do so. I do not feel she should impose your problems on her other friends but should invite you with another group another time.

When "No Smoking" rules are in effect, it is correct to politely call attention to the fact to those who are violating the regulations.

* * *

"Thank You" Correct Any Time, Any Place

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it incorrect in America for a lady to thank a gentleman for lighting her cigarette? I have noticed in the sophisticated TV shows that they do not. The would-be sexpots will give him a look which I think is supposed to say, "Boy, you can light me up anytime," but none of them actually says "thank you."—

Dear Wendy: "Thank you" is correct in America for any service rendered — any time, any place. TV shows or commercials do little to help improve manners, and this is one case where they certainly could — and should!

* * *

Inviting Friends of Friends To a Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to ask my friend's fiance to my wedding, but I do not know his name. What is the right way to invite him? Also, is there any formal way to tell an unengaged friend that he may bring a guest with him to the wedding?—Paula

Dear Paula: Ask your friend for her fiance's name and address and mail him (or her) a separate invitation. If this is difficult or impossible, you may either write a separate note or enclose one with your friend's invitation, saying, "We would be delighted to have your fiance come with you."

There is no formal way to tell an unengaged man that he may bring a guest to the wedding, but you may discuss it with him ahead of time or write him a note, and then send a regular invitation to whomever he chooses to escort. This makes the unknown guest feel much more welcome than if she had not received any invitation.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

At Woodstock Playhouse—'White Liars,' 'Black Comedy'

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

The Woodstock Playhouse has introduced one of Broadway's top comedy hits, "The Black Comedy," a play by Peter Shaffer. It opened Wednesday, July 3 along with "The White Liars," also by Peter Shaffer.

There is little doubt that "Black Comedy" is the better of the two. I would have wished that "White Liars" was given second instead of first on the program but it's worth sitting through.

Martha Miller, Michael Bradshaw, William Metzo and Gene Nye appear in "White Liars." Action takes places in a fortune teller's parlor in a run-down seaside resort on the south coast of England. The play concerns itself with the why of lying, little white lies, bigger ones, and the end results. The play has depth and merit and serves as a direct contrast to the hilarious "Black Comedy."

Gene Nye, who is cast as a young sculptor, also does a fine job in this vehicle. Nye has a great talent for facial expressions that win him quick audience approval. His extensive regional theatre credits include the Hartford Stage Company, American Shakespeare Festival and the Ypsilanti Greek Theatre as well as the Phoenix Theatre in New York.

It's good to see Tanny McDonald in this play—she is a very good actress. In "Black Comedy," she takes the part of an ex-mistress.

Also appearing in the successful comedy are Margaret Cathell, Martha Miller, Fred Miller, William Metzo and Eugene Blythe.

The play, directed by Harold Baldridge with scenery and lighting by David F. Segal, has many unique aspects. The author pulls a theatrical switch by reversing dark and light. In the brief moments when the lights are off in the theatre, they are "on" for the performers on stage. The rest of the time the lights are turned on for the audience while the cast stumbles about in their own "darkness.". It provides some howling scenes.

In the play, the sculptor is conned by his fiancee into "borrowing" his absent neighbor's precious antique furniture to impress her daddy the Colonel and an expected millionaire art collector. "Oh God," prays the sculptor, "let this evening go all right. Let Mr. Bamberger like my sculpture and buy some. Let Carol's monster father like me. And let my neighbor Harold Gorringe never find out that we borrowed his precious furniture behind his back. Amen."

Of course, everything goes wrong.

"Black Comedy" plays through Saturday with curtain at 8:40 p. m. and on Sunday with curtain at 7:30 p. m.

Next week, Edgar Rosenblum, executive director, will present "The Odd Couple." It will be staged from July 10 to July 17.

Tickets are available for all performances at the box office.

Tracks Cleared

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Penn-Central tracks were cleared late Thursday after two separate derailments near this village between Buffalo and Rochester blocked them for several hours.

An axle on one car of an 86-car freight train burned out early Thursday causing the railroad's east-bound track to be blocked.

On a separate branch line between here and Caledonia, a 37-car freight was stopped when a car carrying ammonia jumped the tracks in the town of Stafford, Genesee County.

No one was reported injured in either accident.

Dionne Warwick Eyes Stage Career

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Latest of a long line of vocalists to seek acting careers is Dionne Warwick, the satin-voiced beauty who is one of the nation's top record sellers.

She follows a longtime tradition. Since early talkies, pop singers have been enlisted for acting duties, and many of them turned into expert performers: Bing Crosby, Judy Garland, Betty Grable, Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, etc., etc.

Sinatra once proferred an explanation of why so many of his craft succeeded as actors: "We got our training by acting on the bandstand. It was a challenge to make each lyric believable, and some of the lyrics we had to sing were mighty challenging!"

Dionne Warwick has been selling lyrics in remarkable style for six years. Born in East Orange, N.J., she learned singing from the soul early—as part of a family gospel group called the Drinkard Singers. She and a sister and two cousins formed another group called the Gospelaires.

By the time she branched out as a single, she possessed the skill and believability to sell such melancholy numbers as "You'll Never Get to Heaven" and "Walk On By," her first record hits. With musical material and guidance supplied by the talented Burt Bacharach, she ascended into top rank as a record, night club and concert attraction.

Now comes a new career. She is starring with Stephen Boyd and Ossie Davis in "The Slave," an 1850 drama of the South, to be filmed in Shreveport, La. Miss Warwick visited here briefly before reporting to the location, and she talked about the assignment.

"I always thought about doing everything in show business," she remarked, "and the two things left for me were movies and a Broadway show. So when 'The Slave' came up, I was eager for it.

She will do no songs in the film, in which she portrays a slave who becomes the mistress of Boyd.

Appeals Court Overturns Edict On Miranda

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Court of Appeals has overturned a ruling by a lower court that the so-called Miranda decision may be applied retroactively.

When the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its Miranda decision two years ago, it put limitations on the power of police to question suspects in their custody but said the ruling applied only after June 13, 1966.

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court cited the Miranda ruling, however, in reversing the convictions of two youths by a county court in January, 1966.

The Court of Appeals, the staet's highest tribunal, overturned that decision Wednesday by a vote of 4-3.

Judge Kenneth B. Keating, in the majority opinion, said "a retroactive application of Miranda would have a disruptive effect on the administration of justice by requiring a new trial."

The majority based its decision largely on another ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court. In Johnson vs. New Jersey, the high court said Miranda should be applied "only to cases commenced" later.

The ruling by the Court of Appeals involved Bruse B. Sayres and Ronald G. Trevail. They were convicted in Rensselaer County Court.

Divide Troopers For Bargaining

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the State Police will be divided into two units for purposes of collective bargaining, under an order handed down by the State Public Employment Relations Board.

The board decided Tuesday to overrule the state's contention that the force should be represented by a single bargaining unit.

It remains to be seen, however, if and when the order will be implemented. There is a possibility that the ruling might be challenged in an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Not only the state, but also a union sought a unit that represents troopers only. The union is the New York State Employes Council 50, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Union, AFL-CIO.

The board determined that one unit should be made up of troopers, sergeants and personnel of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, up to the rank of lieutenant. The second unit should consist of lieutenants, captains and majors, the board said.

The three board members agreed unanimously on the creation of the basic bargaining unit but divided, 2-1, in the establishment of the second.

Dissenting in the vote on the second unit, Joseph R. Crowley said that there was no sign that lieutenants, captains and majors wanted separate representation and that the board should not set up a separate unit now.

In the majority decision, Board Chairman Robert D. Helsby and George H. Fowler said whether the officers desired representation.

Contending for representation besides Council 50 are the Police Benevolent Association of the New York State Police and the Civil Service Employes Association.

The CSEA had sought specifically to have the BCI men included in the basic unit.

The board held that all officers beyond the rank of major should be excluded from the negotiating units. The board did not rule, however, on the question of whether these officers are entitled to representation under the Taylor Law, the statute governing relations between public bodies and agencies and their employes.

Will File Charge Against Driver In Traffic Fatal

A 35-year-old truck driver, who was involved in a fatal traffic mishap in Ellenville on June 18, will be charged with operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes, according to Police Chief Abe Rand.

The chief said the charge will be filed against Richard Forbes, of 19 North Main Street, Ellenville. His flatbed truck carrying a load of bricks, overturned while rounding a curve near Berme Road and Canal Street, Ellenville. Police said about 25,000 pounds of bricks toppled off the truck and spilled on Valerie Regan, 4, daughter of James and Beverly Regan of 240 Canal Street, Ellenville.

The girl was standing on the roadside with two playmates when she was killed. Authorities said the child presumably was crushed to death by the bricks.

Buffalo Church Badly Damaged By Blaze

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A four-alarm fire caused heavy damage to the sacristy and altar of St. Brigid's Roman Catholic Church on this city's south side.

Officials said the fire was discovered shortly after midnight today and within a 20 minute period roared to the four alarms.

About 30 pieces of equipment and 120 men fought the fire and brought it under control within 45 minutes.

No one was reported injured.

It was estimated damage would be excessive, well over $100,000, one fireman said.

Two ladder trucks sunk into a hidden cellar and had to be pulled out by heavy cranse.

No other information was immediately available.

Delayed Reaction

DARLASTON, England (UPI) —Mrs. Florence Holten claimed in court Thursday that her faulty washing machine gave her an electric shock and leaked in her kitchen, making her hysterial so that she has suffered from depression ever since.

But the judge, noting that all this happened seven years ago and that she used the machine since, awarded her $4.80 for a breach of maintenance contract and nothing on her claims for damage.

Kickers Explode for 8-4 Victory Over Hungarians

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The Kingston Sport Club Kickers—that's the big soccer team in the area, you know—were carried away by their sudden prominence as the only sports team in action in the Kingston area on Thursday.

They staged a 4th of July fireworks display of their own with a surprise 8 to 4 rout of the crack New York Hungarians of the Premier Division of the German-American Soccer Association at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The eight goals is one of the largest harvests in the club's history and augurs well for the Kickers' entry in the Major Division next fall.

All-America Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia was terribly caught up in the holiday spirit. He accounted for four of the Kickers goals. Jimmy Reinhardt picked up two goals and Elliott Pobbie-Asare and Reiner Schwebel, the bulwarks of the KSC defense, added the others.

A rout appeared imminent when the Kickers ran up a 5-lead at the 41-minute mark of the first half on Reinhardt's second goal, following three successive tallies by the ubiquitous Ventriglia.

But the Kickers were victimized by their own affluence and the remainder of the contest was sluggish affair. The Kicker patterns didn't click. Some of the boys didn't seem to know where the others were and the club may have set a record for offside infractions. The total may have been close to 25. One thing for sure, Referee Heinz Ulfig's whistle was red hot most of the day.

Hungarians crashed through with the first goal of the day—Szabo hitting at the 9-minute mark. Jimmy Reinhardt tied it for Kingston at 12-minutes, before Ventriglia unleashed his three straight goals at 17, 29 and 36 minutes. One was the end of a beautiful combination involving Pobbi-Asare, Schwebel and Kovalenko, a newcomer.

Malnar of the Hungarians checked the tide at 5-1 with a score two minutes after Reinhardt's second beauty of the day to bring the half to a close, 5-2, Kingston.

Pobbie-Asare Scores

Pobbi-Asare's goal at 49 minutes widened the Kingston lead to 6-2, but the Hungarians rallied to save themselves from the disaster on successive goals by Leitner (60 minutes) and Szabo's second tally five minutes later.

At this point, it appeared the Hungarians were the equal of the powerful Kickers. But any such notions were quickly dispelled when Schwebel rammed one past the Hungarian goalie at 72-minutes and Ventriglia blew his fourth shot through the net at 80-minutes.

The statistical chart showed a wide edge for the Kickers, who had 33 goal shots to 7 for the Hungarians.

Other statistics: corner kicks, Kingston 7, Hungarians, 4; saves, Diekoski, 10; Hungarians, 17; free kicks, Kingston 10, Hungarians 19.

The Kickers resume their exhibition schedule on Sunday, July 14, against the Haledon A. C. of New York. Stadtwerke Neunchen of Germany is the big attraction on July 21.

Jones, Bosch Homers Gain Split for Mets

NEW YORK (UPI)—Home runs by Cleon Jones and Don Bosch enabled the New York Mets to halt Pittsburgh s seven-game winning streak with a 4-3 victory in the second game of an Independence Day doubleheader Thursday after the Pirates won the opener 3-2.

Jones hammered his 10th homer of the season, tops on the Mets, with two out in the first inning and Bosch erased a 2-1 Pittsburgh lead with a two-run drive in the third after winning pitcher Don Cardwell reached base on Donn Clendenon's two-out error.

The Mets added a third unearned run off luckless Jim Bunning (4-10) in the fifth when Bosch doubled with two out and scored as shortstop Gene Alley threw away Jones' bouncer. It proved decisive when Gary Kolb hit a pinch homer with two out in the nioth for the Pirates.

Cardwell, who needed relief help from Ron Taylor in the eighth, won his third game against eight losses. He allowed two runs in the third on a leadoff single by Maury Wills, a run-scoring double by Allen who continued to third on Bosch's bobble in centerfield and a sacrifice fly by Willie Stargell.

Clendenon doubled with one out off loser Jerry Koosman (11-4) before Mazeroski whacked his run-producing double, snapping a 2-2 tie. His error on J.C. Martin's bouncer in the second inning enabled the Mets to score two unearned runs. Al Weis drove in one with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly and Koosman singled to account for the second run.

Wills, who stole four bases during the doubleheader to run his season's total to 25, set up the first Pittsburgh run in the third and scored the tying run in the seventh. A double by Jerry May, Wills' bunt single and Alley's double produced the Pirates' first run and Wills singled, stole second and scored on Roberto Clemente's single in the seventh.

Ron Kline, who pitched three hitless innings in relief of Bob Moose, gained his fifth victory in six decisions. Moose allowed only three hits over the first six innings.

Tigers' Pyrotechnics Don't Impress Skipper

By PETE ALFANO
UPI Sports Writer

Mayo Smith, who takes a dim view of July 4 celebrations, would rather wait a few months before having his Detroit Tigers participate in any flag waving festivities.

The Tigers, who lead the American League by a comfortable 8½ games at the traditional half-way mark in the pennant race, set off their own brand of fireworks Thursday as Norm Cash and Jim Northrup led a six-homer barrage that led to a 13-10 trouncing of the California Angels.

Smith, however, was not carried away by the performance and took a seemingly unpatriotic view of the day's events.

"I don't believe in that July 4 stuff," said the Tigers' skipper. "What I believe in is September 29, the last day of the season."

Thus Smith, who has also heard about the exploits of the 1951 Giants, would not claim an early victory for his club despite the fact that the team would break away early. . .and leading the American League on July 4 has won the pennant 45 times.

Northrup, who hit his 12th and 13th homers of the season and drove in five runs, was a bit more enthusiastic as he reminded listeners of his pre-season prophecy when he tabbed the Tigers to win it all.

"I said so last spring but nobody listened to me," said Northrup. "I said then we wouldn't have a race like we did last year, that one team would break away early . . . and would have a 10 game lead at the All-Star break."

The Tigers' outfielder continued, "I said if one team could do it, it would be us and right now we're in pretty good shape."

The Angels had taken an early 4-0 lead in the second inning on Don Mincher's first homer and errors by Bill Freehan and reliever Dennis Ribant on a bases loaded bunt, which allowed three runs to score.

The Tigers retaliated with a nine-rune rally in their half of the second, featured by Freehan's 12th homer, Northrup's triple and homers by Norm Cash and Willie Horton.

Northrup and Cash homered in the sixth and the Tigers added two more runs in the eighth on Northrup's second homer of the game.

Ribant, who pitched only 2-3 of an inning, notched his second win in three decisions. Tom Burgmeier, who faced just one man, dropped his third game in four decisions.

In other American League action, Washington beat New York 4-2, Boston triumphed over Oakland 7-2, Cleveland rallied to beat Minnesota 6-3 and Baltimore edged Chicago 4-3 in 12 innings.

Juan Pizarro, acquired last week from Pittsburgh, drove in two runs and pitched one hit ball in 6 and 2/3 innings of relief to lead the Red Sox over the Athletics. Pizarro singled home a run in the fourth and hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth as All-Star "Blue Moon" Odom lost his fifth game.

Joe Azcue's two run double climaxed a four run eigth inning Cleveland rally that pinned Dean Chance with his ninth loss. Vincente Romo, who pitched five innings of relief for the Indians, who his first major league game.

Stroud's Fireworks Demolish Yanks, 4-2

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ed Stroud, a Yankee nemesis all season, cracked two doubles and two triples Thursday to spark the Washington Senators to a 4-2 victory over New York.

Stroud, who has hammered Yankee pitching for 11 hits in 21 at bats, including three doubles, three triples and three homers, scored two runs and set up another with his 4-for-4 outburst.

His first double followed a walk to Del Unser in the first inning and Unser scored the Senators' first run on Mike Epstein's infield out.

Stroud's second double came in the sixth. Frank Howard was then intentionally passed and Epstein grounded sharply to Mickey Mantle, whose throw to second hit Howard on the back for an error as Stroud raced home.

Howard advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored the second unearned run of the inning on Jim French's sacrifice fly.

After the Yankees cut the margin to 3-2, Stroud led off the eighth inning with his second triple of the day and scored on Cap Peterson's single.

The Yankees punched across an unearned run in the seventh when Bill Robinson was safe on a throwing error, moved up on a walk and scored on Roy White's single. The second Yankee run came in the eighth inning on singles by Andy Kosco, Jake Gibbs and Bobby Cox.

Laver Stops Roche In Three-Set Sweep

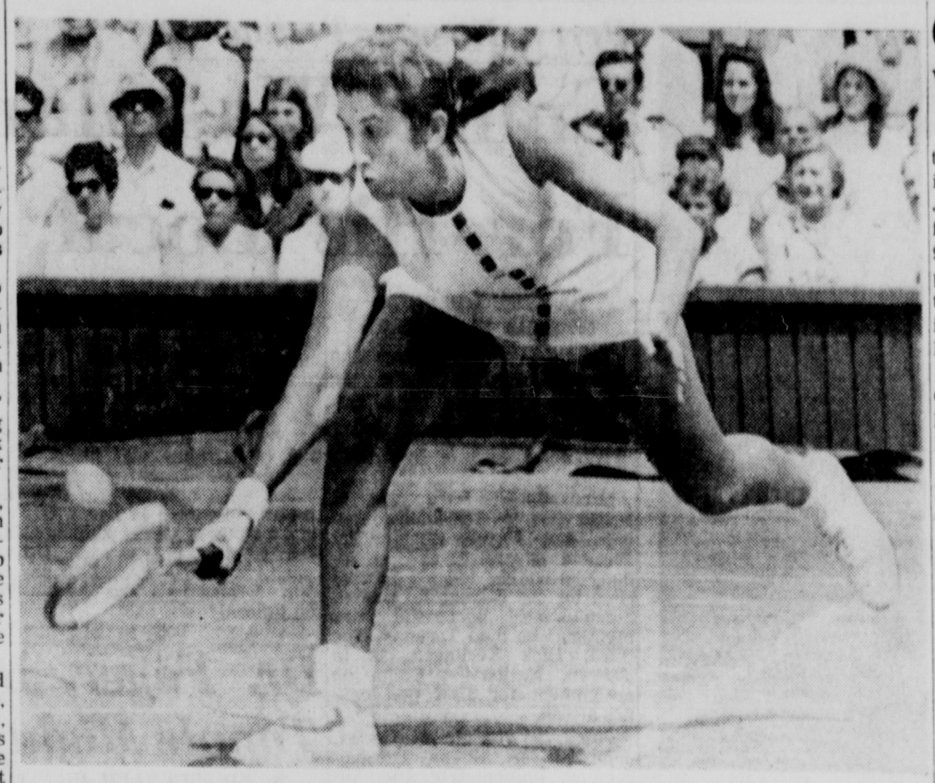

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Rod Laver, 29-year-old left-handed Australian tennis pro and two-time winner at Wimbledon when it was strictly an amateur event, easily defeated another lefty pro, fellow Aussie, Tony Roche, today, to capture Wimbledon's Men's Singles finals.

Open to both amateur and pro for the first time, Laver became the initial pro to win tennis' most prestigious tourney, hammering Roche in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The duo from "Down Under" gained the finals by defeating an American pair, pro Clark Graebner and amateur Arthur Ashe earlier in the week.

In Women's Singles action, yesterday Mrs. Billie Jean King, American pro and winner the last two years, seeks to become the first woman to take the crown three straight times since 1954. She meets another Australian, Judy Tegart, for the title.

Mrs. King came from behind against last year's runner-up, England's Ann Hayden Jones, on scores of 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. Miss Tegart stunningly upset the U.S.'s Nancy Richey in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1. Miss Tegart is the lone amateur in the finals.

AUSTRALIA'S JUDY TEGART in action July 4 while upsetting Nancy Richey of the United States, 6-3, 6-1, in the women's singles semifinal match at Wimbledon. Judy meets America's Billie Jean King for the championship. (UPI CABLEPHOTO.)

MONTE STICKLES

Stickles To Saints

The San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League have traded veteran tight end Monty Stickles to New Orleans and may lose former star pass catcher Dave Parks to the same club.

The former Poughkeepsie High School All-DUSO star in football and basketball missed most of the 1967 season because of a broken arm.

General manager Jack White of the 49ers today confirmed that Stickles had been traded to the Saints, but declined to say for whom. The Saints will report that.

Saint quarterback Bill Kilmer, a former 49er, said his club is dickering with Parks, who played out his option with the 49ers last season and is a free agent.

The 49ers are still negotiating with Parks, who said he would sign for the best offer.

Wright's Zip Eddie's in ESL

Wright's Service Station, behind the three-hit shutout pitching of Ron Joray, moved into a tie for second place in the Ellenville Softball League, zipping Eddie's, 4-0.

Chalking up three strikeouts against two walks, Joray was staked to three runs in the first on a double by Doug Horton, Dick Harding's single, a pair of stolen bases, two hit batters and a walk to Phil VanDeMark.

Kolln, Bob Byman Jaycees Qualifiers

Seventeen-year-old Werner Kolln, a member of the crack Kingston High school varsity, led the Senior contingent (17 and over) with a 2-over-par 36-36-72.

Dan Powell of the Colonial Country Club, Tannersville, won the second Senior qualifying spot by defeating John Sentar of Twaalfskill on the third extra hole of a sudden death playoff.

Scotty Dean of Woodstock, another 14-year-older, earned the second Junior spot with an 80. Doug Tatara's 85 was third in the Senior group and Mark Brown of Wiltwyck posted 89 for third in the Juniors.

In special competition, Bob Darling of Twaalfskill got off the longest drive among the Seniors with a 221-yard poke. Bernie Schaeffer of Rosendale was closest to the pin on the No. 4 hole (25 feet) and Werner Kolln had fewest putts, 29.

WERNER KOLLN

The two leaders in each division qualified for the New York State Jaycee Sports Spectacular in Kingston on July 26-27.

Grill Gains Tie With 9-1 Victory

A trio of power hitters, added to the combined five-hit pitching of the Heckman's, Bill and Jack, gave Silver Grill its fourth win in seven contests, a 9-1 romp over Eddie's (0-8) and put the Grillmen in a three-way tie for second place Wednesday in the Eilenville Softball League.

In the fifth, Jack Pepper belted a triple, then scored to make it 3-0 Grill. The very next frame, he sparked a four-run rally with his second triple, driving in one ahead of him. He tried to stretch it into an inside-the-park homer, but was tossed out at home. Pepper is the first player in the eight-year-history of the loop to stroke two triples in one game.

Bill Heckman worked the opening four frames, gave up one hit, fanned five and walked one. His dad, Jack, Sr., finished up, was touched for four hits and the run, whiffed two and allowed a pair of walks.

Shannon Making Red Look Like Prophet

By FRANK DE GEORGES
UPI Sports Writer

Mike Shannon says he wasn't ready for World Series pressure last year. But he's ready now, he wants the chance and he's doing all he can to get it.

The St. Louis third baseman, new and unsteady around third base last season after several years in the outfield, found the World Series "too tough—I really didn't get to enjoy it."

He's grown accustomed to the base, though, and he demonstrated his enthusiasm for another October shot with a tie-breaking, two-run homer Thursday which carried the Cardinals to a 3-2 victroy over Los Angeles and an impressive 8½ game lead in the National League.

It was Manager Red Schoendienst's idea to bring Shannon in from the outfield and after he practiced a few months, St. Louis traded third baseman Charlie Smith to the Yankees and announced Shannon as the new third baseman. The fans didn't think he could make it, but Schoendienst obviously did, and now so does Shannon.

Shannon hit his homer in the eighth off Los Angeles starter and loser Claude Osteen. The homer, his 11th, put the Cardinals ahead 3-1 until the bottom of the ninth when Len Gabrielson homered for the Dodgers. Ray Washburn won his sixth game against three losses.

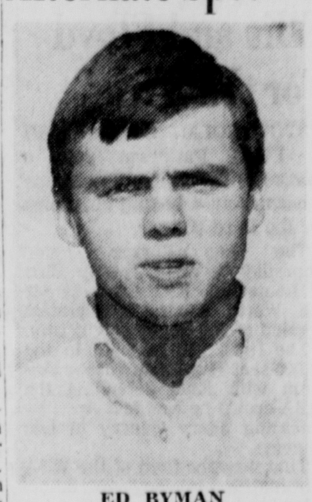

In other NL action, New York and Pittsburgh split a pair, the Pirates winning the opener, 3-2, and New York coming back in the nightcap, 4-3; Philadelphia and Chicago divided a double-header, with the first game going to the Cubs, 6-2, and the second to Philadelphia, 7-4, San Francisco whipped Atlanta, 6-4, and Cincinnati topped Houston, 7-4.

Rookie Jeff James pitched five hitless innnigs and recorded his first major league victory for Philadelphia in the second game. Home runs by Billy Williams and pinch hitter Dick Nen paced the Cubs' victory in the first game and Williams also hit a three-run blast in the nightcap off James. Joe Niekro won his seventh game for the Cubs in the opener.

Dick Dietz drove in four runs with a homer and a double to spark the Giants and give reliever Frank Linzy his fourth win of the season in 10 decisions. With the score tied 4-4 in the seventh, Jim Hart doubled and Dietz followed with his second homer of the year. Dietz gave the Giants a 2-0 lead in the first with a two-run double to right.

Alex Johnson and Mack Jones drove in three runs apiece to lead Cincinnati to victory. Johnson produced one run in the third with a grounder and singled across runs in the fifth and ninth. Jones, whose infield out accounted for a run in the third, singled across two runs during a three-run ninth. Gary Nolan won his fourth game against two losses while Don Wilson suffered his 10th loss.

Byman's 78, First Alternate Spot

ED BYMAN

Ed Byman, playing out of the Wiltwyck Country Club, had to play catch-up golf Wednesday to gain the Mid-Hudson Region's first alternate berth in the New York State Amateur Golf championships.

Byman, who graduated from high school last month, entered the qualifying as the top-ranked Kingston golfer.

Starting on the back nine, the 18-year-old linkster shot an eight-over 78, finishing six back of leader George Pacheco, who bogeyed the final two holes. The cutoff point was 77.

Byman, who had to sink a 25-foot putt on the final hole to gain his 78, was forced into a sudden-death playoff on the 19th hole against late entry William Moore, to win the alternate's spot.

Byman's card read 43-35—78 on seven bogeys, a birdie, two pars and a double bogey on 18. Pacheco defending champ on the host Dutchess CC course, shot 35-37-72.

Soccer, Hockey Star

Army's Mike Palone Draws Scholarship

WEST POINT—Mike Palone, Army's outstanding soccer and hockey player, has been named as the recipient of a $1,000 post-graduate scholarship by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Some 22 college athletes were listed for the award, given at this time to participants in sports other than football and basketball. Army 1967 football captain Bud Neswiacheny received a similar award last winter.

Athletics and scholarship are the key considerations in this award. Not only did Palone receive six varsity letters, three each in soccer and hockey, but he also gathered a long list of honors for athletic achievement. The most important was the Army Athletic Association Trophy, given each year to the graduating cadet who has rendered the most valuable service to athletics during his cadet career. That came to him during the recent June Week ceremonies.

On the scholastic side, Palone stood 94 out of 706 in the graduating class .That put him on the Dean's list several times during his four years at the Military Academy.

Mike was a second team all-America choice in soccer at the close of the 1967 season. In the three years that he was a regular on the varsity, Army went to the NCAA tournament each time. The first two years they gained the semi-finals while the 1967 team ended its title quest in the eastern regionals.

His hockey career was equally impressive. Palone was awarded the Buekama Award in 1966 when only a sophomore, being selected as the outstand-player on the team that winter. His 40 assists that season placed him second in the Army record book. He completed his ice career with 85 assists to rank third in that department and is fifth in scoring in the all-time hockey record book. Palone was captain of the 1967-68 hockey team which finished with a 14-10 season record.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Palone of West Point. Joe is the Army soccer coach and one of the most successful in college ranks.

As an added distinction and one that will carry into later life, young Palone was always on a winning team. Each of the six teams finished with a winning record.

Geanuleas Tops BRL

George Geanuleas of the Veterans of Foreign Wars squad emerges as the top performer in the first 25 games of the Babe Ruth League's 1968 schedule.

On the basis of unofficial tabulations by The Freeman sports department, the Vets' pitcher-first baseman leads in several categories.

He has pitched the only no-hit, no-run game, is tops in strikeouts for one game with 17, has a 1-hitter and 3-hitter to account for VFW's three wins and his hefty .533 batting mark (8 for 15) is believed to be the best in the league.

Don Lackaye of the KPA hurled a no-hitter but yielded one run in a game against the American Legion. Lackaye is bracketed in the one-hit group with Geanuleas and Nick Scott of the American Legion.

17 Strikeouts Tops

Geanuleas is 1-2 in the strikeout department with totals of 17 and 14. Pitchers with 13 Ks in a game include Tom Kuriger, Vince Hart and Don Fisher.

Kithcart Stars

Marshall Kithcart has staged the best individual batting performance of the season—four doubles and five RBIs for the Lions against KPA.

Four players have accounted for three hits in one game: John Stulb, 2 doubles, single; Carl Storezinger, 3 singles; Nick Scott, 3 singles; Bob Darling, 3 singles.

Hurley remains the only undefeated club in the two divisions of the league with a perfect 5-0 record. Knights of Columbus and Vols are 2-1 each.

Penney's His Nibs In Wire-to-Wire Win

Penney's His Nibs, owned by the Penney Creek Farms of Rhinebeck, posted a wire-to-wire victory last night at Monticello Raceway, coming from the far outside seven post and winning handily in 2:07.3.

Driven by Bruce Kenn, Penney's His Nibs pulled away in the stretch to win the $2,000 trot by a length over Phantom Fling (1) and Lockman Hanover (4).

As the starting gate pulled away, Penney's His Nibs and Lockman Hanover shot for the top. In the first turn, they were neck-and-neck, but Kenn pushed his horse a little harder, gaining the lead as they swung out of the clubhouse turn the first time around.

By the first quarter, Penney's His Nibs had opened a two-length lead over Lockman and another over Phantom Fling being reined by Fred Bradbury.

Kenn maintained that lead until the three-quarters when first Lockman Hanover, then Phantom Fling took pot shots at him on the outside. In the final turn, Kenn and Bradbury had their horses racing head-to-head, but Kenn, sticking to the rail, had plenty of trotter left, pulling away to a length lead coming down to the wire.

At 9-1 on the board, the winner returned $21.00 6.80 and 4.40. Phantom Fling was worth $4.00 and 3.20 for place while Lockman Hanover had a $3.80 show price.

Wednesday's feature, a $1,200 trot, was won in 2:09.1 by Mar Con Tenor, who just nipped Dolly Dime at the wire. Al Burton reined the victor, who overtook Bob Ryan's Dolly Dime at the half-mile post and held on to win by a nose.

Ellis and Floyd For the 'Title'

The New Yorker signed Thursday to meet Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14 for the World Boxing Association version of the heavyweight title.

The fight will be held in the 52,000-seat Raasunda soccer stadium with Ellis defending the WBA crown he won last April by defeating Jerry Quarry in Los Angeles.

That was the final of the WBA elimination tourney to determine a successor to Cassius Clay.

Clay was stripped of title recognition by the WBA and the New York Athletic Commission when he refused military induction into the U.S. armed forces.

In Buick Open

Funseth and Baird Tie on 4-Under-68s

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) —Rod Funseth and Butch Baird, each only a one-time winner on the pro tour, were surprise leaders after the first round of the $125,000 Buick Open Thursday with four-under-par 68s.

The field of 143 pros, on the whole, boasted their best scoring in the 11-years of the tournament, 25 of them coming through with sub-par rounds on a fair, cool day with little wind.

Another 10 players were at 70, two-under-par, among them U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and defending Buick champion Julius Boros. The others were Terry Wilcox, Fred Marti, Dick Rhyan, Dave Gumlia, Giboy Gilbert, Hugh Royer, Dave Hill and Frank Beard.

Nine players had 71s and 11 shot par-72.

Funseth, who has won only $13,168 in 20 tournaments this year and who scored his only tourney win in 1965 at Phoenix, got off early in the day with "very little confidence that I could score well."

Instead, he said, "Normally, I'm not the greatest putter in the world but I started putting well. My driving improved, I improved with my irons and everything came together."

He dropped birdie putts of 20 and 25 feet and holed out a 35-footer from a trap on another green. He was over par on only one hole when he put his tee shot into a trap.

Baird, on the tour since 1960 with his only victory in the 1961 Waco Turner Open, played on bumpy greens, but said, "When you hit the ball right it goes over the bumps and in and when it doesn't go in, you blame it on the bumps."

Bill Glass Rolls 629 in Mixed Loop

Bill Glass rolled games of 233 and 205 and used them to form a 629 that paced the action in the mixed league.

Lions Rip VFW, 7-4

Joe Brown hurled a 5-hitter and fanned nine to pace Kingston Lions to a 7-4 victory over V.F.W. in the Babe Ruth League. He also hit a double and knocked in two runs.

Jim Latorre had a single-double combination and two RBIs for the Lions. Ken Hoffstatter collected two singles for VFW.

Cunha Was Man Apart For His Local Players

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Three Kingston residents who played basketball under the late Dan Cunha at Siena College, remember him as being more than just a basketball coach.

Mike Perry, hoop boss at Ulster County Community College and Frank Koenig, insurance executive, are in Albany attending today's funeral rites for the 55-year-old Cunha, Siena's most successful hoop mentor, who died Tuesday. The third, Dick Terlingen, is in Taiwan, Nationalist China on assignment for IBM and cannot attend.

Perry, a disciple of Cunha, departed for Albany Tuesday evening, immediately after receiving word from Cunha's family that the coach failed to recover from a long, serious, illness. Cunha was hospitalized the last two months.

Cunha, a 1935 graduate of Notre Dame, coached Terlingen initially. Standing 6-foot-5, Terlingen was a member of Cunha's greatest teams, performing for the coach from 1949-53, years when Siena rose to national prominence in the hoop world.

Koenig Came in 1952

Koenig followed, coming under Cunha's hand in 1952 and playing on a string of four outstanding teams. Perry, 27, first played, then coached with Cunha in the fiery pilot's last few years at the Loudenville campus.

As an undergraduate, Perry played for Cunha. While working on his master's degree, the UCCC coach served as an assistant to the Siena boss.

Of the trio, Perry enjoyed probably the closest relationship with Cunha. They became extremely good friends, unusual considering the great difference in ages.

"He was honest with his men, a tough disciplinarian. He played the game for keeps, but on the highest plane," Koenig said, in reflecting on the days he spent as a player for Cunha.

"He was more than a coach, he influenced, guided, shaped, our way of life, mine especially. How we turned out was more important to him than anything else. He was a part of all our future developments, always making time for us, whether we had problems on or off the court. I remember times when he stayed until midnight and even one in the morning helping someone solve a court problem first, then a personal difficulty," the insurance man added.

Never Forget Him

"I can't describe him in words, but I know I'll never forget him. He played with smaller men in a bigger man's league, and it never got him down. Each of us was an individual first, a ballplayer next and in toto, a team. That's the way he wanted it, and no one found him wrong. I never questioned him, nor did anyone else. I never realized how truly great he was until I graduated and was in the service," Koenig concluded.

Marilyn Terlingen can attest to Cunha's great desire to excel despite the odds. "The one thing that stands out in my mind is Dick's constant statement about how great a basketball coach he was. Dick always said that if anybody knew basketball, in the truest sense of the game, it was Coach Cunha," she related.

Cunhas record at Siena was an excellent 247-225 won-loss record. The compilation runs from 1939-65, the last 10 years without a single hoopster on scholarship. Looking at the 1947-52 span, the finest years in the school's history, Cunha's record was an amazing 115-33, including a national championship. More than once, his Indians won national defensive honors with their possession type game.

Generated Excitement

"I wasn't closely associated with the team at all. In fact, I didn't go to see them play until Dick was a senior," Mrs. Terlingen added, "but those teams of his (Cunha) put Albany on the map basketball-wise. You can't imagine the excitement they generated. They were the talk of the country."

"When we heard last month that he (Cunha) was ill, Dick became extremely concerned. Dick's work and the trip (Terlingen will return in five weeks —he left three weeks ago) kept him from going to see the coach, but Dick wanted to see him. I think he's like to be at the funeral," she said.

Cunha was both praised and criticized throughout his coaching career. The men who played for him agree that "He didn't let the accolades go to his head or the critics get him down."

Now that he's dead, the detractors will be silenced and the pro-Cunha fans will rise to the fore, heaping compliments on the memory of the coach.

Perry, long before Cunha's death, paid the coach perhaps the finest compliment a man can give another fellow human. Perry's statement was simply, "Thanks for making me what I am."

Dr. Fager, Bold Ruler, Topple Mighty Damascus

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Suburban and Monmouth Oaks were the headliners of a busy Fourth of July stakes program.

Ycaza had Damascus close to Dr. Fager for most of the Suburban, but Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's 1967 Horse of the Year faded in the stretch as Dr. Fager raced to a two-length victory over George D. Widener's Bold Hour .

Damascus was another three lengths back, followed by Paul Mellon's Amerigo Lady and Mrs. Frances Genter's In Reality.

Dr. Fager, owned by William L. McKnight and carrying 132 pounds, one less than Damascus, broke the stakes record of 2:00 3-5 and tied the track record of 1:59 3-5.

The first prize of $69,615 out of the gross purse of $107,100 boosted Dr. Fager's career earnings to $776,237. The $10,700 Damascus earned for third lifted his career bankroll to $943,316.

Saugerties Club Keeps Pressure On Legislation

Saugerties Fish and Game Club is mobilizing its resources to oppose currently proposed gun legislation.

At its last meeting, the club voted to check into costs of conducting a township survey to determine public attitude toward gun controls.

Containers for donations to assist in defraying cost of the questionnaire have been placed in strategic locations in the township.

A public forum to discuss gun legislation was also suggested. Gordon Liddy, Conservative candidate for Congress from the 28th congressional district, was mentioned as a possible speaker. The club also announced vigorous support of all political candidates, who oppose unnecessary gun legislation.

The club's committee against gun controls emphasized the importance of keeping the letter-writing campaign in high gear. Letters objecting to gun control legislation should be addressed to Senator Javits, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Dear Abby

Manners Need a Manicure

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is highly successful in his field, well educated, well traveled, and respected in this community, BUT when he is present, no one else can get a word in.

I cannot recall ever having been in this man's company when he didn't take the floor and hold it all evening. Granted, he IS charming and entertaining, but there have been times when other interesting guests could have added something worthwhile to the conversation. But this man's voice is the only one that's heard.

Just what does one do about a person like this?

IRKED

DEAR IRKED: In the absence of a "friend" to tell this boor that his manners need manicuring, an enemy will do. A guest who comes to the party and hogs all the conversation is no better than one who hogs all the food.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our three children (ages 8, 10, and 13) were invited to a relative's home for supper recently. She had one large table set for the adults and another one for the children.

My daughter, age 13, came to me and said she wasn't going to sit with the "babies." (Two of her 12 - year - old cousins were sitting at that table and they didn't complain.) I told her not to make a fuss and to go sit down and be quiet. Being a very head - strong child, she raised her voice a bit and said she would rather go home. Well, I wasn't about to take her home and I couldn't let her walk home alone at night, so in order to avoid a scene I told her to go get her chair and to sit by me, which she did.

I dislike scenes in public and I still think I did the right thing. My husband said I should have told the spoiled little stinker to either sit where she was put or to got into the bedroom and sulk. What is your opinion?

BROOKLYN

DEAR BROOKLYN: With such a smart husband, why are you writing to Dear Abby?

DEAR ABBY: First, let me explain that I am not some kind of nut, neither am I a sex maniac, which is what most people think when they learn that I am a nudist.

I took up nudism eight years ago and I can't say enough for it. It is the greatest equalizer in the world. At a nudist camp there is complete honesty. A person IS what he is, and he can't fool anybody with fancy clothes. It takes a genuinely honest person to go before his fellow man just as God made him, willing to be judged strictly on his character, personality, and true self.

The sun is nature's best medicine. Why cover the body and diminish its healthful rays?

I am not trying to sell nudism to people who think it's "dirty." They wouldn't make good nudists anyway. I just want to say a few words in defense of some of the most misunderstood people in the world. Thank you. NUDIST, DEL RAY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a tactful way to handle a friend (not close) who never uses our doorbell, but always opens our front door, walks right in, and calls our name?

She does this consistently. We are very much annoyed, but quite puzzled as to how to let her know. We are not up tight people, but we do value our privacy.

INTRUDED UPON

DEAR INTRUDED: People who "value their privacy" usually lock their doors. Lock yours. Your friend will soon get the message.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

How Experts Locate Cards

By Oswald and James Jacoby

When an expert stops to think over a play of the hand you can be sure of two things. The first is that he has something to think about, and the second is that he will probably solve his problem.

When an ordinary player stops to think you can be equally sure that he has something to think about but you can't always be sure he will solve his problem.

There is nothing wrong with the North - South bidding. South has almost enough to open with a forcing two bid and can certainly afford to go to a slam after North jumps to game.

The slam also is one that will make. Unless all three trumps show up in one hand there is no defense. Even with all trumps in one hand, South makes his contract if he guesses which opponent will hold the queen.

The play starts with West opening his ace of clubs and continuing the suit. South is in with the king and right here is where South should take a little time to decide whether to lead the ace or a low spade.

An expert would surely lead the ace of spades. He would note that West had a club suit headed by the ace but had not got into the bidding against vulnerable opponents. That might indicate to some players that he did not also hold the queen of spades but to an expert it would indicate that West would be most unlikely to hold no spades at all. People try to get into the bidding when they are not vulnerable and when they think they don't have much defense. The queen of an opponent's bid suit represents possible defense. No cards in an opponent's bid suit represents a possible cheap save.

Therefore the expert would lead his ace of spades at trick three and pick up the queen when East showed out.

After listening to the crude malapropisms of the guest speaker, the company manager wondered who was responsible for inviting him.

The English professor, a man known for his careful use of words, reminded his students that he would not tolerate the use of malapropisms in his class.

Only 20 New Video Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Proof that regular television series are mere filler is found in next season's three-network schedule. Only 20 new series will be attempted by the major broadcasting organization, most of them the usual run-of-the-mill stuff. More and more energy is being directed, instead, at future and fresher forms of television.

Well, that's the optimistic way of looking at it. Until the inspiration for these newer forms finds full flower, we must steel ourselves over the summer for the annual fall deluge. Here are the 20 new series we can expect:

The Lineup

"—Aadm-12." Half-hour program about the experiences of two squad car policemen of the Los Angeles force.

—"Julia." Diahann Carroll as a young widow, a registered nurse in the health office of an industrial corporation. She has a six-year-old son. Half-hour.

—"The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." Half-hour comedy about a young widow's adventures with her children and housekeeper in a home still inhabited by the spirit of its former owner, a formidable clippership captain. With Hope Lange and Edward Mulhare.

—"Land of the Giants." Hour program about space travelers who are suddenly flung into a land in which everything is mammoth in size and they are tiny.

—"The Outcasts." Story of the relationship of two men, one white and a former Virginia aristocrat, the other a black ex-slave who becomes a bounty hunter, in the West following the war between North and South. One hour weekly, with Don Murray and Otis Young.

—"The Mod Squad." Three young people, working for the police, penetrate the world of crime effectively because of their knowledge of the contemporary turned-on scene. One hour.

And The Others

— "That's Life." Robert Morse in a musical comedy series tracing the lives of a young couple from courtship to wedding to honeymoon and the first married years. One hour.

—"Here comes the brides." Comedy about respectable and marriageable women who are imported to make a civilized community of a previously all-male Seattle logging camp in the old west. Hour.

—"The Ugliest Girl in Town." Half-hour comedy, filmed in London, about a boy who is in love with a girl, but is transformed, by circumstances, into "Timmy"—the model of the mod, mod world—with an assist from Beatle-ish wig and a "super-mini outfit."

—"Tales of the Unknown." Hour anthology.

—The Don Rickles Show. The noted insult comedian brings his brand of honor to a game show with celebrities, of which he is host. Half-hour.

—"Mayberry, R.F.D." an offshoot of the Andy Griffith series. This stars Ken Berry as a farmer and town councilman in the same Southern locale. Half-hour.

—"Lancer.' Hour western.

—The Doris Day Show. Half-hour series about a widow who returns to the family ranch with her two sons to begin a new life far different from the one they led in the city.

—"The Good Guys." Half-hour comedy about a fast-talking cab driver and the operator of a diner, and their get-rich-quick schemes. With Bob Denver, Herb Edelman.

Mack (one of his victims) — Aw, that s nothing. I dropped my watch into the East River over a year ago, and it's been running ever since.

Mack — No. The same river.

Then there was the man who lost $150 sitting up with a slick friend.

Bill — Not with me it isn't. Saturday's my payday.

A born loser is the guy who sticks his hand out of his car window to signal a turn and smacks a cop in the mouth.

Maybe our foreign policy would work better if all our spies weren't tied up doing television series.

Mr. Smith (rushing home one day) — Hurrah, darling, I've made dollars today over a big deal. Now you can have some decent clothes for Christmas.

Mrs. Smith — Indeed, I'll do no such thing. I'll have the kind other women wear.

Mr. Brown — Ah! a partridge at last!

Law and Order the July 4 Theme Of 3 Presidential Contenders

By United Press International

The shadow of violence and disorder in the nation made itself felt in Independence Day celebrations as presidential contenders from three parties pleaded for law and order.

Americans must "support the rule of law, lest the law of the jungle become the law of human behavior," said Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as he was heckled in front of Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

Law-abiding Americans are buying guns "because they have lost faith in government's ability to protect them," said Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan in an old California gold rush town.

"A good crease in the skull would stop this," said former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace before he left Minneapolis where police earlier had to use a disabling chemical spray and clubs to quell demonstrators.

VP Faces Pickets

Humphrey, facing boisterous antiwar pickets and "McCarthy for president" signs, asserted the right of Americans to "walk the streets and proclaim their cause without fear of violence."

Reagan, favorite son presidential candidate of California Republicans, said that if the government met its responsibility to protect its citizens, the purchase of weapons would probably decrease.

Wallace, angered at a wild demonstration in Minneapolis' auditorium Wednesday night, said before returning home: "I can assure you that if I'm elected president, I'll show you how to keep law and order."

"Freedom to speak, freedom to listen, and the full and open right to communicate and reason together are essential to our system of government and our fulfillment as individuals," President Johnson said in a statement released by the Texas White House.

Other Developments

In other political developments:

Nelson A. Rockefeller—The New York governor was vacationing in Hawaii over Independence Day but his New York office issued a statement saying his presidentiai platform would include an 8-point "fair deal for consumers."

Eugene J. McCarthy—McCarthy met with National Farmers Organization head Oren Lee Staley in Corning, Iowa, and Staley said the NFO would not change its policy of not endorsing political candidates. Earlier, the Minnesota senator told a big Fourth of July crowd—most of them farmers—that farmers "are tired of promises that go unfulfilled."

Richard M. Nixon—Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., a leading House GOP tactician, said he thought the former vice president would do well to select someone as his running mate who would appeal to the urban voter. He suggested former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner.

Hanoi's Hand Strengthened By Soviet Pledge of Help

By GEORGE SIBERA

PARIS (UPI) — A Soviet pledge of continued military and economic aid to North Vietnam strengthened the hand today of Hanoi's negotiators at the Vietnam War talks, diplomatic sources said.

The Hanoi delegation was jubilant over the pledge for renewed aid announced in Moscow Thursday, they said. It was expected to cement the delegation's hard-line attitude.

American and North Vietnamese negotiators have met 11 times since their discussions opened May 13. They have made no progress. The North Vietnamese have insisted the United States halt unconditionally all bombing of North Vietnam. The Americans have demanded Hanoi respond to a partial bombing halt ordered March 31 by scaling down fighting in South Vietnam.

A 12th session is scheduled next week.

The North Vietnamese government continued its hard line today by warning Thailand and South Korea they must stop sending troops to South Vietnam and by again demanding an unconditional end to U.S. bombing.

"Everybody can see the losing position of the United States in South Vietnam," a statement of the Foreign Ministry in Hanoi broadcast on radio and monitored in Tokyo said.

The statement said the United States should withdraw from South Vietnam its troops and "troops of its satellites ' and let the South Vietnamese settle their internal affairs by themselves.

The broadcast said the warning was directed at President Park Chung Hee of South Korea and Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Deputy Prime Minister Praphas Charusathien of Thailand. It said South Korea and Thailand intend to send more troops to Vietnam.

In Paris the Hanoi delegation counted on a four-day anti-American international conference of jurist sin Grenoble to gain new sympathy for North Vietnam. The left-leaning jurists were to study the right of the South Vietnamese population to choose its form of government, the recent "American Crimes of War," and the judicial aspects of the U.S. "aggression."

France Today:

Crisis in the Pocketbook

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

PARIS (UPI)—In France a gallon of gasoline costs $1 or more today and is going up. The national economy is running scared.

No Devaluation

French officials said De Gaulle's government is determined to live up to its pledges not to devalue the Franc. And that is the heart of the matter. Devaluation—about five francs now equal $1—would strike French prestige and wipe out much of the recent salary hikes.

In the past 10 years, De Gaulle painfully, proudly built up its stores of gold and foreign exchange currencies. Once a postwar economic sickman, France by the end of May had $6.4 billion in Bank of France reserves. Then the trouble came.

The big strike resulted in big wage increases. It also walloped industry with lost production and the cost of the pay boosts.

In London, Zurich and other world banking centers, financiers reckoned the new look in Paris' Franc was more Twiggy than Anita Ekberg.

They began selling Francs, figuring boom was giving way to bust in France. De Gaulle has had already to shell out $1.3 billion in gold reserves to pay off the Franc sellers and the end is not in sight.

Raises Bank Interest

De Gaulle raised bank interest rates from 3.5 to 5 per cent in order to keep foreign money from fleeing France. No French government had done such a thing since prewar depression days. No one appeared sure even that would work.

French stocks have been falling in exchanges around the world. De Gaulle only weeks ago had been scolding the United States and Britain about their allegedly weak currencies, the dollar and the pound. Now the Franc was under attack. He has taken more defensive measures.

Reluctantly his Common Market partners—West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—are allowing De Gaulle to throw up protective tariffs to protect his weakened econoy. The Common Market was to have become this week one big open market—no real tariff barriers at the borders. His partners were pressing De Gaulle to be done with these temporary tariffs by year's end.

Short Protest

DENVER (UPI)—Lorenz Peifer, 70, told the judge he was just demonstrating against some girls down the block who were wearing bikinis at the carwash.

The judge dismissed a drunkenness charge against Peifer but found him guilty of disturbance because he went down the street in his underwear.

Ex-Mayor of Birmingham Will Defend James Ray

THE DEFENSE—Arthur Hanes, lawyer from Alabama who today "officially" accepted the defense of James Earl Ray, accused killer of Dr. Martin Luther King, talks in press office of London's Royal Lancaster Hotel. He flew in from the United States. (UPI CABLEFOTO DIRECT FROM LONDON.)

By SCOTT B. BRUNS

LONDON (UPI)—Arthur J. Hanes said today he had "officially" accepted the job of defending accused assassin James Earl Ray. He said he might use a plea of insanity if Ray is brought to trial in America for the sniper slying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Hanes, the former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., arrived in London today to confer with Ray in the American's maximum security London cell. Ray is fighting extradition to the United States.

"Perhaps there will be a plea of not guilty and there may be other pleas in defense of that plea," Hanes told newsmen at a London airport.

"Not guilty by reason of insanity—that could be raised," Hanes said. "All pleas are being considered and checked out. I'm considering, of course, every plea there is on his behalf."

The Alabama attorney said he wanted to talk to Ray to get some of his background.

"As of now I am acting officially for him," Hanes said.

Chief Magistrate Frank Milton ended an extradition hearing in London Bow Street Magistrate's Court Tuesday by ordering Ray returned to the United States. However, Milton's decision will be appealed to a British higher court. If the court denies the appeal, Ray could be sent back before the end of the month.

Ray complained at the Tuesday hearing he had not been allowed to see Hanes when the American lawyer visited Britain two weks ago. The British Home Office denied it had refused Hanes permission.

Sources close to the Home Office said Hanes, the attorney who successfully defended the men accused of killing civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo, was given permission to see Ray today as "an ordinary visitor." Hanes is not admitted to practice law before British courts.

Hanes said Ray asked for his help in a two-page handwritten letter sent from London after his June 8 arrest. Ray, 40, an escaped convict from Missouri, was arrested at London Heathrow Airport traveling under forged Canadian passports that bore the name of a Toronto policeman, Ramon George Sneyd.

Egypt Offers Hope For Mideast Peace

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

Senior diplomats say Egypt has offered to take back a United Nations peacekeeping force on its soil as part of an Arab-Israeli settlement, but meanwhile a boost in Egyptian military spending was reported in Cairo.

Diplomats in London said the readiness of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser to restore a U.N. peace force under some guaranteed form of tenure has been conveyed to the mission of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring.

It was deemed a hopeful development because Nasser's expulsion of U.N. troops was a major factor in the train of events that led to the six-day Middle East war of June 1967.

Efforts Stymied

Efforts toward a settlement have been stymied by Israel's refusal to give back captured Arab lands without direct negotiations with the Arabs, and the Arabs' refusal to meet face-to-face with the Israelis. The United Nations has called for Israel to withdraw from captured territory and for the Arabs to end their belligerency toward Israel.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told newsmen Thursday prospects for progress in the Middle East seem better.

One encouraging development, he said, was a statement attributed to Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad that "we recognize realities and Israel is one of them. Now we want peace."

But the Egyptian government, in announcing a $4.6-billion budget Thursday, said it was geared mainly to "sacrifices to enhance military expenditure and to liberate Arab lands occupied by Israel."

No defense figures were disclosed, but semiofficial sources said this year's defense appropriation is the highest in Egyptian history.

Emergency Fund

A special $293.25-million emergency fund was created to consolidate the armed forces and popular resistance against the Israeli occupation of the Egyptian Sinai peninsula and the east bank of the Suez Canal.

The fund would be raised largely as contributions from Arab oil states, donations from private citizens and a civil defense tax.

Nasser conferred for the second day today with Soviet leaders in Moscow, and observers said that the visit could provide a chance for Egypt and its Soviet patron to weigh any new efforts to end the Middle East stalemate.

However, it was understood Nasser also would ask for more Russian arms and aid.

By WALTER S. CLARK

While Ulster County passed the Fourth of July holiday without a single traffic fatality, Dutchess and Orange counties recorded highway deaths. The national toll of deaths in traffic mounted steadily today as millions of Americans returned to work after an Independence Day off and many others extended their holiday outings into the long weekend.

11 Dead in State

The total death toll reached 224 midday through the second day of the four-day holiday. A two-car collision in which four persons were killed pushed the traffic death toll to 11 in New York State. In addition, a young woman died of carbon monoxide poisoning in a car parked southwest of Olean.

Overnight temperatures dipped into the 40s in some parts of the state. Generally cool weather, partly cloudy skies and scattered showers were forecast through tonight.

The collision that took four lives occurred Thursday night near the entrance to the Kissing Bridge ski resort in Glenwood, about 20 miles southeast of Buffalo.

The National Safety Council has estimated that between 700 and 800 Americans may die in motor vehicle accidents in the weekend that began at 6 p. m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

A New York City couple died of injuries after their car left the Taconic Parkway one mile north of Route 44 in the Town of Pleasant Valley, Dutchess County, at 10:50 a. m. Thursday. Sheriff's sergeant Hugh Brennan identifed the dead as Leo Lilienfeld, 67, of 523 East 14th Street, and his wife, Sara M. Lilienfeld, 68.

The sheriff's office reported the car was driven at the time by Mrs. Lilienfeld when the vehicle left the highway and traveled about 100 feet before it crashed into a tree. Both occupants were pronounced dead at the scene by a passing physician.

Sgt. Brennan said it was not definitely determined whether Mrs. Lilienfeld suffered a heart attack before or after the car hit the tree. Her death was attributed to a heart seizure. Her husband died of a fractured skull and lacerations of the brain, according to a report of Chief Investigator Charles Borchers who investigated with deputy sheriffs.

Orange Fatality

Bruce Myslinski, 17, of Goshen, was injured fatally early today when his automobile overturned and struck a tree beside King's Highway in the Orange County community of Monroe. State Police said Myslinski died in St. Anthony's Hospital in nearby Warwick three hours after the accident.

Allen Dzierzek, 17, also of Goshen, a companion and a passenger in the vehicle, was injured. He was reported in good condition at the Warwick hospital.

State police reported that a 64-year-old Bronx man driving north on the State Thruway near Nyack early yesterday suddenly pulled his car to the side of the superhighway and died of an apparent heart attack. Authorities said the victim was Leonard W. Mason of 992 Boston Post Road in the Bronx.

The vehicle driven by Mason narrowly missed several passing cars on the Thruway, authorities reported. Passengers in the vehicle driven by the Bronx man were his wife, Anna, 61, and daughter, Mrs. Betty Jones of Long Island City. They told troopers the man complained of chest pains before he pulled off the pavement and stopped on the shoulder.

Dead at Scene

Mason was pronounced dead at the scene, which was near the Palisades Parkway entrance to the Thruway.

Two persons were injured at 11:30 p. m. Thursday when their car went out of control and slammed into a utility pole off South Gate Road in the Town of Lloyd. Trooper B. S. O'Connor reported that Anthony A. Puglio, 22, of Yorkshire Apartments, Poughkeepsie, was driving his car south and negotiating a left curve when the mishap occurred.

Puglio sustained lacerations and lost two teeth. His wife, Cynthia, 21, received lacerations of the lower lip. Both were

Red Missiles Fail to Stop B52s

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. B52s struck North Vietnam's Southern Panhandle for the fifth day in a row in one of the war's heaviest bombardments, military spokesmen said today. The Communists vainly tried to stop the Stratofortresses with missile fire.

The spokesmen said crewmen aboard the eight-engine Strategic Air Command bombers Thursday saw at least two surface to air missiles (SAMs) fired at them. Both missed.

It was the first time in two months the North Vietnamese had got a shot at the high-flying B52s. Five of the Stratoforts have crashed due to accidents in Vietnam but none has been lost in combat despite repeated Hanoi boasts.

Smaller U.S. jets flew 141 missions Thursday against North Vietnam southern panhandle supply lines, with no planes being lost. In South Vietnam Thursday, guerrilla ground fire shot down a U.S. Army helicopter, killing three Americans, and an Air Force jet whose two-man crew were rescued.

Because of the danger of missiles, the B52s have rarely—until this week—ventured into North Vietnam. But U.S. spokesmen revealed that since Sunday the huge bombers have pounded North Vietnamese territory 27 times—11 times inside the border of the Demilitarized Zone and 16 times above.

In four strikes Thursday, the B52s bombed artillery sites, weapons positions and suspected North Vietnamese army troop concentrations, spokesmen said.

American intelligence sources said that since U.S. bombing was limited to the panhandle April 1, the North Vietnamese have increased both the number of troops and gun batteries just above the DMZ.

About 100 North Vietnamese troops at dawn Thursday charged out of dense jungle and at U. S. Marines 12 miles below the DMZ and three miles southeast of Khe Sanh, the Leatherneck fort being abandoned.

The Marines, number about 200, drove the attackers back. They killed at least 17 North Vietnamese. Four Marines were killed and 13 wounded.

The battle lasted 40 minutes. It erupted where the Marines were guarding Highway 9, the only open road from allied coastal bastions to Khe Sanh.

Nearer Saigon, U.S. Army infantrymen still had no report on how many Communist soldiers died in an almost suicidal assault on a U.S. camp 40 miles northwest of the capital, where the Viet Cong are believed massing 2,000 to 4,000 troops for a push toward the city.

Three American soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in the 500-round mortar and rocket barrage preceding the attack and during the 2½-hour fight at Dau Tieng itself.

In other developments:

— President Nguyen Van Thieu gave his blessing to a new alliance of 28 Vietnamese political and civic organizations with all the earmarks of a pro-government political party.

—U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman completed his third day in Vietnam with another tour of agricultural projects. He is to leave for Manila Saturday.

Meanwhile, three members of the National Mobilization Committee travel to Hanoi this weekend to arrange for the release of three American pilots captured by the North Vietnamese.

Rennie Davis, Chicago coordinator of the NMC, said Thursday the pilots could be reunited with their families in the United States within two weeks.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast monitored in Tokyo Wednesday said North Vietnam would release three unidentified pilots. It did not say when.

Davis said he was contacted by Tom Hayden, head of the NMC who is now in Paris, to organize the trip. Davis identified those who will go to Hanoi as Stuart Meacham of Philadelphia, Vernon Grizzard of Boston and Ann Scheer of Berkeley, Calif.

Davis said the group needed $5,000 to pay expenses of the release. He said all other prisoners who had been released, either by North Vietnam or the National Liberation Front, "have been released to antiwar representatives."

TIME OUT FROM WAR—A U.S. 9th Inf. Div. officer, Lt. Richard Balmaceda of Los Angeles, Calif., kneels in prayer in front of a Statue of the Madonna in the area of Saigon near the Y Bridge where action of the May Viet Cong offensive was heavy. Savago Says 'No' On Independent Run

By LYNN MULVANEY

Despite persistent rumors to the contrary, Republican Peter J. Savago told The Freeman this morning that he is not going to run independenttly for the New York State Assembly in the November election.

When asked if he ever had or intended to do so, he replied, "No, I have no plans."

Almost simultaneously, a call for Republican party unity went out this morning in face of another possible threat to Republican H. Clark Bell's race for the seat. Bell defeated Savago in the June 18 primary.

The unity plea was made by one of Bell's campaign managers, Raymond Armater, who referred to a recent newspaper column which hinted at the organization of a committee of Republicans for the Democratic candidate, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman.

In a press release Armater said, "A determined majority of Republican party members elected H. Clark Bell as their candidate in the primary. It would indeed be unfortunate if the various GOP factions that failed to support Bell in the primary are so vindictive as not to support him now that he is the official choice of the Republican party.

Armater reminded the campaigners for Savago and other GOP factions that such splinter groups weaken the party internally if they fail to abide by the majority decisions of a primary contest.

GOP unity coupled with Bell's Conservative party backing and the huge support anticipated from independent backers will assure the assembly seat for the Republicans, Armater concluded.

Tokyo Jolted Anew

TOKYO (UPI)—The second earthquake in two days and the third this week jolted Tokyo Friday at 8:29 p. m. There were no immediate reports of damage or injury.

Weekend Summit Prelude

Johnson planned to leave early Saturday.

Authoritative sources said another trip to Latin America, possibly Colombia, was in the works for later this summer. Also rumored is a return journey to the Pacific for a meeting with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Another Hijack Try

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A prisoner aboard an airliner carrying 71 passengers slipped away from his guards long enough to try a daring plot to hijack the plane.

None of the other passengers aboard the Trans World Airlines plane knew of the threat made quietly by John Hamilton Morris to a stewardess:

"I've got dynamite in this bag. And my two buddies have guns. Turn this plane around and fly it to Hermosillo, Mexico."

The stewardess told the pilot. Capt. C. P. Barron changed course. For 20 minutes, while Morris sat between two deputy U.S. marshals, Barron slowly circled southern Nevada.

Then, as Barron sat the Boeing 727 down at McCarran Field, Morris bolted for a door. His guards grabbed and subdued him.

Gun Control Legislation: Some for, Others Opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress, trying to adjourn or at least recess within a month, found itself this holiday weekend in what military men call a meatgrinder. All because of guns.

From one side come vehement demands for more gun control legislation. From another come equally vodiferous demands to legislate against the criminal and leave guns alone.

The emotional issue, with extremists on both sides, has imposed a dilemma on many members of Congress.

Many once-adamant opponents of new gun controls have siwtched sides since the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Other lawmakers have labeled the subsequent public outcry against guns "mass hysteria." Still others have judged the reaction from all quarters extreme and called for cooler heads.

Chances appear slim for President Johnson's most stringent request, but reaonsably good for some kind of controls. Congress is in a mood to act, but the question is how far will it go?

The principal measures are these:

—Johnson's bill to prohibit all mail order sales of guns and ammunition.

—The President's bill to register all firearms and license all gun owners.

—A bill by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., to register all guns and license all gun owners, but give the states a chance to do it first.

Given the best chance of passage is the mail order ban, since it would supplement the mail order prohibition of pistols and revolvers already contained in the anticrime bill signed by the President last month.

Next most likely to pass is Tydings' bill, which could wind up as a companion measure to the extended mail order ban.

President's licensing and registration measure — reqiure all privately owned firearms be registered and all gun owners licensed. If a firearm owner could not meet licensing requirements, his guns would be purchased by the U.S. Treasury at a "reasonable" price. No ammunition could be purchased unless the buyer presented to the seller a registration certificate for the particular gun in which it would be used. If, within two years, a state imposes equally restrictive laws, federal regulations would expire. If not, the state would lose its share of federal wildlife conservation funds.

Tydings' Bill—Require federal registration of firearms in two years if a state has not adopted equally restrictive laws; require federal licensing to purchase guns or ammunition unless states approved equally effective laws. To qualify for a license, an applicant would have to be over 18, not under indictment, not convicted of a felony, nor committed for alcoholism, narcotics addiction or for being mentally incompetent.

The President's Mail Order Ban—Forbid mail order sale of firearms and interstate shipment of ammunition except between dealers or manufacturers; set 21 as as the minimum age for purchase of pistols and revolvers and 18 for the over-the-counter sales of rifles and shotguns. Limit store purchase to state residents and require dealers to keep strict records of guns and ammunition purchases.

Additionally, to be licensed under this last bill, an applicant for a gun license would have to be fingerprinted and photographed. He would be denied a license if he were too young, suffered from a mental ailment, alcoholism or narcotics addiction, was under criminal indictment, or had been convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, or who was a fugitive from justice.

These bills generally define guns as completed firearms or the "actions" alone, even though no barrel or stock was attached. A barrel by itself would not be classified as a firearm, nor would the stock.

As for ammunition, the bills specify that bullets, cartridge cases, primers and gunpowder would each come under the heading of "ammunition."

Cartridge reloading tools, such as presses and dies and other hand-loading equipment, would not be affected.

For County Sales Tax

Legislators to Introduce Resolution

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Three county legislators representing the City of Kingston are pressing for enactment of a county sales tax this year and have indicated the immediate need by filing a resolution seeking adoption at the July 11 session of the County Legislature.

The measure calling for a 2 per cent county sales tax will be introduced by Legislators John Sangaline, Melvin Mones and Wendell Scherer.

This would be contrary to a progress report in April by the Tax Base Study Committee of the Legislature, headed by Clarence Raichle, R-Kingston.

In April the committee reported that studies conducted up to that time would indicate that the commitee will recommend adoption of a 2 per cent sales tax to become effective next year.

The majority report of the committee said the sales tax would mean revenues to the county of between $4 million and $4½ million per year and noted this is a substantial sum when compared with the 1968 general tax levy of $7,685,000, all charged against the real property in the county.

The report recommended that the Legislature go forward with plans to implement a county-wide sales and use tax after further study and evaluation.

The committee justified the need for a sales tax in a detailed analysis of the currrent budget as well as anticipated county expenditures in the 1969 and 1970 bpdgets because of mandated capital improvements. The study listed the need for a new county jail, a new county infirmary, growth and expansion of the Community College, a county airport, and other county needs. The report also noted that general operating costs of the county will continue to rise because of anticipated increases in salaries, social services, highway improvement and other essential services.

The Tax Base Study Committee in addition to Raichle includes Mones, Philip H. Davis and Ernest J. Gardner, Republicans, 11th District; Orrie Riehl, D-Kingston; C. Freeman Lasher, R-Saugerties, and Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District.

The resolution to be introduced July 11 notes that owners of real property are no longer able to bear the increased burden imposed by the annual raise in real property taxes.

At the December 14 meeting the resolution introduced by Sangaline was referred to committee by a vote of 28 to 3.

Kingston's 2 per cent sales tax levy went into effect March 1 placing the merchants and businessmen in the city at a disadvantage. Kingston this week received its first quarterly payment of $80,000 from the state.

News Comes Late

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet public learned an America jet airliner had been forced down by Soviet fighters in the Kurile Islands in a Tass news agency report distributed Thursday night which said the Soviets had filed an official protest because of a violation of Soviet air space.

Oneonta Boy, 16, Improves; Liver Transplant Operation

BOSTON (AP) — A 16-year-old boy from Oneonta, N.Y., who underwent a liver transplant operation shows "every evidence of recovery," says a member of the eight-man medical team that replaced the youth's liver with that of a 12-year-old boy killed in an accident.

What he had was not curable or receptive by normal surgical means," Dr. Allen Birtch told a reporter.

The donor was identified as a 12-year-old boy who had suffered fatal head injuries in an automobile accident.

"Convalescence is not a simple matter," Birtch said Thursday night. He added, however, that Gorence "has done well so far and shows every evidence of recovery."

Birtch said the eight-hour operation was accomplished through techniques developed in the last six to eight months.

Another liver-transplant operation was performed at Peter Bent Brigham in 1963, before the development of antilymphocyte serum, which was used to help suppress the rejection mechanism of Gorence's body.

The other patient died after 11 days, Birtch said.

Gorence is expected to remain hospitalized for at least two months.

The youth's father, John, a state trooper, died in 1966 of injuries suffered in a plane crash His mother, Mrs. John Knapp, has remarried.

The family said the youth was knocked unconscious while playing basketball for Manlius Military Academy, near Syracuse, last February. It was believed at first, the family said, that he had suffered a spleen injury. An operation revealed the cancer, however.

Birtch said he believes there have been about a dozen liver transplantations performed in this country.

Dinner on July 14th To Launch Dr. Gorman Bid

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman's campaign for election to the state assembly will be officially launched on Sunday, July 14, by a bi-partitsan area group which calls itself "Friends for the Election of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman to the New York State Assembly."

The Democratic candidate will be guest of honor at a buffet supper at 6 p. m. at the Walnut Grove on Field Court in Kingston. The committee emphasized that this will be an informal funds-raising affair with music and no speakers.

A spokesman for the newly-formed committee said the event will attract many of Dr. Gorman's friends and supporters from all walks of life and political affiliations.

"We have the outstanding candidate for the New York State Assembly in Dr. Gorman," a committee statement said. "Despite the exhaustive schedule imposed upon him as a successful surgeon, he still finds time to devote his energy to the political needs of Ulster County. He reserves bipartisan support and we are confident he will get it."

Deadline for reservations is July 10, but tickets may be purchased at the door. Heading the buffet committee are: Helen Fisher of Port Ewen; and Mary Fisher, Peggy Cline, Florence Crosby and Rose Hogan, all of Kingston.

Valley Crops Hurt by Rain

New Paltz Supervisor Anthony Moriello claimed that weather conditions have seriously hurt crops throughout the Hudson Valley region.

"The steady rains have really hurt the cherry crop," said the New Paltz Republican, adding that the rain that fell in June meant that it was too much for the cherries to absorb.

Moriello also claimed that "some corn was hurt," by certain low areas of fields being flooded.

"The corn on higher ground is still doing well however," he declared.

The supervisor and crop grower went on to say that there has been a "large apple drop since bloom time," and that when the bloom had reached its peak, overcast skies, cold and rainy weather conditions effected the pollination which caused many apples to drop from their limbs.

He also said that there will be a "fairly light crop of peaches this year."

Because of the adverse weather conditions, prices are expected to be up, predicted Moriello, adding that the generally bad weather reached throughout "the whole Hudson Valley region."

City Police Give Summonses

Kingston police were busy during the holiday issuing summonses to violators of the vehicle and traffic law and local ordinances relating to motor vehicle operation. Harold Decker, 22, of Route 209, Accord, was cited for passing a flashing red light, driving without a license and having a mutilated registration certificate. John F. Lalima, 20, of 72 Groff Street, was booked for passing a red light, speeding and having a defective muffler on his car. Dale Brown, 20, of 68 Emerick Street, was summoned for failure to produce his license or registration and having no rear brake light on his motorcycle, according to the police blotter.

Constructive Investment

The Rondout Neighborhood Center, Edward Brown director, has carried out a commendable project in placing young people in local industries this summer. We are happy to have this opportunity to express our profound appreciation to the director, the agency and the local business interests which cooperated in making the jobs available.

There are still approximately 20 more young people seeking employment for the summer months. Anyone desirous of participating in this worthwhile civic endeavor may contact the Neighborhood Center, 58 Broadway, phone 331-9464.

The program has not only proved beneficial to the young people but also to employers and the entire community. All told, it is a constructive investment.

Fortas for Chief Justice

President Johnson's nomination of Justice Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice of the United States is sure to create one of the greatest controversies in the history of the court.

The argument will be two-pronged. First, despite the fact that he has been on the high bench for nearly three years, Fortas still is regarded as the personal confident of the President. Also, his reputation in the law was made as a government counsel and, since entering private practice, as a counsel to those doing business with the government.

The discussion also will be political. Conservatives of both major parties objected as soon as Chief Justice Earl Warrens' resignation was announced and before his successor was made known. The objection was raised that Warren was bowing out at this time to prevent a successor, possibly Republican Richard M. Nixon, from appointing a new Chief Justice.

As Gov. Ronald Reagan of California put it, "Warren had no right to choose which President he thinks should dominate the Supreme Court for the next 20 years." He was referring to the report that Warren resigned at this particular time mainly so that Johnson could name his successor.

By naming Fortas, Johnson confirmed the worst fears of the conservatives, for Fortas preserves the liberal tinge of the high court as established under Warren.

Coming so late in the 90th Congress, and with the national political conventions weeks away, the Senate may find it inconvenient to move to confirm now. They may wait before taking such a serious step as to pass on the head of the judicial system.

Wholesome Meat Act

The wholesome meat act, passed last December by Congress, was designed to upgrade to Federal standards meat procesed for interstate distribution. These meats accounted for 15 per cent of all the meat slaughtered and 25 per cent of the processed meat in the country.

The first comprehensive report on the act of officials of the Department of Agriculture indicates that the law was very much needed

Forty to fifty plants throughout the country have closed. Four were closed under the emergency section permitting shutdowns if a plant was found to be endangering the public health. Two closed voluntarily after they were told to clean up or close down. They elected to close because they did not meet federal standards for cleanliness and the production of wholesome meat without large expenditures of money.

The law is designed to bring under Federal standards 15,000 plants that have been subject only to state and local laws. Matching federal grants are authorized to set up inspection systems for interstate plants equal to federal standards. No state has indicated it will accept federal regulation. Rather, the states are revising laws and regulations of their own as a means of gaining federal approval—and grants. If a state fails to act, the Federal Government will step in and impose federal inspection.

This is one of the more needed laws of recent years. Rep. Neal Smith, Iowa Democrat, said meat processors in some states had adulterated luncheon meats, hamburger and sausage with up to 35 per cent water, flour, chopped hides and inferior material, defrauding consumers of millions of dollars. Farmers lost markets for tons of meat.

As federal standards are introduced, these dangerous practices should cease and all meat sold consumers should meet the standards of cleanliness and wholesomeness.

The Poor People's Campaign had a permit to erect and live in Resurrection City in Washington that had an expiration date. When they paid no attention to the expiration, police sized the shantytown and evicted its tenants. It was a sad end for a campaign that really never got off the ground. The timing was wrong during war and economy.

National Elections Not Decided by 'Regulars'

WASHINGTON — Perhaps the most significant fact which is reflected in virtually all the public - opinion polls that have been published recently is that there is no majority for either the Republican or the Democratic party as such. Wherever more than 51 per cent is attained by any presidential aspirant in a poll, it is usually with the aid of a huge segment of what now is being called the "independent" vote.

What this means, in effect, is that a large number of voters do not consider themselves regular members of any party, but indicate only their preferences for individual candidates or for groups who favor a specific position on a public question. The day of the party "regular" is passing.

The latest Gallup Poll, for instance, asks this question: "In politics, as of today, do you consider yourself a Republican, Democrat or Independent?" Twenty - seven per cent classed themselves as Independents.

Only once since 1940 has either party gotten more than 50 per cent in this poll. That was in 1964, when the Democrats were given 53 per cent. Again and again, a bloc of independent votes has been required for either party to get a majority.

These weaknesses in party strength as such are not explained by any of the polls. The voters today seem naturally inclined to pick a candidate, rather than a party, though there is in both the Democratic and Republican parties a substantial segment of what might be called "regulars."

But it is apparent that national elections are not being decided or likely to be by those who have traditionally adhered to a particular ticket.

Perhaps the main reason for this lack of continuous allegiance is the vagueness as well as the fluctuations of party policies, whether on the federal, state or local level. It is much harder today to define a Republican for a Democrat than it was a few decades ago. Personalities and specific issue,, rather than parties, are likely to mobilize the voters so as to constitute a majority.

Take, for instance, the Vietnam war. Those who are opposed to it do not come from any one party. Yet, in many cases, the war is the dominating influence informing the decision as to how the ballots of the mother and father of boys of draft age will be cast. Likewise, the people who feel that governmental authorities have been weak - kneed or vacillating and have allowed crime to grow to unprecedented figures are likely to disregard the party label for which they have expressed a preference in past elections. The voters are going to express instead their resentment against officeholders who have failed to maintain order.

Unemployment — which, of course, often can influence elections — happens at the moment to be at a very low figure. In times of depression, the administration which unwillingly brings a downward trend in employment usually gets punished at the polls. There will, of course, be a resentment by housewives against the high cost of living. But emotional issues are sometimes even more questions. While building up a large vote, the latter can be secondary as compared with the Vietnam war or safety in the streets.

The latest Gallup Poll confirms a trend that has been growing for many years — namely, that neither the Republican party nor the Democratic party has defined its prospective programs or offered the voters a clear enough picture of the policies which are to be pursued in the event of victory at the polls.

The chances are that the "resentment" vote, which reflects a protest for many reasons against the party in office, is going to decide this year's election. Many of the voters will still insist that they are Republicans or Democrats, as the case may be, but that they are voting for or against the men who have been nominated for the presidency. The capability of the individual and the appeal of policies he unequivocally proposes to carry out will be the deciding factor, rather than whether he happens to be a Republican or a Democrat.

This is really a trend toward a "balance of power" by the independent voters of America who disregard party preferences of the past. They favor the nominee whose party not only has come out with a clear - cut platform but which has named a candidate whom the majority of voters in the country believe will be a courageous leader and will conscientiously endeavor to carry out the principles of that platform.

Contests for the Presidency

The 'Big Fix' Is a Political Myth

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Had Sen. Robert F. Kennedy lived to fight on in 1968, the chances are that the Democratic convention in Chicago this August would have given the nation its most memorable political confrontation since the Eisenhower - Taft struggle of 1952.

It is no fault of the democratic process that an assassin's bullet struck Kennedy from the battle scene and left the Democratic party with what today looks like a one-sided contest between Vice President Humphrey and Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota.

There is nothing wrong with the Democratic nomination struggle that could not have been altered by the continued presence of Kennedy in the race or by the greater viability of McCarthy as a rival.

The St. Louis Post Dispatch talks as if McCarthy were really the nation's Democratic choice today and only an assemblage of wicked machine plotters is keeping him from nomination.

But McCarthy tested himself against truly visible rivals in eight primaries this spring and lost six of the eight. His losing per centages ranged from 42 per cent down to 20. One of his losses was against a write - in showing by President Johnson in New Hampshire.

McCarthy did win two unopposed primaries in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, but there is no way of knowing how he would have done against competition.

Furthermore, he recently made significant delegate gains in New York's June 18 primary, but no preference contest was involved and it was also clear that he had benefitted — with almost no campaign effort — from the political vacuum created by the death of Robert Kennedy.

The fact that politicians across the country were nevertheless much impressed with McCarthy's New York showing is good evidence that he would be a far more serious rival to Humphrey today had he won instead of losing most of the primaries he entered. The Post Dispatch notwithstanding defeat is not customarily accepted in this country as stirring proof of popularity.

If it be argued that Humphrey has not even tested himself in the fires of the primaries, the obvious answer is that he is the natural and expected inheritor of basic loyalist sentiment which would have clung to the President had he made the race, that he is the gainer from long - proven party service, that he is the evident choice of southern loyalist Democrats without a single vote needed to show it.

All these things are facts of normal political life. Yet Humphrey could be upset by any political rival with support from enough interested Americans to prove the superior viability and popularity of another choice.

Kennedy is dead and cannot make the test. McCarthy, though badly wounded by defeat, still has the op- "big fix" theory, delegates are not immune to popular pressures (nor are their leaders), and in 1968 there are 1,100 more of them than there were just eight years ago when John Kennedy was nominated.

As for the Republicans, 1968 has many of the earmarks of 1964. Nixon and his able lieutenants have used the process as it was intended to be used. They have worked hard to get delegates in state conventions. Nixon has run up impressive votes in half a dozen primaries, and it is no fault of his that Michigan's Gov. George Romney faltered at the outset.

Much blame, some of it deserved, falls on New York s Governor Rockefeller for backing and filling and getting into the race too late, after the primaries.

But many, many of the GOP governors and other moderates who said they wanted Rockefeller have not swung to his support nor helped to build popular backing for him. Not having used the "system," they hardly dare complain that it is not working to give us the "most popular" GOP candidate.

WASHINGTON — Now that Congress has increased taxes, House leaders have grudgingly agreed to take up the tax reforms which could have made a tax boost unnecessary.

Speaker John McCormack, D - Mass., has promised liberals that the House Ways and Means Committee, at long last, will start hearings. Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D - Ark., though generally opposed to closing the tax loopholes, has agreed not to oppose the hearings.

However, here is the unpublicized gimmick. After the tax reformers have presented their case, Congress will shut down without taking action. For Congressional leaders have no real intention of plugging the tax loopholes.

If they are ever plugged, income taxes could be slashed instead of raised.

Rep. James J. Howard, D-N. J., put it bluntly during the recent tax debate? "Middle class America has carried this nation on its back for far too long. This House today should be talking about, thinking about, and acting upon a bill for fair taxes, not just more taxes."

Last year, for example, 20 major oil companies rang up a net profit of almost $5 billion while they paid net taxes averaging less than 9 per cent. In past years, the average has been closer to 4 per cent.

The giant of the industry, Standard Oil of New Jersey, collected such fabulous profits in 1966 that it was able to show a net gain of over $1 billion. This is more revenue than most nations collect. Yet the company paid only a 7.3 per cent tax, a smaller percentage than the average scrub woman pays.

From 1962 to 1967, the Atlantic Oil Corporation cleared over $340 million in profits, yet paid no taxes at all. Even more astounding, the Marathon Oil Company, despite a net profit of over $37 million in 1962, not only fialed to pay any taxes that year but actually received a $2.2 million tax credit from the government.

Mafia Vs. Monopoly

Sometimes one hand of the Justice department doesn't let the other hand know what it's doing — at least in Las Vegas.

The Justice Department's Antitrust Division, after a long era of do - nothingism, has suddenly aroused from a comatose condition and slapped an antitrust warning on Howard Hughes against acquiring the Stardust hotel in Las Vegas.

Simultaneously, another branch of the Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has been applauding Howard Hughes fordriving the Mafia out of his hotels in Las Vegas.

The FBI has long pointed to Las Vegas as a serious hotbed for the gambling underworld. I even incurred an embarrassing lawsuit brought by Ed Levinson when the FBI was caught bugging his bedroom and other rooms in his Fremont hotel.

Meanwhile Hughes had given a big assist to the FBI's crime cleanup when he purchased the Sands and the Desert Inn. Immediately after buying them he chased the underworld out. Anyone can now patronize the Sands and the Desert Inn without fear of being duped by the Mafia.

Four months ago, Hughes also signed a preliminary agreement to take over the Stardust, biggest hotel in Las Vegas. There was a hearing by Nevada state officials, who okayed the deal; and Hughes was preparing to sign a contract on July 1 when the other hand of the Justice Department, the Antitrust Division, stepped in with a warning that it might file an antitrust suit. There are a hundred or so hotels in Las Vegas, of which Hughes owns only two. Yet the Justice Department considered acquiring the third to constitute a monopoly.

Note: The Antitrust Division has ignored the attempt by the biggest whiskey company in the world, Seagram, to dominate one of the largest motion picture companies in the world, Metro - Goldyn - Mayer.

Crime Doesn't Pay

Meanwhile Hughes is one broadcaster who has found that you don't have to use televised crime to make profits. After he acquired KLAS - TV in Las Vegas, Hughes began featuring public service and educational programs as against crime and violence.

KLAS is now featuring the CBS college education series, "Sunrise Semester." Hughes also hired Mrs. Fedora Bontempi as director of public affairs and started a daily televised "Our Town" series. It proved so popular that it now goes on both morning and evening.

KLAS also inaugurated "The Religious Dialogue," a recreation directory giving recreation facilities available in southern Nevada, and the "Council of Social Agencies" in which local citizens discuss such problems as juvenile delinquency and gun control. KLAS producers have been meeting with officials of Nevada Southern University and Clark Country schools in order to start an educational program in July.

Local response has been excellent. Viewers seem more interested in educational and community problems than televised crime.

San Francisco's La Guardia

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco is becoming the modern - day Fiorello La Guardia, the little Italian mayor who once ruled New York.

The other day, Alioto, a Catholic, was attending a banquet given by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in San Francisco.

"I've been raised in the shadow of the synagogue across the street from me, and my parish priest has been Rabbi Fine," he said. "Every week I light a candle in the synagogue, and Cyril Magnin lights a candle in my cathedral.

"I suspect that these two candles are the best lighted of any in the city."

7 Programs to Swing Tide Of Viet War in Our Favor

By RAY CROMLEY.
NEA Washington Correspondent

There are seven steps the United States and South Vietnamese governments could take now in South Vietnam that would turn the tide of the war heavily in our favor and spur Ho Chi Minh's negotiators to reach some agreement in Paris.

1 — Inaugurate locally elected school boards for each village in South Vietnam. These boards should have the same power over schools as in the United States.

This system would be somewhat overdecentralized for efficiency. The weakness would be offset by the people's pride in managing their own schools.

2 — Push ahead the timetable for the election of prefectural governors. This is provided for in the constitution but not this early. For psychological reasons this change from appointed to elected governors should take place now. In the several elections held in South Vietnam the people have shown they vote intelligently and responsibly.

3 — Provide for local draft boards, as in the United States.

Again, this would be designed to emphasize to the people that they have a hand in making the decisions which affect their communities.

4 — Turn over to the villages and districts a far heavier responsibility for the levying, collecting and spending of taxes. Arrange that most local tax money be spent locally and under local decision and management on schools, roads, bridges, dams, medical clinics, farm demonstration programs. This has a historical precedent. It fits Vietnamese psychology and early (pre-French traditions.

5 — Open officer schools wide to talented young men of all calsses, reducing educational prerequisites and substituting tough leadership, intelligence, character and aptitude requirements, the resulting breakdown of class rigidity would tear one major Communist selling points to bits. This breakdown in who can be an officer has been started recently on a some what limited scale. It should be expanded. Lack of schooling among potential leaders from the tenant - farmer class can be made up as the young officers move ahead in their careers.

6 — Complete the land reform program. Despite criticisms, successive South Vietnamese governments have taken more effective action than most countries. But to win the confidence of the people it is essential that the government as quickly as possible carry through talked - about plans for making it possible for all tenant farmers to buy the land they farm on credit terms they can afford. The land reform program carried out by General of the Army MacArthur in Japan proved to be a strong stabilizing democratic force.

Care must be taken that the small landowners from whom much of the land will be bought receive a fair price and are given a chance to invest their capital in new ventures, such as small and medium - sized industry.

It would be suicidal to destroy South Vietnam's small but effective middle class. By transferring their capital investment from land to industry, this middle class can stimulate the industry South Vietnam vitally needs for long-range stability.

7 — Step up efforts for training and reorganizing the South Vietnamese army, making it possible for that army to take over the great bulk of the fighting. When this is done, South Vietnamese morale will rise rapidly.

Each of these steps is designed to boost the pride of the South Vietnamese and to provide for grass-roots decision - making that give people the knowledge they are working and fighting for their own communities—not for some faroff bureaucracy. This local pride and local government was the basic strength of the American

By JERRY MCLAUGHLIN

Another raucous chapter is unfolding in the continuing rock' - em - sock'em history of the state's Democrats. It involves the grizzled old pros of what Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy sees as the "old politics," plus the newer, young element that struck that mighty blow for the Minnesota senator two weeks ago.

As the McCarthy people see it, their man is entitled to a share of the 67 at - large delegate votes at the national convention somewhat in proportion to his surprising victory margin in the state primary election June 18.

The McCarthy crowd was shooting for something in the neighborhood of 30 votes — to go with the 61 he picked up in the primary when delegates were chosen from congressional districts. In the election, the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy received 29 delegates, Vice Presidnt Hubert H. Humphrey 14, and 19 others were uncommitted.

But when the time came last Friday for the Democratic State Committee's pragmatic members to parcel out the at - large votes, McCarthy wound up with only 15½ - less than one fourth the total available.

The McCarthy supporters bridled at the committee action. Led by Paul O'Dwyer, who shocked regular organization men by winning the U.S. Senate nomination, several hundred McCarthy backers stormed out of the meeting.

Now, in the aftermath of his death, the party appears to have fragmented into a loose collection of political baronies, headed by the big-county leaders of New York City. In the eyes of this crowd, McCarthy doesn't seem to carry much weight.

County leaders, such as Brooklyn's Stanley Steingut, aren't saying so publicly, but they were annoyed and alarmed by the success of the youthful McCarthy backers.

Yet, the organization profes sionals apparently do not think McCarthy's victory stands as anything more than a political oddity in a cataclysmic year.

Generally, they see Humphrey as the eventual winner and most of them want to be identified with a winner.

This attitude, and the concomitant denial to McCarthy of the 30 plus at - large votes he sought, have embittered the McCarthy people even further against the "old politics" of the regular organization.

2 Out of Africa

Do not obtain your slaves from Britain, because they are so stupid and so utterly incapable of being taught.

—Cicero

American Negroes, with an awakened interest in their African heritage, are rediscovering cultures that history has ignored.

While nothing comparable to the great civilizations of ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, Greece or China ever emerged in Africa, not all of that continent languished in primitive savagery before the coming of the white man.

Medieval empires like Ghana, Mali and Songhay, with its famed city of Timbuctoo, exceeded those of contemporary Europe in size and rivaled them in administrative organization. European and African kings exchanged diplomatic courtesies. High artistic skills were practiced by the peoples of Benin and Ife.

From the beginning, slavery followed the contact of Africans with other peoples—and with each other. At a time when much of the population of the ancient world was slaves, color was no sign either of servility or superiority. The enslavement of whites along with blacks continued into the Christian Era.

The Moslems dominated the African trade in the Middle Ages, but in the 1400s, the Portuguese began transporting Negroes to the Iberian Peninsula. Descendants of these slaves accompanied the Spaniards to the New World.

Thirty of them stood with Balboa on the shores of the Pacific; 300 of them helped Cortez conquer Mexico. The first "white men" ever seen by many Indians were Negroes.

One of them, Estevanico, discovered Arizona and New Mexico in 1538. Three centuries later, the Negro-French explorer Jean Baptiste Pointe du Sable was to found Chicago.

It was the peculiar disposition of the Indians to die when enslaved that was responsible for the greatest migration of human beings in history.

In 1517, fearful that the Indians would soon be killed off, the missionary Bishop Bartholome de las Casas recommended that Negroes be imported from Africa, a solution whose evil he later realized.

So successful was the experiment—black men were found to make equally as good slaves as white men historically had—that the red man, no longer needed, was wiped out all the more quickly.

Majority Reject Notion U.S. Is 'Sick Society'

PRINCETON, N. J., July 2—A majority of the American people reject the notion that the U.S. is a "sick society," but as many as one-third do hold such a view.

Strangely, the two groups in the U.S. most inclined to view the nation as a "sick society" are widely disparate ones—Negroes on the one hand, supporters of presidential candidate George Wallace on the other.

Negroes by the ratio of about 8-to-7 say this country is "sick," but white people by the ratio of more than 3-to-2 hold the opposite opinion.

Views as Related To Candidate Support

Backers of Vice President Hubert Humphrey are somewhat less inclined to view this country as "sick" than are Nixon supporters, and considerably less so than are Wallace backers.

'Can't Judge Nation By Actions of Individuals'

"You can't judge a nation by a few individuals who make headlines," said a 39-year-old California resident, echoing the sentiments of many others who feel ours is not a "sick" society.

Here is a summary of reasons given by the proportion (58 pct.) who hold the majority opinion: (1) only a small number are to blame; (2) too much publicity is given crime; (3) society today is no worse than in the earlier years; (4) the U.S. is no worse in this respect than other countries; (5) our society is not "sick," but confused.

'Too Many Brutal Things Happening'

Those who hold the minority point of view about society frequently comment along the lines of a young Cleveland housewife:

Those who think we are "sick" offer reasons of two types, causes and symptoms, here summarized: (1) the amount of rioting, killing, crime; (2) lack of sufficient law enforcement; (3) laxity of the courts; (4) people are too selfish; (5) not enough individual initiative; (6) poor upbringing; (7) a breakdown in morals; (8) a turning away from religion.

Education Is Big Factor in Responses

Little difference is found between the views of men and women, by age groups, or between churchgoers and non-churchgoers.

Marked differences, on the other hand, are found in terms of educational background and race.

The following question was asked of a total of 1,538 adults in the latest national survey conducted between June 15 and 18:

"Some people are calling this country a 'sick society.' Do you agree or disagree with them?"

Here are the national results and findings by key groups:

Pubic Has Long Favored Lowering Voting Age, Stricter Gun Laws

Two proposals very much in the headlines—lowering the voting age to 18 and stricter gun controls—have been backed by the public for many years.

Majority support for lowering the voting age to 18 has been recorded in regular surveys since 1953. The most recent report shows 2 out of 3 in favor of this proposal.

Majority backing for a law requiring a person to get a police permit before he or she could buy a gun has been recorded since 1959, when the question was first asked.

Governor's Support Weakening

Dick Builds on Rocky Ground

By BRUCE BIOSSAT.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — NEA's third nationwide Republican delegate count shows that front - running Richard M. Nixon is getting a strong new flow of votes toward him which, at this late stage of the race, presidential challenger Nelson Rockefeller will be hard pressed to reverse.

With just a month to go before the GOP national convention opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach, Nixon now has an indicated total of 753 votes — or 86 more than the 677 needed to make him his party's 1968 presidential nominee.

New York's Gov. Rockefeller, by contrast, is shown in NEA's newest survey, completed at the end of June, to have some 370 delegate votes — roughly 300 short of what he needs to win.

The significance of the new figures is that, first, they give Nixon important new momentum at the very moment Rockefeller is making a maximum effort with the delegates and with the public, both in person and through costly advertising programs, to cut into Nixon's long - indicated hunge lead.

Secondly, Nixon's gains of 44 delegates since the last poll, which showed him at 709, have come at the direct expense of Rockefeller, whose total in late May stood at a somewhat more heartening 414.

It is bad enough for a challenger to be standing still so close to decision time. To be losing ground is to court the flood tide and be finally engulfed.

At Turning Point

Rockefeller stands at the turning point. Unless he and his media advertising campaign catch on very quickly and this is reflected in stunning advances for him in the national public opinion polls, he will have little chance to reverse the headlong Nixon trend.

Nixon's May - June gains have come from varied sources. An extra 10 votes were squeezed from Mississippi when support for Gov. Ronald Reagan was virtually snuffed out. Maryland's Gov. Spiro Agnew, angered at Rocky for leaving him out on a limb in March, turned toward Nixon and todayy could deliver him 20 of 16 votes. In earlier days, 22 of those 26 were Rockefeller's.

A month ago, Nixon forces may have become concerned at evidences, such as NEA's second GOP delegate count, that the former vice president, with all his indicated immense lead, was showing almost no new forward speed.

Pressure has been applied at state conventions throughout recent weeks. In Colorado, Washington, Montana, New Mexico and other spots, maximum Nixon strength was extracted and Rocky was correspondingly sliced out of the action.

Nixon, in other words, has been getting even more delegates out of areas where he was already very strong.

Loses Earlier Gains.

Worse still from Rockefeller's viewpoint, he has not been able to get and hold all the strength previous counts suggested should be his. Having fallen back earlier in promising Minnesota, he now has lost mid-season gains in Iowa and Illinois.

When Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania declared for him at Tulsa in mid - June, it became plain that Rocky's one - time 59 - 9 edge in that 64 - member delegation had sagged to 50 - 14. He faded off a point or two in place after place even as he was campaigning his hardest and looking more delegates in the eye than he had ever done in his life.

This reporter's cross - country telephone survey of the 50 states disclosed often that where Rockefeller appeared he usually did well, made a good impression on delegates when closeted with them, but changed few votes his way.

Sometimes, persuasive private polls have been produced to indicate that Rockefeller would run much better than Nixon against the chief demoncratic prospects in particular states like Minnesota or Connecticut. But these seem to have had limited effect.

National Polls

The broader national polls show Rocky with slimmer advantage over Nixon when measured against the Democrats. When the margin of error and the undecided factor are thrown into the balance, puzzled politicians wonder how much real difference exists in the voting pull of the two contenders.

It is widely agreed among politicians and observers that only a very sharp national poll superiority for Rockefeller over Nixon in the remaining weeks before Miami Beach could seriously affect the developing sweep to Nixon.

Since Rocky's personal campaigning appears to have produced no such result, his managers now are banking either on a smashing impact from his advertising campaign or some unforeseen event (most hopefully a grave error of some sort by Nixon) to reverse the delegate currents and put Rockefeller's late - blooming effort on a high course to the 1968 nonination. But his chances are very, very dim.

Seeks New Cigaret Warning

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN...
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Wilbur Cohen, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, will ask Congress to strengthen the warning label on cigaret packages.

Cohen will propose this new working: Warning — cigaret smoking is hazardous to your health and may cause cancer and other diseases.

Cohen will also seek legislation requiring that the warning be carried in cigaret ads and on television commercials as well as on the cigaret packages.

The secretary feels that the strengthened warning is essential because the present modified wording has not properly alerted the public to the dangers of cigaret smoking.

In Cohen's view, the situation cannot be overstressed, considering a new report made public today on "The Health Consequences of Smoking."

This report, issued by Surgeon General William H. Stewart, is a supplement of his 1967 report on smoking and it provides fresh evidence on the link between smoking and death.

Here are some of its highlights:

— Life expectancy among young men is reduced by an average of four years in light smokers — those who smoke less than one - half pack per day.

— Cigaret smoking can contribute to the development of cardiovascular (heart) disease and particularly to death from coronary heart disease.

— Additional evidence substantiates the previous findings that cigaret smoking is the main cause of lung cancer in men.

— Cigaret smoking is causally related to lung cancer in women but accounts for a smaller proportion of cases than in men.

—Smoking is a significant factor in the causation of cancer of the larynx and in the development of cancer of the oral cavity.

Paltz Program Ending On Migrant Aides

A four-week workshop to train women as aides in classrooms and day care centers serving area migrant children will be concluded at the State University College in New Paltz today.

Some 17 certificates will be awarded to participants from southern Ulster County communities.

The training, the first of its kind in the area, was sponsored by the New York State Education Department, division of elementary education, at the suggestion of the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistant Committee, headed by Harley Taylor.

Of the 17 women, all of whom have come from migrant families, a number will immediately begin work in summer school classes and day care centers.

Two other pilot programs for training women as aides are being conducted in the state, but in those programs both teachers and aides are attending the classes.

The women were given instruction in child psychology, classroom procedures, and educational concepts. The New Paltz program also provided the women with an opportunity to observe classrooms in Highland, New Paltz and Newburgh.

The workshop also gave training in operating audio-visual equipment, such as projectors and tape recorders, and in using school machines such as mimeographs and ditto machines.

Other work centered around playground supervision, arts and crafts, record keeping, and parent-school relations.

Dr. Palmer, director of elementary education at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, said that the program was funded through the state and federal government.

The lack of such home life, according to the child specialist, creates "identity problems."

"The migrant child requires enough space because of the crampled quarters he has known throughout most of his life," the specialist said, adding that a good child care center has ample outdoor as well as indoor space.

Blinded State Vets May Apply For $500 Annuity

Blinded New York State veterans with war-time service may apply for a $500 annuity. To be eligible, veterans must have served on active duty 90 days or more, unless discharged for a service connected disability in less than that period. In addition, they must have been residents of New York State when they entered active duty in the armed forces and are now, and continue to be, residents.

Veterans must have been discharged under honorable conditions and meet the New York State standards for blindness. The annuity is paid on a monthly basis.

Veterans of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the China Relief Expedition, World War I, World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam Conflict, are eligible to apply for the annuity. Blindness need not be service connected, according to Charles L. Culver, New York State Veteran Counselor, New York State Division of Veteran Affairs and John B. Tyler, director, Ulster County Veterans Service Agency.

The agency, which is located in the County Office Building, Kingston, is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. during July and August.

The agency answers questions such as:

A—If a service member dies on active duty his unremarried widow will be eligible for commissary and exchange privileges. The widow and her children will also be entitled to medicare where uniformed services medical facilities are available or in civilian hospitals.

Q—If I receive a one month early out to attend college, what portion of that month must I serve on active duty to receive VA educational benefits for that month? I am on a three-year enlistment and I plan to apply for a one month early out.

A—Any portion. This is how it works: GI Bill educational entitlement is computed on the basis of one month for each calendar year or fraction thereof.

Hudson Woman Accused of Fatal Stabbing

A 49-year-old Hudson woman was in the Columbia County jail today without bail, facing grand jury action on a charge of murder in connection with the stabbing of a 58-year-old male friend on the Fourth of July.

Adie Louise West of 27 South Front Street, was accused of the fatal stabbing of Jeff E. Wilkerson of the same adress. She was arraigned Thursday night before City Judge Harold Lieberman. She was remanded to the county jail pending grand jury investigation after the defendant waived her right to a preliminary hearing.

A report of Police Detective Sergeant Julius Brenner, who investigated with Patrolmen Larry Walker, Louis Conte and Joel Hollenbeck, the defendant and her fried had engaged in an argument yesterday afternon. She required treatment at the Columbia Memorial Hospital for facial cuts received during the quarrel.

Police said Wilkerson was sitting on the front porch of the house where the two resided, when the woman appeared with a carving knife and stabbed Wilkerson in the back of his neck. He died almost instantly.

Acording to authorities, several people were standing on the sidewalk near the stabbing scene at the time of the incident.

treated at Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Two youths were injured at 3:30 a. m. Thursday when the car in which they were riding went out of control and overturned off Route 9W about one mile north of Route 209 in the Town of Ulster. State Police Sergeant Donald Paulson said the vehicle was driven by Richard E. Davis Jr., 18, of 1018 Decker Street.

Davis was cited by Trooper R. O. Rieseberg for driving at a speed too fast for conditions, failure to keep to the right and operating a motor vehicle with unsafe tires. Davis sustained lacerations of the mouth, abrasions and injuries of the wrists. A passenger, Edward Bailey, 16, of 1061 Decker Street, received multiple contusions and abrasions. Both were treated at Kingston Hospital.

Trooper Rieseberg reported the car was traveling north when it went out of control, veered off the left side of the highway, slammed into a utility pole and guard rails, overturned and continued on after righting itself and then hit another pole and overturned on its side.

A two-car collision at Church Street and Fiero Road, Town of Saugerties, at 10:45 a. m. Thursday, injured two persons and resulted in a summons issued to one driver for driving while his license was revoked. Kingston State Police reported the charge was lodged by Trooper James Fitzgerald against Daniel E. Sinsapaugh, 47, of Malden.

The other vehicle was driven by Anthony J. Corrado, 18, of Cementon, who received injuries of the knees. Sandra Van Doierdan, 18, of Malden, a passenger in Sinsapaugh's car, sustained lacerations of the head and face. The injured were treated at Benedictine Hospital, according to Sergeant Paulson.

A car driven by Robert Balajka, 34, of New York City, went out of control on a left curve on Route 81 in the Town of Greenville at 2:45 a. m. yesterday and hit a barn and tree, according to Leeds State Police.

Balajka sustained lacerations of the head and possible rib fractures. A passenger, Paul Brogan, of Norton Hill received lacerations and abrasions. Both were treated at the Greene County Memorial Hospital, troopers said.

Mountain Hunt Results in Fractured Leg

While assisting in a search for a reported missing plane on Fur Mountain near Oliverea Thursday afternoon, Fire Chief Alfred Eigner Jr., of Big Indian Fire Department, fell and suffered a fracture of the right leg, accordiing to Deputy Sheriff Robert Grennie.

The deputy, who investigated a report that a fuselage of a plane had been spotted on the mountain with Undersheriff Jerry Schwartz, and volunteer firemen, said William Andrews notified the sheriff's office at 12:20 p. m. that he heard a report of a plane missing and later he saw what appeared to be the wreckage of an aircraft on Fur Mountain.

Schwartz and Grennie investigated and volunteer firemen from the Big Indian area went to the scene. They entered the wood to search. Grennie said that he used binoculars to view the area and he saw what appeared to be a yellow object on the mountain. Closer scrutiny of the object disclosed it probably for a fallen birch tree.

According to the deputy sheriff, Town Justice Edwin France got his private plane and flew over the mountain. He later reported that the object, which at first was believed to have been a plane fuselage, was a birch tree, the leaves of which had turned brown.

Edward Turk, using a walkie-talkie learned that Chief Eigner had been injured when he fell on the mountainside. Grennie said the injured volunteer firefighter, was assisted out of the woods and taken to the hospital in Margaretville, where he was treated for a broken leg and admitted for further treatment and observation. State Trooper Ivan Eigner of Margaretville, assisted in the investigation and search, with Charles Heddon and others, who helped the injured fireman from the wooded area.

Kiwanis Sale Closes July 11

The annual sale of dozens of red roses, conducted by the Kingston Kiwanis Club for the benefit of its Boys and Girls activities and the Scholarship Fund, will close on July 11.

This was announced today by Harry R. Hines, vice president of the Kiwanis club and chairman of the annual rose sale.

In past years the Kiwanis Club has realized approximately $1,400 from the sale of the red roses—the sale continuing for a month with the roses delivered in September.

Chairman Hines indicated that receipts to date are about half of the normal return, and he emphasized that the final report due on July 11 should "tell the story of whether the 1968 rose sale will surpass that of other years."

Antiwar Protests Overseas on the 4th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans celebrated their nation's 192nd birthday Thursday with parades and pageants, picnics and political oratory. Abroad the anniversary was marked by antiwar protests in Sweden and Australia.

Fourth of July festivities included quiet family gatherings, tradition-steeped parades, softball games on village greens and hundreds of fireworks displays.

For some there were thoughts of loved ones fighting half way around the world in a bitter and controversial war.

A small group of American military defectors from that conflict briefly interrupted a celebration on the grounds of the U.S. Embassy in Stockholm, shouting "American imperialism" and "America out of Vietnam."

In Melbourne, Australia, about 2,000 demonstrators protesting American involvement in Vietnam smashed every window in the front of the U.S. consulate, painted its steps red and battled for an hour with police.

Halt Prisoners In Escape Try From Cook Jail

CHICAGO (UPI)—Five prisoners overpowered two guards in a gun tower at the Cook County jail but were recaptured early today.

One of the prisoners was taken to county hospital for treatment of injuries, jail police said, and the other four were returned to their cells.

Jail police indicated the two guards were not injured.

Find Marijuana, Rockland Pair Is Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI) —A Haverstraw, N.Y., couple was arrested at Kennedy Airport early Thursday after they claimed two suitcases which police said contained more than 13 pounds of marijuana.

The couple, Richard Martinez 28, and his wife, Diana, 27, both of 94 Westside Ave., in the Rockland County community, were seized by narcotics detectives at 1 a.m. at the United Airlines cargo building.

A spokesman for the narcotics bureau said Mrs. Martinez identified herself to a clerk as the owner of the suitcases. Two detectives armed with a search warrant seized the pair as they entered their waiting car, the spokesman said.

Soviet-U.S. Cordiality Marks Independence Day

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — It could only have been Moscow, only on the fourth of July.

A Red army general with a medal spangled chest munched a hot dog and chatted with an American housewife. The mayor of Moscow stepped across the U.S. ambassador's lawn to a John Philip Sousa march.

American ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson had invited 1,200 persons to the traditional party Thursday. To the surprise of many, most showed up.

The Russians poured onto the lawn of Spasso House, the pre-Bolshevik revolution mansion that U.S. envoys call home in Moscow. Writer Vladimir Dudintsev stepped among the booths in red, white and blue bunting, swooped up a glass of champagne and happily accepted congratulations on a second edition of his novel "Not by Bread Alone," a startling attack on Stalin era bureacrats.

Composer Aram Khachaturin come and sampled the hot dogs and ice cream sticks Thompson had flown in from America. An observer remarked the "Nyet set" had come. Hardly.

It was the most impressive turnout of Russians to a U.S. affair in Moscow since the onset of the second cold war. It marked a new cordiality symbolized by Soviet-American cooperation on disarmament. But the Kremlin powers stayed away.

The first Deputy Foreign Minister Vasili Kuznetsov appeared. So did Mayor Vladimir Promyslov, plus three generals including Col. Gen. Ivan Koesnikov, Moscow's military commandant. They ate hot dogs and were very polite about the American staple.

In the midest of the party, 35-year-old poet Andrei Voznesesnky—a writer who once had a memorable verbal duel with Khrushchev the censor—skipped up to the ambassador's house and into the library.

He sat down and penned a poem about the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He asked Thompson to give it to the assassinated brothers' widows. Deeply touched, Thompson promised delivery.

Beyond the lawn however a more normal Moscow went about its tasks. The government newspaper Izvestia told readers to expect a new Communist offensive against Saigon "in a few days." Its Hanoi correspondent wrote, "for the American aggressor the rainy season looks like a nightmare."

STATE POLICE FROGMEN—Three members of Troop C are the newest New York State Police to qualify as frogmen at a school for novice scuba divers which had its final session for field training at Lake George recently. They are (l-r) Troopers Richard T. Bobnick, Joseph W. Mackey and Robert M. Malloy. Bobnic joined the state police in 1966. He lives at Richfield Springs with his wife and three children. Molloy, a trooper since 1964, lives in Palenville with his wife and their one child. Mackey, who entered the state police in 1963, is married and has two children. He lives at Port Jervis. The new divers now join previously qualified members of the Troop C diving team in underwater assignments for the recovery of criminal evidence and the victims of drowning accidents. During the final week at Lake George the troopers dove to a depth of 150 feet, trained under night conditions and participated in a "free ascent" from a depth of 80 feet without the use of air tanks.

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)— When Hanoi's negotiators in Paris said they would meet with "anyone except the devil," they betrayed considerable ignorance of U.S. presidential candidates.

Either that or they were planning to give up having tea with Averell Harriman anyway. There couldn't be time hereafter for both. Today we consider some of the visits they might expect.

"How do you do, gentlemen," McCarthy nods. "I have journeyed these many miles to acquire your point of view on the differences which divide us and the dreams which unite us. Let me say I am pleased (faint smile here) that you did not invite the devil: He's far too busy signing bills in the White House.

"I share Pericles' visions of world brotherhood and political reform. I go further: I propose a world of scholars, governed by poets; our enmities forgotten in a new golden age of love and youth and beauty."

Negotiator Confused

One Hanoi negotiator asked the other: "Did we invite Pericles?"

"Hi, fellows," Rockefeller says, and shakes hands all around. "You fellows know my views on the war because everyone knows my views on the war which is more than anyone can say for my opponent.

"I feel the South Vietnamese should be fighting you instead of our fighting you. You fellows know we can't just quit fighting. But I'm sure we can work something out."

Enter Hubert Humphrey, accompanied by Democratic party leaders, county chairmen and Lester Maddox.

"Hello, men," he beams. "First, let me say that as vice president I am a member of the team; as president I will be my own boss.

"Let me make clear that my country is not divided about this war—it is a united, joyous country which is willing to shoulder its responsibilities and knows there may be some bad moments along the way. But we love change and welcome change and desire change and I am the disciple of change.

One negotiator asks the other: "Is team the same as troika?"

"Negotiators, and my respected opponents," Nixon begins. "I think we should end the war and win the peace. You may interpret this any way you please, since I do not consider it seemly or appropriate for a candidate to discuss war policies while delicate negotiations are underway."

One negotiator turns to the other and shrugs.

Enter George Wallace, accompanied by 17 bodyguards, and a hillbilly band.

"Now you look here, boys," Wallace barks. "You all better straighten up or else when I'm president I am going to turn loose the full power of the mightiest military machine ever known to man on that backward little old country of yours."

Wallace leaves, and before Harold Stassen can even get there the Hanoi negotiators make an objection to the World Court.

Summer Workshop At RVCS

Two summer in-service programs, one a Science Workshop for teachers of Grades K through 3, and the other a Middle School Program Workshop, have been approved for the Rondout Valley Central School District by the New York State Education Department.

Both will be conducted from Aug. 19 to Aug. 30, with the Science program to be held at the high school, and the Middle School to be the location for its Staff Orientation workshop. There will be 10 sessions in each program and participating teachers will earn two in-service credits upon completion. Overall supervisor is Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert A. Robertaccio.

The tentative schedule for the Middle School Workshop, which will be under the leadership of Principal Philip J. Buonfiglio, assisted by Assistant Principal Peter Zegel, calls for a 3-part program daily. A general session, from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., will discuss major problems inherent in the philosophy and implementation of the Middle School program. Teams will hold planning sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and a question and answer period will follow from 12 to 12:30 p.m.

Focus of the Middle School Workshop will be on cooperative planning, large group and small group instruction, independent study projects, re-grouping and identification of student level of instruction. The following teachers are slated to take part: Kathryn Barteau, Norma Brodsky, Jessie Carr, Robert Carr, Norma Chase, Barbara Clarke, Bruce Clarke, Lois Curran, Charles Dennington, Eleanor DeWitt, Marie M. A Workshop in Tolerance-- Fourth Cross-Country Tour

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Sixteen white teachers—11 of them nuns and two seminarians—sat in the cool white marble hall of Rosary College and learned a lesson of the streets.

Their teachers: three Negro men—a self-described former hustler and pimp, a member of a South Side Chicago street gang called the East Side Disciples and a civil rights leader who is a sociologist.

Part of the lesson went like this:

Harold, 22: "I grew up in the streets. Everything I know I learned on the street—hustling and pimping."

Nun: "What do you mean—hustling?"

Harold: "Well, like the handkerchief game. Say, a white man would come down to the street looking for something—"

Michael Lawson, a sociologist and civil rights leader involved in rehabilitation programs: "Looking for what, Harold?"

Harold: "Looking for black women. I'd tell him I could get some fine black women for both of us. I'd have two handkerchiefs, see, one filled with paper and the other with money. I'd tell the man to put his money in with mine and hold the handkerchief while I went for the women. All the time I'd be switching the handkerchiefs around. And I'd leave him holding the one filled with paper while I ran off with the one with the money."

The Negro men and white teachers were participants in a traveling workshop in human relations, run by five nuns, which is starting its fourth cross-country tour to combat what it calls white racism.

It's method: Conducting seminars to educate white teachers, civic leaders and clergy about Negroes, about racial prejudice and about themselves.

"I been in a gang since I was real young," he said. "That's the way it is if you live in my neighborhood. Like, a friend of mine's got a $10 bounty on his head. That means if some member of another gang kills him, he gets $10."

The traveling workshop is sponsored by the Chicago-based National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice. Participants last year included 3,200 lay teachers and public servants, 100 clergymen of all faiths, 9,540 nuns, 60 brothers and 1,100 minority group members.

Sister Mary Peter Traxler, director of the workshop and of educational services for the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, recounted some of its results.

—A realtor in Youngstown, Ohio, told the audience, "Never again will anyone in my presence call Negroes lazy. How can they have any hope at all if, as we've heard, a Negro college graduate can expect lifetime earnings equivalent to a white man who has only an eighth-grade education?"

Sister Mary Peter said the effect of the workshop on its participants has been measured.

"We went back to test," she said. "The only real measurement of attitudinal change is the extent to which actions change, so we drew up 21 possible actions that a person might have undertaken after participating."

The actions included such things as joining a human relations group or participating in a civil rights demonstration.

"We found that 93 per cent of the participants had undertaken at least two of these," said Sister Mary Peter. "This is clear-cut evidence of our effect."

Woodstock News

Reading of Moliere Play Tuesday Night

Moliere's "Tartuffe" will be read in English and discussed at the next meeting of PAW's Play Reading Group Tuesday, July 9, at 8:30 p.m. at the Little Theater (in the Guild Gallery).

This meeting, like all other meetings of the play reading group, is open to anyone interested. The group meets the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

"Tartuffe," the incarnation of the religious hypocrite, is both ridiculous and sinister. He meets his match in Orgon's young wife and their servant girl. Orgon may be a dupe, but the female members of his family can't be taken in. How they expose Tartuffe, how they lead him on to a declaration of love to Argon's wife while the husband is peeping, and how they strip him of his mask produces an amusing series of complications.

BIBLE SCHOOL

Daily vacation bible school for children of the church and community will be held at Woodstock Dutch Reformed Church for children from three years through junior high each weekday morning from 9:30 a.m. to noon (except Saturday) from Aug. 12 to 23.

It is advisable for children to be enrolled in advance so that the teachers now busily planning the program and activity may know for how many to prepare.

Annual Fair At Christ Lutheran

Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, 28 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, will hold an annual fair and cafeteria supper Thursday, Aug. 1, rain or shine.

Tables will include new fancy work made by members, plants and flowers, food and baked goods, a flea market (old furniture and frames) and a fish pond for children.

A hot dog and cold drink stand will operate from noon on and the cafeteria will be open at 5 p.m.

Chairmen of the event are Mrs. Joan Donahue, Mrs. Connie Wengert and Mrs. Magda Moseman.

Meeting on Budget Petition

All interested taxpayers of the Onteora School District are invited to attend a special meeting to be held on Tuesday, July 9 at 8 p.m. at the Parish Hall of St. Francis de Sales Church of Phoenicia.

The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for submitting a petition to the school board, requesting another vote on the rejected budget.

For further information call Vivian Moscowitz, Alice Weider or Pauline Schlosser or any member of the Onteora Citizens' Committee.

Lake Hill Fire Company Fund Drive Starts

Frederick Keane of Mink Hollow was voted into active membership of Woodstock Fire Company 3 of Lake Hill at the regular monthly meeting which also featured plans for the annual fund drive and a report of the building committee.

The fund drive will cover the months of July and August, with a fireman visiting each house in the Willow-Lake Hill-Shady areas for donations to help operate the fire company and including funds for the new addition to the firehouse.

The building committee reported that the masonry work on the new addition was completed, that lines for heating and water supply had been installed, and that the carpentry work was scheduled to begin.

Fire Chief Duncan Wilson reported the fires of the month, revealed a four-company drill scheduled for July 23 at 6:45 p.m. in Woodstock village, spoke of the possibility of a fire code in the township, and announced a fire school scheduled on small company operation to begin in the fall of the year.

Captain H. Phillips Eighmey announced two fire drills for July, on Sunday, July 14 at 2 p.m. at the firehouse, and on July 23 in Woodstock.

Foam equipment for fighting gasoline fires has arrived and will soon be installed on the company's fire apparatus.

The 1968 food concession at the Rawhide Ranch rodeo in Mink Hollow will be headed by Alfred Ostrander, for the benefit of the company's building fund.

The quarterly four-company meeting was announced for Monday, July 29, at the firehouse in Zena.

ON FBI LIST—Byron James Rice, 31, who is charged with the brutal murder of an armored car guard, has been placed on the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." Rice, who is also known as George Brent, B. J. Martin, James Byron Rice, Al Thomas and Frank Thomas, is 5'9" tall, weighs 180-190 pounds, has a heavy build, brown hair, blue eyes and a medium complexion. Anyone with information concerning Rice should contact their nearest FBI office. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

County Tractor Damaged by Fire

The County Sheriff's Office is investigating a fire of undetermined origin which badly damaged a county tractor early today near the Thruway overpass at the LeFever Falls-Creek Locks road.

Deputy Bart Kniffen, who with Deputes Henry Newman and James Freese investigated, said apparently a motorist from the Thruway was attempting to siphon gas from the tractor gasoline tank and somehow a fire started. A siphon hose was still in the gas tank and a container was nearby.

Bloomington Fire Company responded. The front and rear tires of the tractor were destroyed. County Investigator Harold T. Bowers is continuing the investigation.

State Man Killed

UNION CITY, Pa. (UPI) — A 63-year old Stockton, N. Y. man was killed Thursday in Union City, Pa., when his auto failed to negotiate a curve.

The victim, Byron Pierce, was pronounced dead on arrival in Union City Hospital.

Rural Ulster County: Good Growing Country

By JIM ASHTON
Cooperative Extension Agent

Summer Mulches—A summer mulch will not only benefit your garden but will aid in weed control and water loss. Other benefits of mulches are prevention of soil erosion, reduction of soil temperatures and reduction in cultivation. Mulches are generally applied immediately after transplanting. The mulch to use depends on cost, availability and ease of application. Select a material that is not offensive and stays in place. Summer mulches include such materials as peat moss, shredded bark, sawdust, leaves and black plastic. Remember that these materials do not add nutrients to the soil; therefore, apply a complete fertilizer periodically as required.

Pruning Evergreens—Now is the time to prune back the new growth of needle evergreens to encourage dense growth. If the plants are growing rapidly, this pruning back can be repeated later on in the summer. Azaleas can be pruned now that they are finished flowering. Don't attempt to shape them formally. As rhododendrons finish blooming, carefully pinch off the dried flower parts. Extra long shoots of new growth can also be pinched back to make the plants more compact.

SWEET CORN—You can plant 2nd plantings of sweet corn any time between now and July 10th. That way you will have a supply of fresh corn into the fall. Before planting corn, lime the soil until the pH is between 6.0 and 6.8. This usually means spread 10 lbs. of lime to 100 sq. ft. Fertilize before seeding with 5 lbs. of 5-10-5 or 2½ pounds of 10-6-4 to 100 sq. ft. Then repeat the treatment when the plants are about 8 inches high. Some good corn varieties are: North Star, Morning Sun, Golden Beauty, Northern Belle, Carmelcross, Gold Cup, Iochief, Golden Dividend, Wampum 61, Surecrop, Seneca Shief, Early Fortune, Spring Gold, Seneca Explorer, Butter and Sugar, Honey and Cream

The Allure: Typical Cape Cod

By JACK McELENEY

The degree of popularity with which the Cape Cod stands is a monument to our thrifty forefathers and has been permanently fixed in the hearts of homeowners for a long time.

Today's feature, "The Allure," is a compact design that requires a minimum of ground space, but still contains the four good - size bedrooms required by most American families of present times. The first floor provides two of these rooms, and there are two additional rooms on the second floor.

The functional quality of this Colonial dwelling is the keynote of planning throuout. Modern design has had some influence such as the family type kitchen separated by a kitchen bar. The living room is traditionally cape with a modern type fireplace enhanced by a Colonial bow window. The exterior lines are emphasized by a drop roof over the front entry and bow window, while at the same time saving construction costs because of the extended overhang which forms the roof of the bow window. The two front gables will add much to enhance this already pretty house; however, they are optional.

A study of the floor plan shows a rather narrow breezeway. This could be enlarged to about 12' wide for use as an outdoor area, or be closed in for use as a family room. Altho the plan shows a one - car garage, this also could be extended to a double, or two - car garage by any competent builder. With the exception of the sliding glass door leading to the rear patio, the house is basic thruout with measurements of 26 ft. x 36 ft. Including the Breezeway and garage the overall measurements would come to 54'. The living area amounts to 936 square feet of space on the first floor, and the breezeway and garage will add another 356 square feet. The house with breezeway and garage would require a lot with a frontage of at least 70.

Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon, and they conform to the VA and FHA building requirements.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

STARTING OLIVES FROM SEED

The hallmark of a green thumber is to start olive plants from seeds. It's not easy, but it can be done. One reader writes: "Early in July 1967, I placed four mammouth ripe olive pits in a plant box. A couple months later I noted two strange little plants coming up. They were dug up carefully, and I found that the olive pits still had roots attached. These were planted in pots, using 1/3 each of sand, peat and loam, and now the plants are 8 inches tall, with several leaves growing nicely."

While you may never have enough olives to eat from the plant, you will have a good indoor foliage plant. Keep the leaves washed off from time to time.

AFRICAN VIOLETS

Growers all tell you that an east window is the best for African Violets. This may be true but violets will grow in practically every window in the house. An east window is better because it reaches the plants early in the day when their energies are low (after hours of darkness). The early morning sunshine probably acts as a booster to the plants and help them along. Too much light will cause the foliage to have a yellow, bleached look. When plants are growing lopsided, it means one side is getting more light than the other. Turn your plants regularly so that all parts will get same amount of light and you'll have a better shaped plant.

Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GROW AFRICAN VIOLETS. My guide is full of good tips on raising Americans No. 1 plant.

COCOA BEAN SHELLS

How effective are they as a mulch? We like their looks around shrubs and evergreens. They contain about 92 per cent organic matter, small amounts of nitrogen and potash. Some people use them on new lawns at the rate of 150 pounds per 1,000 square foot. But their main value is around trees, shrubs and in the flower border.

SHRUBS FOR WET SPOTS

If you have a few wet spots and want something that will grow there, try Sweet Shrub, Clump Birch, pink spirea, Highbush cranberry, Pepper bush, Pussy willow, silver maple, and weeping willow.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC

A reader writes: We bought some dates in the store and wonder if we can start new plants from the seed."

Answer: Takes a long time for the hard seed to germinate, but they will. File the coat lightly to hasten germination. The date is a palm of the desert regions, which means it likes a lot of heat. Yours won't bear in the home because you have to have a male and female tree. It's worth a try, however, and if you get seeds to grow you'll have an conversation piece.

When Building New Home Let Architect Supervise

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Summer is house-building time and many people are tempted to act as their own contractor.

If you want that dream house on a blueprint to come true, hire the architect to see it through from start to finish. Or hire a responsible builder.

It makes all the difference say people who have done both.

He will not only draw up the plans but he will specify the quality of materials ad supervise the job. That may be the most important part of the project.

Many people cut financial corners by getting an architect's plan and then supervising a project themselves. But they often rue that decision.

For example, would you know inferior lumber at a glance? Would you be able to park at your house site and follow tiny stages of the project and understand everything they are doing?

Some people can act as their own contractors. But these people usually have built enough houses (and have observed enough problems) to have profited by the experience.

Nephytes can't oversee facets of building that are unfamiliar to them, as many have found out to their horror, whereas an architect can visit a site from time to time to observe with a knowledgeable eye. He'll know when to visit to circumvent disaster as the house progresses. Even he may have to argue to get things done properly.

One electrician bid on a job from an architect's plan and the unsuspecting house builders, acting as their own contractors, assumed that everything would be great. The electrician dragged out the job for months while various aspects of the job were being held up because of his procrastination. At the finish line when paneling was on walls and floors had been laid, the owners found that vital outlets had been left out.

Should they rip up expensive quarter-sawn oak to get one outlet in the floor in front of fixed French doors? Should they tear out new plaster to get another outlet? Should they remove teak paneling to install six additional outlets?

After spending a small fortune on the house with imported marbles, woods, tiles, the family is stuck with extension cords in several rooms.

Another disaster occurred where a family submitted a plan to a builder and walked away.

The plan was drawn by an architect who was not paid to specify materials or to supervise. He was shocked when he visited the site at the sudden request of his clients who had become edgy about the appearance of the framing.

Lumber and so-called plywood were the lowest grade for a very expensive house. Wall studs didn't exactly meet cross beams and in some instances wood seemed to have shrunk so that nails provided slack in the gap.

The question is whether the builder is liable. The family signed an agreement to have a house built in a certain style for a certain sum. Nothing was said about lumber grades or other materials. They hired the builder because he was available and one the architect recommended was unavailable. The contract wasn't really violated.

Even when an architect's plan is complete with recommendations for lumber, windows, doors, hardware and other materials, there can be problems if he isn't asked to supervise the project.

In one instance, a builder paid no attention to window placement. The plan had been made so that furniture could be placed attractively and windows draped easily and esthetically. In the living room, windows were placed two feet closer than shown on the drawing. In the child's bedroom, they "made up" for that discrepancy by putting windows at the ends of the wall rather than as centered on the plan. The owner found it was impossible even to place a window shade properly, much less hang curtains and draperies.

By the time such deviations from the plan are noted by owners, the correction of mistakes is costly and time-consuming. It may even wind up with lawsuits and so on, but in the end it will be costly and time consuming.

It is wise to weigh your abilities at house supervision at the start and turn the entire task over to a responsible person if you consider yourself unqualified to do it.

A REDUCTION OF GLARE, brightness, and solar heat transmission were attained in this home by the use of a special grey-tinted glass known as Parallel-O-Grey. The large areas of glass make it possible to enjoy the beautiful outdoor surroundings and the grey tint allows the occupants to do this in greater comfort. It is also economical since it reduces the air-conditioning costs.

Tips on Faucets

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question: The faucet outside our house the one we attach our garden hose to has developed a drip. I have had some success replacing a washer in a faucet in our kitchen sink, but have never tackled an outside faucet. Is there anything I should know before I take it apart?

Answer: The repair procedure is the same for the outside and inside faucets. The first and most important step in each case is to turn off the water supply to that particular faucet. If there is no shut - off valve, turn off the main water supply to the house. Unscrew the cap nut below the handle, take out the stem and replace the washer at the end of it.

If this doesn't stop the drip then the faucet seat—the part inside the faucet after the stem is removed — must be smoothed. This can be done with a seat - dressing tool available at any hardware store. Remember that all of this is based on the assumption that the drip is coming from the mouth of the faucet and not from under the cap nut.

If the latter is the case, tightening the nut may be all that is necessary. If this doesn't help, unscrew the cap nut and replace the cordlike material or packing under it.

French Wasp May Save Dutch Elms from Death

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newfeatures

A tiny wasp that buzzes with a French accent is being used as a weapon to help combat the dread Dutch elm disease ravaging the beautiful shade tress.

The University of North Carolina reports that the wasp attacks and destroys the beetles that spread the fungus causing Dutch elm disease.

The beetles carry the spores of Dutch elm disease and infect the trees while feeding on twigs and small branchs. Chemicals help control the beetles but they do not reach all danger spots on the trees. But the female wasps thrust their egg - laying organs through the bark to deposit an egg beside the beetle larvae.

Thousands of tiny wasps have been imported from France by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is rearing them for release to states.

Specialist Fred Whitefield of the University of North Carolina says that while use of wasps is one way to chek the disease, "destroying breeding places is the fastest and cheapest" method of control.

Burn or bury dead or dying elm wood before beetles appear in the spring.

Applying dormant spray is another way to fight Dutch elm disease. DDT should be applied in the fall after the leaves drop. A windless day during a dry spell is good for spraying. Spring spraying should be done before buds open.

Dutch elm disease has spread as far west as Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas. One Illinois community, which suffered elm losses up to 28 per cent each year, developed a control program that reduced losses to 2 per cent.

A principal feature of community control programs is designation of an area for public and private use to dispose of wood infected by the beetles. Infested wood dumped in lots and elsewhere permits the insects to inoculate healthy trees the next year.

Tree owners should make an inspection tour in November. Dead leaves at the tips of branches and the shepherd's crook curvature of twigs are signs of Dutch elm disease.

Other signs of infestation are "shot" holes in the bark where adult beetles emerged last summer, and rust - color sawdust in the tree's crotches. Engraving - like galleries or tunnels inside the bark is another telltale indication of trouble.

Sanitation is considered the most effective means of control now. Tree experts recommend cutting down trees with 50 per cent or more deadwood and burning the bark.

JOHN W. COOPER

Upstater Principal of Woodstock School

He received his bachelor of science degree in elementary education from the State University College at Oneonta, where he also was awarded a master's degree in elementary education. He has attended reading workshops at Colgate and Temple Universities.

He has held many positions of responsibility in community work and in education. He served as an elementary teacher for four years in Cooperstown and then was elementary principal in Hamilton for four years. He has been an elementary principal in the Rush-Henrietta District for the past three years.

His wife, Lucy, is a certified elementary teacher with five years' experience. They have three children, Curtis, 8, Pamela, 4, and Suzanne, 1.

It was also announced by the Onteora Central Schools that Frank F. MacMartin, a social studies teacher in the district for the past four years, has been appointed an administrative interne at the Onteora Junior High School. MacMartin also has served for two years as director of student activities at the Onteora High School.

MacMartin holds a bac[illegible] of arts degree from the Utica College of Syracuse Univer[illegible]. He has taken graduate work in education at the State University of New York at New Paltz.

Dutchess Hope: Preserve Site

President Alan Simpson of Vassar College expressed the hope today that "Springside," Matthew Vassar's home in Poughkeepsie, would be preserved because of its significance for the history and culture of the Mid Hudson Valley. Vassar College itself, said Simpson, could not include the aquisition of Springside in its New Dimensions plans for expansion and innovation, but he and other individual members of the college community felt that such an important example of architecture and landscape design ought to be protected from any moves which might lead to its destruction.

Thomas McCormick, associate professor of art and director of the art gallery at Vassar, pointed out that Springside is the only surviving landscape garden which can be authenticated as having been designed by Andrew Jackson Downing, America's first great landscape designer. Downing's books on gardening and rural architecture changed the appearance of the American countryside in the middle of the Nineteenth Century. Inspired by the natural Hudson Valley landscape, Springside's layout is unique, said McCormick, in that it contains a miniature "Stonehenge" and other romantic appurtenances. Most important, he continued, it contains the only buildings actually designed by Downing, who usually relied on others for his architectural designs. Downing's drawings for these are in the Vassar College Library. They include the nearly complete set for Matthew Vasser's summer cottage, which has been called one of the finest romantic cottages in the country.

Red Cross Work: Familes Share

The programs of the American Red Cross give an opportunity to many members of the same family to share in giving community service to others. This is amply demonstrated by the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross where at least 18 family groups are currently engaged in Red Cross programs.

William Davis, Louis Smith and Robert Kurland, all of Kingston, as members of the Chapter Board of Directors share their interests in Red Cross with their wives, all of whom are Service to Military Families Volunteers. In addition, Kurland serves as a Red Cross first aid and water safety instructor and as a member of the disaster committee. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Smith, Port Ewen, serve as first aid instructor and Service to Military Families Volunteer, respectively.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill Archard, New Paltz; Jill Abramson, also of New Paltz, and her sister, Mrs. Kristine A. Leonard; Timothy Donoghue and his daughters, Suzan D. DiChiara and Penelope Donoghue, all of Camp Hi-Wing, Krumville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sagarese of Highland; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Senzer and his brother, Jeffery, all of Tamarack Lodge, Greenfield Park; and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stockin, New Paltz, are concerned with the Red Cross water safety programs and are all authorized water safety instructors. Board member Vernon Murphy of Kingston, shares his Red Cross interests with his two daughters, Angela and Kathleen, both of whom are Water Safety Instructors.

Participating in the first aid program are authorized first aid instructors Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burkhouse, Napanoch; Philip Greer and his brother Hugh, both of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. George V. Kelley, Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. Philip McAliece, Ellenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morehouse, Woodstock. Morehouse also serves as first aid chairman and is a member of the Board of Directors.

DA to Give Internship For Law Students

An internship program for interested law students has been commissioned by District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca which started this week.

Under the program one or two law students will be assigned to the various phases of the criminal administration of justice. Generally the law students will be called upon to interview complainants, witnesses and police officers, to aid in the preparation of cases for trial, and to research questions of law.

In this way the critical problems of law enforcement will be observed at firsthand and the realization of the efforts and measures employed to solve them, the district attorney said.

It is hoped that the face to face confrontations with the victims of crime, defendants, prisoners, prosecutors, defense attorneys, probation officers and members of the judiciary will provide the student with a new insight and appreciation for the tremendous amount of work, the emotional conflicts and the practical difficulties associated with the tasks of the public prosecutor and of the defense counsel.

The first student to take advantage of the internship program is John J. Darwak, 117 Third Avenue, a student at Syracuse Law School. Darwak will work under Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher during July, and will be assigned to City Court. Darwak is a former special patrolman and was affiliated with Kingston Police Department in 1967 and 1968.

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1968 TWENTY-ONE

Early Hurley Opens Doors

Historic Hurley, observing its 307th year, will open wide the doors of 13 old stone houses July 13.

The annual stone house tours will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on that day, starting from the Hurley Reformed Church. There will be a country fair and cafeteria on the church grounds. Printed tour guides and shuttle buses will be provided.

Rich in history and legend, Hurley is notable for its large concentration of early stone houses which have been lived in continuously since the 17th century. Many of the houses are occupied today by descendents of the families who built them. Residents proudly point to the fact that Hurley is not a restoration but rather a unique living preservation. The village which once served as the state capital during the Revolution has been designated a National Historic Site by the United States Department of the Interior.

Settled in 1661 by 15 Dutch and Huguenot families, the first slab house village of Hurley was completely destroyed by the Indians in the second spring. Women and children were dragged off to captivity but were returned to their families in the fall of 1663.

Learning from the bitter experience, the early settlers rebuilt their village of native limestone which has endured through the ensuing years.

The modest one - room originals became the core of the larger stone dwellings expanded as the family grew and prospered in the lush valley.

The village first known as Nieuw Dorp was rechristened Hurley when the British took over the colony. The stubborn Dutch resisted the change, clinging to their native tongue and traditions well into the 19th century.

Revolution Action

The Revolutionary War afforded the village some of its brightest moments in history. Nearly every Hurley family had a man in the army during those days and a British spy was caught and hanged from an apple tree in the center of town. One of the houses to be open July 13 served as courtroom for his trial.

George Washington may not have slept in Hurley but it is duly recorded he was well received there in 1782.

When Kingston was burned by the British in October, 1777, Hurley served as a haven for the fleeing city folk who came with all the belongings they could salvage from the torch. The government too was forced to flee and Hurley's Senate House with its secret room will be one of the houses on the tour.

Sojourner's Birthplace

The home of Sojourner Truth, where she was born in slavery, is another highlight of the tour. The original grant for the land on which the house was built was conferred by King George II in 1750.

Superstitions common to other early colonial settlements were evidenced in Hurley too.

The Polly Crispell Cottage another of the homes on the tour, has a "witch trap" in the chimney. The "cottage" was once a blacksmith's shop and evidently the precaution was to save the smithy from supernatural harassment.

In more recent years Hurley attracted artist, Winslow Homer who spent the summer there in 1878. It is rumored he became fond of a young schoolmistress from the village during his stay. The following winter at the Paris Exposition, he exhibited the Country School, showing a one room school such as Hurley children attended up to the year 1936.

Royal Visitor

Princess Beatrix of the Netherland was a visitor to the village of Dutch origins in 1959. She was charmed by the beauty and simplicity of the old community.

Since the annual stone house tours were started 18 years ago, visitors from near and far have flocked to Old Hurley for a peek at history.

For a day of rural relation with an educational bonus try Hurley stone house tours July 13.

CP Building Rites on Sunday

Edward deGroff, president of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, announced that the public is invited to a groundbreaking ceremony for the new Cerebral Palsy building on Sunday, July 7, at 3 p.m.

The land upon which the building is to be constructed, located on Webster Street at the south corner of the Benedictine Hospital grounds, was a gift to CP from Benedictine Hospital.

Plans for the ceremony are under the chairmanship of Mrs. Martin Nilan, Port Ewen. Representatives from throughout Ulster and Greene Counties and Cerebral Palsy Board Members will take part in the one-half hour groundbreaking ceremonies. Refreshments will be served by members of the board of directors of the CP Center.

Harry Halverson Associates have designed the building to include rooms for nursery school, speech and hearing therapy, hearing testing, physical therapy, consultation, waiting room, and office space. The building will be one-story, with a complete basement occupying over 5,000 square feet.

The new facilities will adequately accommodate all of those children of Ulster and Greene Counties who have physical handicaps and need treatment. Over the 16 years that the local Center has been in operation the number of children treated has grown from 25 to the present fulltime summer capacity of 160, while still occupying the same space in the Ulster County Tumor Building.

deGroff said "United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County has been helped by so many groups, organizations, and individuals over the years that it would be impossible to personally invite each and every one. We are taking this means to extend invitations to all those interested in the Cerebral Palsy who wish to attend this event."

Hopp-Constant

Miss Frieda Hopp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hopp of 122 Hurley Avenue, this city, exchanged nuptial vows with Douglas Albert Constant, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Constant, 84 Main Street, Rosendale, on Sunday, June 23, at Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk linen gown with lace accents and a controlled skirt which featured a full chapel train. Her headpiece was a lace cap accented with pearls attached to a double veil. She carried a bridal cascade of white carnations and stephanotis, centered with two orchids and ivy.

Miss Gertrude Hopp of Kingston was maid of honor for her sister. Her petal blue satin sheer gown was floor length. A petal cap attached to a four tier matching bouffant veil served as her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white and blue carnations and daisies with long white streamers.

Attendants were Miss Patricia Fenton and Miss Elizabeth Emmick, both of Kingston. Their gowns and headpieces were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant and they carried nosegays of white daisies with long white streamers.

Eric Constant of North Augusta, S. C., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Carl Constant, Birmingham, Mich., brother of the bridegroom, and Edward Charles of Kingston.

After the wedding a reception for 75 guests was held at Kurtas Restaurant, Glenford.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, is employed at Rondout National Bank. Her husband, an alumnus of Rondout Valley High School and Ulster County Community College, is working for Central Hudson Corporation in Poughkeepsie as a mechanical technician.

Here is a mother who writes for all children the kind of stories she wished she could have found for her own. Jane Clement has provided tales that renew and refresh, that quietly remind us that love, purity and self-sacrifice are still precious. A whimsical fairy tale, a legend and a richly historical piece are among the forms used. Of a previously published Christmas story by Mrs. Clement entitled "The Three Gifts" which appeared in a new collection of Christmas stories, BEHOLD THAT STAR, Ruth Hill Viguers, then Editor of THE HORN BOOK wrote: "Among several stories of real distinction are . . . Tribute to Schimmerling Is Planned

The Continental Piano Quartet, under the direction of pianist Ilse Sass, will give a concert in Woodstock's Maverick Hall on Sunday, July 7 at 3 p.m. in memory of the well known composer and teacher Hanus Schimmerling.

Appearing with Miss Sass will be Ruth Conway, concert singer; Stanley Hoffman, American violinist and violist; Joseph Bernstein, violinist; Leo Rostal, cellist.

Hanus Schimmerling was a long-time resident of Woodstock. Besides composing and teaching, he was a prolific contributor of articles to American and European newspapers and became known on both sides of the Atlantic as a lecturer as well. His major field of interest was Slavonic folk music and he has countless compositions and textbooks published by such well known houses as Schirmers and Carl Fisher.

With soprano Ruth Conway as soloist, the Continental Quartet will perform, as a major work, Schimmerling's "Lyrica Illyrica Suite." It was premiered in 1964 at the Maverick in Woodstock with William Kroll and Cynthia Britt performing. It is based on Yugoslavian folk songs.

Miss Conway is the daughter of the late Dr. Hans Cohn. She made her debut in Ulm, Germany in 1961 and has performed in many recitals, chamber music concerts, with Collegiate Chorale, the Little Orchestra Society and the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Leonard Bernstein.

Mr. Hoffman, violist, is a graduate of Juilliard Music School. He made his debut in 1962 and his teacher was Misha Mishakoff.

Mr. Bernstein, violinist, is assistant concertmaster with the New York Philharmonic. A student of George Enesco in Europe, he joined the Palestine Philharmonic as first violinist and soloist, served on the faculty of the Berkshire Festival, and was founder of the Tel Aviv Quartet.

Cellist Rostel was solo player in the NBC Symphony under Toscanini and is remembered as member of the famous Lener Quartet.

Ilse Sass, pianist and teacher, is well known in this area. Born in Germany, she was graduated from Cologne Conservatory and, since coming to the United States, has performed in numerous chamber music recitals and solo concerts.

Other selections on the July 7 concert will include "Toccata and Chromatic Fugue for Piano," by Schimmerling; "Piano Quartet in E, Op. 47," Schumann; and "Sonata No. 5 in E minor for Cello and Piano," Vivaldi.

SMOKING RULES IMPOSED ONLY IN ONE'S OWN HOME

Dear Mrs. Post: Because of recent surgery, I have been advised to avoid cigarette smoke. Is there a graceful way to handle this situation as a hostess? As a potential guest, does one refuse invitations to affairs that include smokers, or does one permit the hostess, if she suggests it, to ask the smokers to refrain from smoking? Also, in public places where smoking is prohibited but the signs ignored, is it ever correct to ask the offender to please not smoke?—J. Silvers

Dear Mrs. Silvers: It is perfectly correct for a hostess to ask her guests to refrain from smoking when she has a valid reason such as yours. You cannot, however, expect another hostess' guests to do so. I do not feel she should impose your problems on her other friends but should invite you with another group another time.

When "No Smoking" rules are in effect, it is correct to politely call attention to the fact to those who are violating the regulations.

"Thank You" Correct Any Time, Any Place

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it incorrect in America for a lady to thank a gentleman for lighting her cigarette? I have noticed in the sophisticated TV shows that they do not. The would-be sexpots will give him a look which, I think is supposed to say, "Boy, you can light me up anytime," but none of them actually says "thank you."—

Dear Wendy: "Thank you" is correct in America for any service rendered — any time, any place. TV shows or commercials do little to help improve manners, and this is one case where they certainly could — and should!

Inviting Friends of Friends To a Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to ask my friend's fiance to my wedding, but I do not know his name. What is the right way to invite him? Also, is there any formal way to tell an unengaged friend that he may bring a guest with him to the wedding?—Paula

Dear Paula: Ask your friend for her fiance's name and address and mail him (or her) a separate invitation. If this is difficult or impossible, you may either write a separate note or enclose one with your friend's invitation, saying, "We would be delighted to have your fiance come with you."

There is no formal way to tell an unengaged man that he may bring a guest to the wedding, but you may discuss it with him ahead of time or write him a note, and then send a regular invitation to whomever he chooses to escort. This makes the unknown guest feel much more welcome than if she had not received any invitation.

At Woodstock Playhouse—'White Liars,' 'Black Comedy'

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

The Woodstock Playhouse has introduced one of Broadway's top comedy hits, "The Black Comedy," a play by Peter Shaffer. It opened Wednesday, July 3 along with "The White Liars," also by Peter Shaffer.

There is little doubt that "Black Comedy" is the better of the two. I would have wished that "White Liars" was given second instead of first on the program but it's worth sitting through.

Martha Miller, Michael Bradshaw, William Metzo and Gene Nye appear in "White Liars." Action takes places in a fortune teller's parlor in a run-down seaside resort on the south coast of England. The play concerns itself with the why of lying, little white lies, bigger ones, and the end results. The play has depth and merit and serves as a direct contrast to the hilarious "Black Comedy."

Gene Nye, who is cast as a young sculptor, also does a fine job in this vehicle. Nye has a great talent for facial expressions that win him quick audience approval. His extensive regional theatre credits include the Hartford Stage Company, American Shakespeare Festival and the Ypsilanti Greek Theatre as well as the Phoenix Theatre in New York.

It's good to see Tanny McDonald in this play—she is a very good actress. In "Black Comedy," she takes the part of an ex-mistress.

Also appearing in the successful comedy are Margaret Cathell, Martha Miller, Fred Miller, William Metzo and Eugene Blythe.

The play, directed by Harold Baldridge with scenery and lighting by David F. Segal, has many unique aspects. The author pulls a theatrical switch by reversing dark and light. In the brief moments when the lights are off in the theatre, they are "on" for the performers on stage. The rest of the time the lights are turned on for the audience while the cast stumbles about in their own "darkness.". It provides some howling scenes.

In the play, the sculptor is conned by his fiancee into "borrowing" his absent neighbor's precious antique furniture to impress her daddy the Colonel and an expected millionaire art collector. "Oh God," prays the sculptor, "let this evening go all right. Let Mr. Bamberger like my sculpture and buy some. Let Carol's monster father like me. And let my neighbor Harold Gorringe never find out that we borrowed his precious furniture behind his back. Amen."

Of course, everything goes wrong.

"Black Comedy" plays through Saturday with curtain at 8:40 p. m. and on Sunday with curtain at 7:30 p. m.

Next week, Edgar Rosenblum, executive director, will present "The Odd Couple." It will be staged from July 10 to July 17.

Tracks Cleared

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Penn-Central tracks were cleared late Thursday after two separate derailments near this village between Buffalo and Rochester blocked them for several hours.

An axle on one car of an 86-car freight train burned out early Thursday causing the railroad's east-bound track to be blocked.

On a separate branch line between here and Caledonia, a 37-car freight was stopped when a car carrying ammonia jumped the tracks in the town of Stafford, Genesee County.

No one was reported injured in either accident.

Dionne Warwick Eyes Stage Career

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

She follows a longtime tradition. Since early talkies, pop singers have been enlisted for acting duties, and many of them turned into expert performers: Bing Crosby, Judy Garland, Betty Grable, Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, etc., etc.

Sinatra once proferred an explanation of why so many of his craft succeeded as actors: "We got our training by acting on the bandstand. It was a challenge to make each lyric believable, and some of the lyrics we had to sing were mighty challenging!"

Dionne Warwick has been selling lyrics in remarkable style for six years. Born in East Orange, N.J., she learned singing from the soul early—as part of a family gospel group called the Drinkard Singers. She and a sister and two cousins formed another group called the Gospelaires.

By the time she branched out as a single, she possessed the skill and believability to sell such melancholy numbers as "You'll Never Get to Heaven" and "Walk On By," her first record hits. With musical material and guidance supplied by the talented Burt Bacharach, she ascended into top rank as a record, night club and concert attraction.

Now comes a new career. She is starring with Stephen Boyd and Ossie Davis in "The Slave," an 1850 drama of the South, to be filmed in Shreveport, La. Miss Warwick visited here briefly before reporting to the location, and she talked about the assignment.

"I always thought about doing everything in show business," she remarked, "and the two things left for me were movies and a Broadway show. So when 'The Slave' came up, I was eager for it.

Appeals Court Overturns Edict On Miranda

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Court of Appeals has overturned a ruling by a lower court that the so-called Miranda decision may be applied retroactively.

When the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its Miranda decision two years ago, it put limitations on the power of police to question suspects in their custody but said the ruling applied only after June 13, 1966.

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court cited the Miranda ruling, however, in reversing the convictions of two youths by a county court in January, 1966.

The Court of Appeals, the staet's highest tribunal, overturned that decision Wednesday by a vote of 4-3.

Judge Kenneth B. Keating, in the majority opinion, said "a retroactive application of Miranda would have a disruptive effect on the administration of justice by requiring a new trial."

The majority based its decision largely on another ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court. In Johnson vs. New Jersey, the high court said Miranda should be applied "only to cases commenced" later.

The ruling by the Court of Appeals involved Bruse B. Sayres and Ronald G. Trevail. They were convicted in Rensselaer County Court.

Divide Troopers For Bargaining

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the State Police will be divided into two units for purposes of collective bargaining, under an order handed down by the State Public Employment Relations Board.

The board decided Tuesday to overrule the state's contention that the force should be represented by a single bargaining unit.

It remains to be seen, however, if and when the order will be implemented. There is a possibility that the ruling might be challenged in an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Not only the state, but also a union sought a unit that represents troopers only. The union is the New York State Employes Council 50, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Union, AFL-CIO.

The board determined that one unit should be made up of troopers, sergeants and personnel of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, up to the rank of lieutenant. The second unit should consist of lieutenants, captains and majors, the board said.

The three board members agreed unanimously on the creation of the basic bargaining unit but divided, 2-1, in the establishment of the second.

Dissenting in the vote on the second unit, Joseph R. Crowley said that there was no sign that lieutenants, captains and majors wanted separate representation and that the board should not set up a separate unit now.

In the majority decision, Board Chairman Robert D. Helsby and George H. Fowler said whether the officers desired representation.

Contending for representation besides Council 50 are the Police Benevolent Association of the New York State Police and the Civil Service Employes Association.

The CSEA had sought specifically to have the BCI men included in the basic unit.

The board held that all officers beyond the rank of major should be excluded from the negotiating units. The board did not rule, however, on the question of whether these officers are entitled to representation under the Taylor Law, the statute governing relations between public bodies and agencies and their employes.

Buffalo Church Badly Damaged By Blaze

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A four-alarm fire caused heavy damage to the sacristy and altar of St. Brigid's Roman Catholic Church on this city's south side.

Officials said the fire was discovered shortly after midnight today and within a 20 minute period roared to the four alarms.

It was estimated damage would be excessive, well over $100,000, one fireman said.

Two ladder trucks sunk into a hidden cellar and had to be pulled out by heavy cranse.

No other information was immediately available.

Delayed Reaction

DARLASTON, England (UPI) —Mrs. Florence Holten claimed in court Thursday that her faulty washing machine gave her an electric shock and leaked in her kitchen, making her hysterial so that she has suffered from depression ever since.

But the judge, noting that all this happened seven years ago and that she used the machine since, awarded her $4.80 for a breach of maintenance contract and nothing on her claims for damage.

Will File Charge Against Driver In Traffic Fatal

A 35-year-old truck driver, who was involved in a fatal traffic mishap in Ellenville on June 18, will be charged with operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes, according to Police Chief Abe Rand.

The chief said the charge will be filed against Richard Forbes, of 19 North Main Street, Ellenville. His flatbed truck carrying a load of bricks, overturned while rounding a curve near Berme Road and Canal Street, Ellenville. Police said about 25,000 pounds of bricks toppled off the truck and spilled on Valerie Regan, 4, daughter of James and Beverly Regan of 240 Canal Street, Ellenville.

The girl was standing on the roadside with two playmates when she was killed. Authorities said the child presumably was crushed to death by the bricks.

Kickers Explode for 8-4 Victory Over Hungarians

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

The Kingston Sport Club Kickers—that's the big soccer team in the area, you know—were carried away by their sudden prominence as the only sports team in action in the Kingston area on Thursday.

They staged a 4th of July fireworks display of their own with a surprise 8 to 4 rout of the crack New York Hungarians of the Premier Division of the German-American Soccer Association at Ochler's Mountain Lodge.

The eight goals is one of the largest harvests in the club's history and augurs well for the Kickers' entry in the Major Division next fall.

All-America Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia was terribly caught up in the holiday spirit. He accounted for four of the Kickers goals. Jimmy Reinhardt picked up two goals and Elliott Pobbie-Asare and Reiner Schwebel, the bulwarks of the KSC defense, added the others.

A rout appeared imminent when the Kickers ran up a 5-lead at the 41-minute mark of the first half on Reinhardt's second goal, following three successive tallies by the ubiquitous Ventriglia.

But the Kickers were victimized by their own affluence and the remainder of the contest was sluggish affair. The Kicker patterns didn't click. Some of the boys didn't seem to know where the others were and the club may have set a record for offside infractions. The total may have been close to 25. One thing for sure, Referee Heinz Ulfig's whistle was red hot most of the day.

Hungarians crashed through with the first goal of the day—Szabo hitting at the 9-minute mark. Jimmy Reinhardt tied it for Kingston at 12-minutes, before Ventriglia unleashed his three straight goals at 17, 29 and 36 minutes. One was the end of a beautiful combination involving Pobbi-Asare, Schwebel and Kovalenko, a newcomer.

Malnar of the Hungarians checked the tide at 5-1 with a score two minutes after Reinhardt's second beauty of the day to bring the half to a close, 5-2, Kingston.

Pobbie-Asare Scores

Pobbi-Asare's goal at 49 minutes widened the Kingston lead to 6-2, but the Hungarians rallied to save themselves from the disaster on successive goals by Leitner (60 minutes) and Szabo's second tally five minutes later.

At this point, it appeared the Hungarians were the equal of the powerful Kickers. But any such notions were quickly dispelled when Schwebel rammed one past the Hungarian goalie at 72-minutes and Ventriglia blew his fourth shot through the net at 80-minutes.

The statistical chart showed a wide edge for the Kickers, who had 33 goal shots to 7 for the Hungarians.

Other statistics: corner kicks, Kingston 7, Hungarians, 4; saves, Diekoski, 10; Hungarians, 17; free kicks, Kingston 10, Hungarians 19.

The Kickers resume their exhibition schedule on Sunday, July 14, against the Haledon A. C. of New York. Stadtwerke Neunchen of Germany is the big attraction on July 21.

Jones, Bosch Homers Gain Split for Mets

NEW YORK (UPI)—Home runs by Cleon Jones and Don Bosch enabled the New York Mets to halt Pittsburgh s seven-game winning streak with a 4-3 victory in the second game of an Independence Day doubleheader Thursday after the Pirates won the opener 3-2.

Jones hammered his 10th homer of the season, tops on the Mets, with two out in the first inning and Bosch erased a 2-1 Pittsburgh lead with a two-run drive in the third after winning pitcher Don Cardwell reached base on Donn Clendenon's two-out error.

The Mets added a third unearned run off luckless Jim Bunning (4-10) in the fifth when Bosch doubled with two out and scored as shortstop Gene Alley threw away Jones' bouncer. It proved decisive when Gary Kolb hit a pinch homer with two out in the nioth for the Pirates.

Cardwell, who needed relief help from Ron Taylor in the eighth, won his third game against eight losses. He allowed two runs in the third on a leadoff single by Maury Wills, a run-scoring double by Allen who continued to third on Bosch's bobble in centerfield and a sacrifice fly by Willie Stargell.

Clendenon doubled with one out off loser Jerry Koosman (11-4) before Mazeroski whacked his run-producing double, snapping a 2-2 tie. His error on J.C. Martin's bouncer in the second inning enabled the Mets to score two unearned runs. Al Weis drove in one with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly and Koosman singled to account for the second run.

Wills, who stole four bases during the doubleheader to run his season's total to 25, set up the first Pittsburgh run in the third and scored the tying run in the seventh. A double by Jerry May, Wills' bunt single and Alley's double produced the Pirates' first run and Wills singled, stole second and scored on Roberto Clemente's single in the seventh.

Ron Kline, who pitched three hitless innings in relief of Bob Moose, gained his fifth victory in six decisions. Moose allowed only three hits over the first six innings.

Tigers' Pyrotechnics Don't Impress Skipper

By PETE ALFANO
UPI Sports Writer

Mayo Smith, who takes a dim view of July 4 celebrations, would rather wait a few months before having his Detroit Tigers participate in any flag waving festivities.

The Tigers, who lead the American League by a comfortable 8½ games at the traditional half-way mark in the pennant race, set off their own brand of fireworks Thursday as Norm Cash and Jim Northrup led a six-homer barrage that led to a 13-10 trouncing of the California Angels.

Smith, however, was not carried away by the performance and took a seemingly unpatriotic view of the day's events.

"I don't believe in that July 4 stuff," said the Tigers' skipper. "What I believe in is September 29, the last day of the season."

Thus Smith, who has also heard about the exploits of the 1951 Giants, would not claim an early victory for his club despite the fact that the team would break away early. . .and leading the American League on July 4 has won the pennant 45 times.

Northrup, who hit his 12th and 13th homers of the season and drove in five runs, was a bit more enthusiastic as he reminded listeners of his pre-season prophecy when he tabbed the Tigers to win it all.

"I said so last spring but nobody listened to me," said Northrup. "I said then we wouldn't have a race like we did last year, that one team would break away early . . . and would have a 10 game lead at the All-Star break."

The Tigers' outfielder continued, "I said if one team could do it, it would be us and right now we're in pretty good shape."

The Angels had taken an early 4-0 lead in the second inning on Don Mincher's first homer and errors by Bill Freehan and reliever Dennis Ribant on a bases loaded bunt, which allowed three runs to score.

The Tigers retaliated with a nine-rune rally in their half of the second, featured by Freehan's 12th homer, Northrup's triple and homers by Norm Cash and Willie Horton.

Northrup and Cash homered in the sixth and the Tigers added two more runs in the eighth on Northrup's second homer of the game.

Ribant, who pitched only 2-3 of an inning, notched his second win in three decisions. Tom Burgmeier, who faced just one man, dropped his third game in four decisions.

In other American League action, Washington beat New York 4-2, Boston triumphed over Oakland 7-2, Cleveland rallied to beat Minnesota 6-3 and Baltimore edged Chicago 4-3 in 12 innings.

Juan Pizarro, acquired last week from Pittsburgh, drove in two runs and pitched one hit ball in 6 and 2/3 innings of relief to lead the Red Sox over the Athletics. Pizarro singled home a run in the fourth and hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth as All-Star "Blue Moon" Odom lost his fifth game.

Joe Azcue's two run double climaxed a four run eigth inning Cleveland rally that pinned Dean Chance with his ninth loss. Vincente Romo, who pitched five innings of relief for the Indians, who his first major league game.

Stroud's Fireworks Demolish Yanks, 4-2

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ed Stroud, a Yankee nemesis all season, cracked two doubles and two triples Thursday to spark the Washington Senators to a 4-2 victory over New York.

Stroud, who has hammered Yankee pitching for 11 hits in 21 at bats, including three doubles, three triples and three homers, scored two runs and set up another with his 4-for-4 outburst.

His first double followed a walk to Del Unser in the first inning and Unser scored the Senators' first run on Mike Epstein's infield out.

Stroud's second double came in the sixth. Frank Howard was then intentionally passed and Epstein grounded sharply to Mickey Mantle, whose throw to second hit Howard on the back for an error as Stroud raced home.

Howard advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored the second unearned run of the inning on Jim French's sacrifice fly.

After the Yankees cut the margin to 3-2, Stroud led off the eighth inning with his second triple of the day and scored on Cap Peterson's single.

The Yankees punched across an unearned run in the seventh when Bill Robinson was safe on a throwing error, moved up on a walk and scored on Roy White's single. The second Yankee run came in the eighth inning on singles by Andy Kosco, Jake Gibbs and Bobby Cox.

Laver Stops Roche In Three-Set Sweep

Open to both amateur and pro for the first time, Laver became the initial pro to win tennis' most prestigious tourney, hammering Roche in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The duo from "Down Under" gained the finals by defeating an American pair, pro Clark Graebner and amateur Arthur Ashe earlier in the week.

In Women's Singles action, yesterday Mrs. Billie Jean King, American pro and winner the last two years, seeks to become the first woman to take the crown three straight times since 1954. She meets another Australian, Judy Tegart, for the title.

Mrs. King came from behind against last year's runner-up, England's Ann Hayden Jones, on scores of 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. Miss Tegart stunningly upset the U.S.'s Nancy Richey in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1. Miss Tegart is the lone amateur in the finals.

AUSTRALIA'S JUDY TEGART in action July 4 while upsetting Nancy Richey of the United States, 6-3, 6-1, in the women's singles semifinal match at Wimbledon. Judy meets America's Billie Jean King for the championship. (UPI CABLEPHOTO.)

MONTE STICKLES

Stickles To Saints

The San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League have traded veteran tight end Monty Stickles to New Orleans and may lose former star pass catcher Dave Parks to the same club.

The former Poughkeepsie High School All-DUSO star in football and basketball missed most of the 1967 season because of a broken arm.

General manager Jack White of the 49ers today confirmed that Stickles had been traded to the Saints, but declined to say for whom. The Saints will report that.

Saint quarterback Bill Kilmer, a former 49er, said his club is dickering with Parks, who played out his option with the 49ers last season and is a free agent.

The 49ers are still negotiating with Parks, who said he would sign for the best offer.

Wright's Zip Eddie's in ESL

Wright's Service Station, behind the three-hit shutout pitching of Ron Joray, moved into a tie for second place in the Ellenville Softball League, zipping Eddie's, 4-0.

Chalking up three strikeouts against two walks, Joray was staked to three runs in the first on a double by Doug Horton, Dick Harding's single, a pair of stolen bases, two hit batters and a walk to Phil VanDeMark.

Soccer, Hockey Star

Army's Mike Palone Draws Scholarship

WEST POINT—Mike Palone, Army's outstanding soccer and hockey player, has been named as the recipient of a $1,000 postgraduate scholarship by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Some 22 college athletes were listed for the award, given at this time to participants in sports other than football and basketball. Army 1967 football captain Bud Neswiacheny received a similar award last winter.

Athletics and scholarship are the key considerations in this award. Not only did Palone receive six varsity letters, three each in soccer and hockey, but he also gathered a long list of honors for athletic achievement. The most important was the Army Athletic Association Trophy, given each year to the graduating cadet who has rendered the most valuable service to athletics during his cadet career. That came to him during the recent June Week ceremonies.

On the scholastic side, Palone stood 94 out of 706 in the graduating class .That put him on the Dean's list several times during his four years at the Military Academy.

Mike was a second team all-America choice in soccer at the close of the 1967 season. In the three years that he was a regular on the varsity, Army went to the NCAA tournament each time. The first two years they gained the semi-finals while the 1967 team ended its title quest in the eastern regionals.

His hockey career was equally impressive. Palone was awarded the Buekama Award in 1966 when only a sophomore, being selected as the outstand-player on the team that winter. His 40 assists that season placed him second in the Army record book. He completed his ice career with 85 assists to rank third in that department and is fifth in scoring in the all-time hockey record book. Palone was captain of the 1967-68 hockey team which finished with a 14-10 season record.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Palone of West Point. Joe is the Army soccer coach and one of the most successful in college ranks.

As an added distinction and one that will carry into later life, young Palone was always on a winning team. Each of the six teams finished with a winning record.

Kolln, Bob Byman Jaycees Qualifiers

Seventeen-year-old Werner Kolln, a member of the crack Kingston High school varsity, led the Senior contingent (17 and over) with a 2-over-par 36-36-72.

Dan Powell of the Colonial Country Club, Tannersville, won the second Senior qualifying spot by defeating John Sentar of Twaalfskill on the third extra hole of a sudden death playoff.

Scotty Dean of Woodstock, another 14-year-older, earned the second Junior spot with an 80. Doug Tatara's 85 was third in the Senior group and Mark Brown of Wiltwyck posted 89 for third in the Juniors.

In special competition, Bob Darling of Twaalfskill got off the longest drive among the Seniors with a 221-yard poke. Bernie Schaeffer of Rosendale was closest to the pin on the No. 4 hole (25 feet) and Werner Kolln had fewest putts, 29.

WERNER KOLLN

The two leaders in each division qualified for the New York State Jaycee Sports Spectacular in Kingston on July 26-27.

Grill Gains Tie With 9-1 Victory

A trio of power hitters, added to the combined five-hit pitching of the Heckman's, Bill and Jack, gave Silver Grill its fourth win in seven contests, a 9-1 romp over Eddie's (0-8) and put the Grillmen in a three-way tie for second place Wednesday in the Ellenville Softball League.

In the fifth, Jack Pepper belted a triple, then scored to make it 3-0 Grill. The very next frame, he sparked a four-run rally with his second triple, driving in one ahead of him. He tried to stretch it into an inside-the-park homer, but was tossed out at home. Pepper is the first player in the eight-year-history of the loop to stroke two triples in one game.

Bill Heckman worked the opening four frames, gave up one hit, fanned five and walked one. His dad, Jack, Sr., finished up, was touched for four hits and the run, whiffed two and allowed a pair of walks.

Shannon Making Red Look Like Prophet

By FRANK DE GEORGES
UPI Sports Writer

Mike Shannon says he wasn't ready for World Series pressure last year. But he's ready now, he wants the chance and he's doing all he can to get it.

The St. Louis third baseman, new and unsteady around third base last season after several years in the outfield, found the World Series "too tough—I really didn't get to enjoy it."

He's grown accustomed to the base, though, and he demonstrated his enthusiasm for another October shot with a tie-breaking, two-run homer Thursday which carried the Cardinals to a 3-2 victroy over Los Angeles and an impressive 8½ game lead in the National League.

It was Manager Red Schoendienst's idea to bring Shannon in from the outfield and after he practiced a few months, St. Louis traded third baseman Charlie Smith to the Yankees and announced Shannon as the new third baseman. The fans didn't think he could make it, but Schoendienst obviously did, and now so does Shannon.

Shannon hit his homer in the eighth off Los Angeles starter and loser Claude Osteen. The homer, his 11th, put the Cardinals ahead 3-1 until the bottom of the ninth when Len Gabrielson homered for the Dodgers. Ray Washburn won his sixth game against three losses.

In other NL action, New York and Pittsburgh split a pair, the Pirates winning the opener, 3-2, and New York coming back in the nightcap, 4-3; Philadelphia and Chicago divided a double-header, with the first game going to the Cubs, 6-2, and the second to Philadelphia, 7-4, San Francisco whipped Atlanta, 6-4, and Cincinnati topped Houston, 7-4.

Rookie Jeff James pitched five hitless innnigs and recorded his first major league victory for Philadelphia in the second game. Home runs by Billy Williams and pinch hitter Dick Nen paced the Cubs' victory in the first game and Williams also hit a three-run blast in the nightcap off James. Joe Niekro won his seventh game for the Cubs in the opener.

Dick Dietz drove in four runs with a homer and a double to spark the Giants and give reliever Frank Linzy his fourth win of the season in 10 decisions. With the score tied 4-4 in the seventh, Jim Hart doubled and Dietz followed with his second homer of the year. Dietz gave the Giants a 2-0 lead in the first with a two-run double to right.

Alex Johnson and Mack Jones drove in three runs apiece to lead Cincinnati to victory. Johnson produced one run in the third with a grounder and singled across runs in the fifth and ninth. Jones, whose infield out accounted for a run in the third, singled across two runs during a three-run ninth. Gary Nolan won his fourth game against two losses while Don Wilson suffered his 10th loss.

Byman's 78, First Alternate Spot

ED BYMAN

Ed Byman, playing out of the Wiltwyck Country Club, had to play catch-up golf Wednesday to gain the Mid-Hudson Region's first alternate berth in the New York State Amateur Golf championships.

Byman, who graduated from high school last month, entered the qualifying as the top-ranked Kingston golfer.

Starting on the back nine, the 18-year-old linkster shot an eight-over 78, finishing six back of leader George Pacheco, who bogeyed the final two holes. The cutoff point was 77.

Byman, who had to sink a 25-foot putt on the final hole to gain his 78, was forced into a sudden-death playoff on the 19th hole against late entry William Moore, to win the alternate's spot.

Byman's card read 43-35—78 on seven bogeys, a birdie, two pars and a double bogey on 18. Pacheco defending champ on the host Dutchess CC course, shot 35-37-72.

Geanuleas Tops BRL

George Geanuleas of the Veterans of Foreign Wars squad emerges as the top performer in the first 25 games of the Babe Ruth League's 1968 schedule.

On the basis of unofficial tabulations by The Freeman sports department, the Vets' pitcher-first baseman leads in several categories.

He has pitched the only no-hit, no-run game, is tops in strikeouts for one game with 17, has a 1-hitter and 3-hitter to account for VFW's three wins and his hefty .533 batting mark (8 for 15) is believed to be the best in the league.

Don Lackaye of the KPA hurled a no-hitter but yielded one run in a game against the American Legion. Lackaye is bracketed in the one-hit group with Geanuleas and Nick Scott of the American Legion.

17 Strikeouts Tops

Geanuleas is 1-2 in the strikeout department with totals of 17 and 14. Pitchers with 13 Ks in a game include Tom Kuriger, Vince Hart and Don Fisher.

Lackaye, like Geanuleas a potent pitcher-hitter, knocked in four runs against Kiwanis with a homer and two singles.

Kithcart Stars

Marshall Kithcart has staged the best individual batting performance of the season—four doubles and five RBIs for the Lions against KPA.

Four players have accounted for three hits in one game: John Stulb, 2 doubles, single; Carl Storezinger, 3 singles; Nick Scott, 3 singles; Bob Darling, 3 singles.

Hurley remains the only undefeated club in the two divisions of the league with a perfect 5-0 record. Knights of Columbus and Vols are 2-1 each.

Penney's His Nibs, owned by the Penney Creek Farms of Rhinebeck, posted a wire-to-wire victory last night at Monticello Raceway, coming from the far outside seven post and winning handily in 2:07.3.

Driven by Bruce Kenn, Penney's His Nibs pulled away in the stretch to win the $2,000 trot by a length over Phantom Fling (1) and Lockman Hanover (4).

As the starting gate pulled away, Penney's His Nibs and Lockman Hanover shot for the top. In the first turn, they were neck-and-neck, but Kenn pushed his horse a little harder, gaining the lead as they swung out of the clubhouse turn the first time around.

By the first quarter, Penney's His Nibs had opened a two-length lead over Lockman and another over Phantom Fling being reined by Fred Bradbury.

Kenn maintained that lead until the three-quarters when first Lockman Hanover, then Phantom Fling took pot shots at him on the outside. In the final turn, Kenn and Bradbury had their horses racing head-to-head, but Kenn, sticking to the rail, had plenty of trotter left, pulling away to a length lead coming down to the wire.

At 9-1 on the board, the winner returned $21.00 6.80 and 4.40. Phantom Fling was worth $4.00 and 3.20 for place while Lockman Hanover had a $3.80 show price.

Wednesday's feature, a $1,200 trot, was won in 2:09.1 by Mar Con Tenor, who just nipped Dolly Dime at the wire. Al Burton reined the victor, who overtook Bob Ryan's Dolly Dime at the half-mile post and held on to win by a nose.

Ellis and Floyd For the 'Title'

The New Yorker signed Thursday to meet Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14 for the World Boxing Association version of the heavyweight title.

The fight will be held in the 52,000-seat Raasunda soccer stadium with Ellis defending the WBA crown he won last April by defeating Jerry Quarry in Los Angeles.

That was the final of the WBA elimination tourney to determine a successor to Cassius Clay.

Clay was stripped of title recognition by the WBA and the New York Athletic Commission when he refused military induction into the U.S. armed forces.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—John A. Quinn, 70, a former American League umpire, died Thursday.

Funseth and Baird Tie on 4-Under-68s

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI)—Rod Funseth and Butch Baird, each only a one-time winner on the pro tour, were surprise leaders after the first round of the $125,000 Buick Open Thursday with four-under-par 68s.

The field of 143 pros, on the whole, boasted their best scoring in the 11-years of the tournament, 25 of them coming through with sub-par rounds on a fair, cool day with little wind.

Another 10 players were at 70, two-under-par, among them U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and defending Buick champion Julius Boros. The others were Terry Wilcox, Fred Marti, Dick Rhyan, Dave Gumlia, Giboy Gilbert, Hugh Royer, Dave Hill and Frank Beard.

Nine players had 71s and 11 shot par-72.

Funseth, who has won only $13,168 in 20 tournaments this year and who scored his only tourney win in 1965 at Phoenix, got off early in the day with "very little confidence that I could score well."

Instead, he said, "Normally, I'm not the greatest putter in the world but I started putting well. My driving improved. I improved with my irons and everything came together."

He dropped birdie putts of 20 and 25 feet and holed out a 35-footer from a trap on another green. He was over par on only one hole when he put his tee shot into a trap.

Baird, on the tour since 1960 with his only victory in the 1961 Waco Turner Open, played on bumpy greens, but said, "When you hit the ball right it goes over the bumps and in and when it doesn't go in, you blame it on the bumps."

Bill Glass Rolls 629 in Mixed Loop

Bill Glass rolled games of 233 and 205 and used them to form a 629 that paced the action in the mixed league.

Lions Rip VFW, 7-4

Joe Brown hurled a 5-hitter and fanned nine to pace Kingston Lions to a 7-4 victory over V.F.W. in the Babe Ruth League. He also hit a double and knocked in two runs.

Jim Latorre had a single-double combination and two RBIs for the Lions. Ken Hoffstatter collected two singles for VFW.

Perry, Koenig, Terlingen

Cunha Was Man Apart For His Local Players

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Three Kingston residents who played basketball under the late Dan Cunha at Siena College, remember him as being more than just a basketball coach.

Mike Perry, hoop boss at Ulster County Community College and Frank Koenig, insurance executive, are in Albany attending today's funeral rites for the 55-year-old Cunha, Siena's most successful hoop mentor, who died Tuesday. The third, Dick Terlingen, is in Taiwan, Nationalist China on assignment for IBM and cannot attend.

Perry, a disciple of Cunha, departed for Albany Tuesday evening, immediately after receiving word from Cunha's family that the coach failed to recover from a long, serious, illness. Cunha was hospitalized the last two months.

Cunha, a 1935 graduate of Notre Dame, coached Terlingen initially. Standing 6-foot-5, Terlingen was a member of Cunha's greatest teams, performing for the coach from 1949-53, years when Siena rose to national prominence in the hoop world.

Koenig Came in 1952

Koenig followed, coming under Cunha's hand in 1952 and playing on a string of four outstanding teams. Perry, 27, first played, then coached with Cunha in the fiery pilot's last few years at the Loudenville campus.

As an undergraduate, Perry played for Cunha. While working on his master's degree, the UCCC coach served as an assistant to the Siena boss.

Of the trio, Perry enjoyed probably the closest relationship with Cunha. They became extremely good friends, unusual considering the great difference in ages.

"He was honest with his men, a tough disciplinarian. He played the game for keeps, but on the highest plane," Koenig said, in reflecting on the days he spent as a player for Cunha.

"He was more than a coach, he influenced, guided, shaped, our way of life, mine especially. How we turned out was more important to him than anything else. He was a part of all our future developments, always making time for us, whether we had problems on or off the court. I remember times when he stayed until midnight and even one in the morning helping someone solve a court problem first, then a personal difficulty," the insurance man added.

Never Forget Him

"I can't describe him in words, but I know I'll never forget him. He played with smaller men in a bigger man's league, and it never got him down. Each of us was an individual first, a ballplayer next and in toto, a team. That's the way he wanted it, and no one found him wrong. I never questioned him, nor did anyone else. I never realized how truly great he was until I graduated and was in the service," Koenig concluded.

Marilyn Terlingen can attest to Cunha's great desire to excel despite the odds. "The one thing that stands out in my mind is Dick's constant statement about how great a basketball coach he was. Dick always said that if anybody knew basketball, in the truest sense of the game, it was Coach Cunha," she related.

Cunhas record at Siena was an excellent 247-225 won-loss record. The compilation runs from 1939-65, the last 10 years without a single hoopster on scholarship. Looking at the 1947-52 span, the finest years in the school's history, Cunha's record was an amazing 115-33, including a national championship. More than once, his Indians won national defensive honors with their possession type game.

Generated Excitement

"I wasn't closely associated with the team at all. In fact, I didn't go to see them play until Dick was a senior," Mrs. Terlingen added, "but those teams of his (Cunha) put Albany on the map basketball-wise. You can't imagine the excitement they generated. They were the talk of the country."

"When we heard last month that he (Cunha) was ill, Dick became extremely concerned. Dick's work and the trip (Terlingen will return in five weeks—he left three weeks ago) kept him from going to see the coach, but Dick wanted to see him. I think he's like to be at the funeral," she said.

Cunha was both praised and criticized throughout his coaching career. The men who played for him agree that "He didn't let the accolades go to his head or the critics get him down."

Now that he's dead, the detractors will be silenced and the pro-Cunha fans will rise to the fore, heaping compliments on the memory of the coach.

Perry, long before Cunha's death, paid the coach perhaps the finest compliment a man can give another fellow human. Perry's statement was simply, "Thanks for making me what I am."

Dr. Fager, Bold Ruler, Topple Mighty Damascus

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Suburban and Monmouth Oaks were the headliners of a busy Fourth of July stakes program.

Ycaza had Damascus close to Dr. Fager for most of the Suburban, but Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's 1967 Horse of the Year faded in the stretch as Dr. Fager raced to a two-length victory over George D. Widener's Bold Hour.

Damascus was another three lengths back, followed by Paul Mellon's Amerigo Lady and Mrs. Frances Genter's In Reality.

Dr. Fager, owned by William L. McKnight and carrying 132 pounds, one less than Damascus, broke the stakes record of 2:00 3-5 and tied the track record of 1:59 3-5.

The first prize of $69,615 out of the gross purse of $107,100 boosted Dr. Fager's career earnings to $776,237. The $10,700 Damascus earned for third lifted his career bankroll to $943,316.

Saugerties Club Keeps Pressure On Legislation

Saugerties Fish and Game Club is mobilizing its resources to oppose currently proposed gun legislation.

At its last meeting, the club voted to check into costs of conducting a township survey to determine public attitude toward gun controls.

Containers for donations to assist in defraying cost of the questionnaire have been placed in strategic locations in the township.

A public forum to discuss gun legislation was also suggested. Gordon Liddy, Conservative candidate for Congress from the 28th congressional district, was mentioned as a possible speaker. The club also announced vigorous support of all political candidates, who oppose unnecessary gun legislation.

The club's committee against gun controls emphasized the importance of keeping the letter-writing campaign in high gear. Letters objecting to gun control legislation should be addressed to Senator Javits, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Dear Abby

Manners Need a Manicure

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is highly successful in his field, well educated, well traveled, and respected in this community, BUT when he is present, no one else can get a word in.

I cannot recall ever having been in this man's company when he didn't take the floor and hold it all evening. Granted, he IS charming and entertaining, but there have been times when other interesting guests could have added something worthwhile to the conversation. But this man's voice is the only one that's heard.

Just what does one do about a person like this?

IRKED

DEAR IRKED: In the absence of a "friend" to tell this boor that his manners need manicuring, an enemy will do. A guest who comes to the party and hogs all the conversation is no better than one who hogs all the food.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our three children (ages 8, 10, and 13) were invited to a relative's home for supper recently. She had one large table set for the adults and another one for the children.

My daughter, age 13, came to me and said she wasn't going to sit with the "babies." (Two of her 12 - year - old cousins were sitting at that table and they didn't complain.) I told her not to make a fuss and to go sit down and be quiet. Being a very head - strong child, she raised her voice a bit and said she would rather go home. Well, I wasn't about to take her home and I couldn't let her walk home alone at night, so in order to avoid a scene I told her to go get her chair and to sit by me, which she did.

I dislike scenes in public and I still think I did the right thing. My husband said I should have told the spoiled little stinker to either sit where she was put or to get into the bedroom and sulk. What is your opinion?

BROOKLYN

DEAR BROOKLYN: With such a smart husband, why are you writing to Dear Abby?

DEAR ABBY: First, let me explain that I am not some kind of nut, neither am I a sex maniac, which is what most people think when they learn that I am a nudist.

I took up nudism eight years ago and I can't say enough for it. It is the greatest equalizer in the world. At a nudist camp there is complete honesty. A person IS what he is, and he can't fool anybody with fancy clothes. It takes a genuinely honest person to go before his fellow man just as God made him, willing to be judged strictly on his character, personality, and true self.

The sun is nature's best medicine. Why cover the body and diminish its healthful rays?

I am not trying to sell nudism to people who think it's "dirty." They wouldn't make good nudists anyway. I just want to say a few words in defense of some of the most misunderstood people in the world. Thank you. NUDIST, DEL RAY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a tactful way to handle a friend (not close) who never uses our doorbell, but always opens our front door, walks right in, and calls our name?

She does this consistently. We are very much annoyed, but quite puzzled as to how to let her know. We are not up tight people, but we do value our privacy.

INTRUDED UPON

DEAR INTRUDED: People who "value their privacy" usually lock their doors. Lock yours. Your friend will soon get the message.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

How Experts Locate Cards

By Oswald and James Jacoby

When an expert stops to think over a play of the hand you can be sure of two things. The first is that he has something to think about, and the second is that he will probably solve his problem.

When an ordinary player stops to think you can be equally sure that he has something to think about but you can't always be sure he will solve his problem.

There is nothing wrong with the North - South bidding. South has almost enough to open with a forcing two bid and can certainly afford to go to a slam after North jumps to game.

The slam also is one that will make. Unless all three trumps show up in one hand there is no defense. Even with all trumps in one hand, South makes his contract if he guesses which opponent will hold the queen.

The play starts with West opening his ace of clubs and continuing the suit. South is in with the king and right here is where South should take a little time to decide whether to lead the ace or a low spade.

An expert would surely lead the ace of spades. He would note that West had a club suit headed by the ace but had not got into the bidding against vulnerable opponents. That might indicate to some players that he did not also hold the queen of spades but to an expert it would indicate that West would be most unlikely to hold no spades at all. People try to get into the bidding when they are not vulnerable and when they think they don't have much defense. The queen of an opponent's bid suit represents possible defense. No cards in an opponent's bid suit represents a possible cheap save.

Therefore the expert would lead his ace of spades at trick three and pick up the queen when East showed out.

malapropism (MAL-uh-prop-iz'm) deliberat misuse of words

After listening to the crude malapropisms of the guest speaker, the company manager wondered who was responsible for inviting him.

The English professor, a man known for his careful use of words, reminded his students that he would not tolerate the use of malapropisms in his class.

Only 20 New Video Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Proof that regular television series are mere filler is found in next season's three-network schedule. Only 20 new series will be attempted by the major broadcasting organization, most of them the usual run-of-the-mill stuff. More and more energy is being directed, instead, at future and fresher forms of television.

Well, that's the optimistic way of looking at it. Until the inspiration for these newer forms finds full flower, we must steel ourselves over the summer for the annual fall deluge. Here are the 20 new series we can expect:

The Lineup

—The Phyllis Diller show. Weekly hour of variety.

"—Aadm-12." Half-hour program about the experiences of two squad car policemen of the Los Angeles force.

—"Julia." Diahann Carroll as a young widow, a registered nurse in the health office of an industrial corporation. She has a six-year-old son. Half-hour.

—"The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." Half-hour comedy about a young widow's adventures with her children and housekeeper in a home still inhabited by the spirit of its former owner, a formidable clippership captain. With Hope Lange and Edward Mulhare.

—"Land of the Giants." Hour program about space travelers who are suddenly flung into a land in which everything is mammoth in size and they are tiny.

—"The Outcasts." Story of the relationship of two men, one white and a former Virginia aristocrat, the other a black ex-slave who becomes a bounty hunter, in the West following the war between North and South. One hour weekly, with Don Murray and Otis Young.

—"The Mod Squad." Three young people, working for the police, penetrate the world of crime effectively because of their knowledge of the contemporary turned-on scene. One hour.

And The Others

— "That's Life." Robert Morse in a musical comedy series tracing the lives of a young couple from courtship to wedding to honeymoon and the first married years. One hour.

—"Here comes the brides." Comedy about respectable and marriageable women who are imported to make a civilized community of a previously all-male Seattle logging camp in the old west. Hour.

—"The Ugliest Girl in Town." Half-hour comedy, filmed in London, about a boy who is in love with a girl, but is transformed, by circumstances, into "Timmy"—the model of the mod, mod world—with an assist from Beatle-ish wig and a "super-mini outfit."

—"Tales of the Unknown." Hour anthology.

—The Don Rickles show. The noted insult comedian brings his brand of honor to a game show with celebrities, of which he is host. Half-hour.

—"Mayberry, R.F.D." an offshoot of the Andy Griffith series. This stars Ken Berry as a farmer and town councilman in the same Southern locale. Half-hour.

—"Lancer." Hour western.

—The Doris Day Show. Half-hour series about a widow who returns to the family ranch with her two sons to begin a new life far different from the one they led in the city.

—"The Good Guys." Half-hour comedy about a fast-talking cab driver and the operator of a diner, and their get-rich-quick schemes. With Bob Denver, Herb Edelman.

Mack (one of his victims) — Aw, that's nothing. I dropped my watch into the East River over a year ago, and it's been running ever since.

Mack — No. The same river.

Then there was the man who lost $150 sitting up with a slick friend.

Jack (to Bill, holding out his hand) — Well, good - by. I'm leaving on my trip tomorrow.

Bill — Not with me it isn't. Saturday's my payday.

A born loser is the guy who sticks his hand out of his car window to signal a turn and smacks a cop in the mouth.

Maybe our foreign policy would work better if all our spies weren't tied up doing television series.

Mr. Smith (rushing home one day) — Hurrah, darling, I've made dollars today over a big deal. Now you can have some decent clothes for Christmas.

Mrs. Smith — Indeed, I'll do no such thing. I'll have the kind other women wear.

Mr. Brown — Ah! a partridge at last!

Law and Order the July 4 Theme Of 3 Presidential Contenders

By United Press International

The shadow of violence and disorder in the nation made itself felt in Independence Day celebrations as presidential contenders from three parties pleaded for law and order.

Americans must "support the rule of law, lest the law of the jungle become the law of human behavior," said Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as he was heckled in front of Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

Law-abiding Americans are buying guns "because they have lost faith in government's ability to protect them," said Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan in an old California gold rush town.

"A good crease in the skull would stop this," said former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace before he left Minneapolis where police earlier had to use a disabling chemical spray and clubs to quell demonstrators.

VP Faces Pickets

Humphrey, facing boisterous antiwar pickets and "McCarthy for president" signs, asserted the right of Americans to "walk the streets and proclaim their cause without fear of violence."

Reagan, favorite son presidential candidate of California Republicans, said that if the government met its responsibility to protect its citizens, the purchase of weapons would probably decrease.

Wallace, angered at a wild demonstration in Minneapolis' auditorium Wednesday night, said before returning home: "I can assure you that if I'm elected president, I'll show you how to keep law and order."

"Freedom to speak, freedom to listen, and the full and open right to communicate and reason together are essential to our system of government and our fulfillment as individuals," President Johnson said in a statement released by the Texas White House.

Other Developments

In other political developments:

Nelson A. Rockefeller—The New York governor was vacationing in Hawaii over Independence Day but his New York office issued a statement saying his presidential platform would include an 8-point "fair deal for consumers."

Eugene J. McCarthy—McCarthy met with National Farmers Organization head Oren Lee Staley in Corning, Iowa, and Staley said the NFO would not change its policy of not endorsing political candidates. Earlier, the Minnesota senator told a big Fourth of July crowd—most of them farmers—that farmers "are tired of promises that go unfulfilled."

Richard M. Nixon—Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., a leading House GOP tactician, said he thought the former vice president would do well to select someone as his running mate who would appeal to the urban voter. He suggested former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner.

Hanoi's Hand Strengthened By Soviet Pledge of Help

By GEORGE SIBERA

PARIS (UPI) — A Soviet pledge of continued military and economic aid to North Vietnam strengthened the hand today of Hanoi's negotiators at the Vietnam War talks, diplomatic sources said.

The Hanoi delegation was jubilant over the pledge for renewed aid announced in Moscow Thursday, they said. It was expected to cement the delegation's hard-line attitude.

American and North Vietnamese negotiators have met 11 times since their discussions opened May 13. They have made no progress. The North Vietnamese have insisted the United States halt unconditionally all bombing of North Vietnam. The Americans have demanded Hanoi respond to a partial bombing halt ordered March 31 by scaling down fighting in South Vietnam.

A 12th session is scheduled next week.

The North Vietnamese government continued its hard line today by warning Thailand and South Korea they must stop sending troops to South Vietnam and by again demanding an unconditional end to U.S. bombing.

"Everybody can see the losing position of the United States in South Vietnam," a statement of the Foreign Ministry in Hanoi broadcast on radio and monitored in Tokyo said.

The statement said the United States should withdraw from South Vietnam its troops and "troops of its satellites" and let the South Vietnamese settle their internal affairs by themselves.

The broadcast said the warning was directed at President Park Chung Hee of South Korea and Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Deputy Prime Minister Praphas Charusathien of Thailand. It said South Korea and Thailand intend to send more troops to Vietnam.

In Paris the Hanoi delegation counted on a four-day anti-American international conference of jurist sin Grenoble to gain new sympathy for North Vietnam. The left-leaning jurists were to study the right of the South Vietnamese population to choose its form of government, the recent "American Crimes of War," and the judicial aspects of the U.S. "aggression."

THE DEFENSE—Arthur Hanes, lawyer from Alabama who today "officially" accepted the defense of James Earl Ray, accused killer of Dr. Martin Luther King, talks in press office of London's Royal Lancaster Hotel. He flew in from the United States. (UPI CABLEFOTO DIRECT FROM LONDON.)

By SCOTT B. BRUNS

LONDON (UPI)—Arthur J. Hanes said today he had "officially" accepted the job of defending accused assassin James Earl Ray. He said he might use a plea of insanity if Ray is brought to trial in America for the sniper slying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Hanes, the former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., arrived in London today to confer with Ray in the American's maximum security London cell. Ray is fighting extradition to the United States.

"Perhaps there will be a plea of not guilty and there may be other pleas in defense of that plea," Hanes told newsmen at a London airport.

"Not guilty by reason of insanity—that could be raised," Hanes said. "All pleas are being considered and checked out. I'm considering, of course, every plea there is on his behalf."

The Alabama attorney said he wanted to talk to Ray to get some of his background.

"As of now I am acting officially for him," Hanes said.

Chief Magistrate Frank Milton ended an extradition hearing in London Bow Street Magistrate's Court Tuesday by ordering Ray returned to the United States. However, Milton's decision will be appealed to a British higher court. If the court denies the appeal, Ray could be sent back before the end of the month.

Ray complained at the Tuesday hearing he had not been allowed to see Hanes when the American lawyer visited Britain two weks ago. The British Home Office denied it had refused Hanes permission.

Sources close to the Home Office said Hanes, the attorney who successfully defended the men accused of killing civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo, was given permission to see Ray today as "an ordinary visitor." Hanes is not admitted to practice law before British courts.

Hanes said Ray asked for his help in a two-page handwritten letter sent from London after his June 8 arrest. Ray, 40, an escaped convict from Missouri, was arrested at London Heathrow Airport traveling under forged Canadian passports that bore the name of a Toronto policeman, Ramon George Sneyd.

France Today:

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

PARIS (UPI)—In France a gallon of gasoline costs $1 or more today and is going up. The national economy is running scared.

No Devaluation

French officials said De Gaulle's government is determined to live up to its pledges not to devalue the Franc. And that is the heart of the matter. Devaluation—about five francs now equal $1—would strike French prestige and wipe out much of the recent salary hikes.

In the past 10 years, De Gaulle painfully, proudly built up its stores of gold and foreign exchange currencies. Once a postwar economic sickman, France by the end of May had $6.4 billion in Bank of France reserves. Then the trouble came.

The big strike resulted in big wage increases. It also walloped industry with lost production and the cost of the pay boosts.

In London, Zurich and other world banking centers, financiers reckoned the new look in Paris' Franc was more Twiggy than Anita Ekberg.

They began selling Francs, figuring boom was giving way to bust in France. De Gaulle has had already to shell out $1.3 billion in gold reserves to pay off the Franc sellers and the end is not in sight.

Raises Bank Interest

De Gaulle raised bank interest rates from 3.5 to 5 per cent in order to keep foreign money from fleeing France. No French government had done such a thing since prewar depression days. No one appeared sure even that would work.

French stocks have been falling in exchanges around the world. De Gaulle only weeks ago had been scolding the United States and Britain about their allegedly weak currencies, the dollar and the pound. Now the Franc was under attack. He has taken more defensive measures.

Reluctantly his Common Market partners—West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—are allowing De Gaulle to throw up protective tariffs to protect his weakened econoy. The Common Market was to have become this week one big open market—no real tariff barriers at the borders. His partners were pressing De Gaulle to be done with these temporary tariffs by year's end.

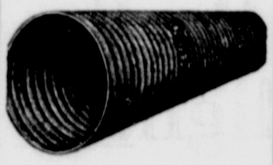

Short Protest

DENVER (UPI)—Lorenz Peifer, 70, told the judge he was just demonstrating against some girls down the block who were wearing bikinis at the carwash.

The judge dismissed a drunkenness charge against Peifer but found him guilty of disturbance because he went down the street in his underwear.
